TURK ENTITLED TO SOME JUSTICE.

Blame for Conditions in Macedonia Held by Correspondent to Lie Partly with Other Powers.

SITUATION IS NOT EASY.

Journey from Seres to Starcica Under Escort of Sultan's Officer Is Described in Detail.

A well known war correspondent, an observer of the Greco-Turkish war, the Philippine insurrection, the campaign in China, and the Boer war, is now in Macedonia and will describe the results of the insurrection in a series of cablegrams, of which the following is the first.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

[Copyright: 1903: By the New York Herald.]

STARCICA, Oct. 12.—This comparing of other people's dirty linen to see whether it is dirtier than the average dirty linen is not an agreeable job. Repeatedly I have felt that I had no business here meddling in the private quarrels in this Turkish household, and yet the lazy occupation of criticising the Turk and flaying him unmercifully after accepting his hospitality has been for time immemorial the privilege of the ambitious newspaper man.

The time was when I should have accepted the task without a qualm, but I have seen so much cruelty and barbarism practiced by Christian people passed over without eliciting comment that I cannot for the life of me see why the Turk should have drawn upon himself the attention of the whole world. In this matter, having undertaken the job, I am endeavoring to make it thorough, amid this medley of oriental intrigue and espionage, but of that more hereafter.

Turk Must Be Given Some Credit.

Certainly the Turk will try to cover up things, because having been called a bad boy so often he begins to think himself excluded from the rank of humanity. As a matter of fact, as far as my investigation has gone in this particular district, considering all the aggravating circumstances, he has acted with reasonableness.

We started from Seres with an escort of twenty cavalrymen, commanded by Capt. Refik, of the best type of Turkish officer. He speaks Turkish, Arabic, Persian, and French, and perhaps some other languages. He is sharp eyed and quick. He has his men well in hand and knows the country and his profession. He is a gentleman and a soldier. We soon began to climb into the Balkans along a road which early became only a mountain trail. Here it was that I realized for the first time the difficulty of suppressing an insurrection in such a country of precipitous mountains and deep, narrow valleys every size which cut up the country.

Valleys Are All Isolated.

In one valley it would be impossible to tell what was going on over the distant roads, or other trails which are only passable on horseback at a walk, or on foot. It is one of the weaknesses of the Turk that he does not take the initiative, but considers that the burden of doing the work of public improvement lies with the population.

"Look," he will tell you, "at that rocky trail leading to that village. If those Bulgarian peasants were not a lazy lot they would build a decent road." But the Bulgarian peasant is not lazy. We saw him on all sides working in the fields, plowing, sowing, and reaping. His crops, in spite of the insurrection, had for the most part been gathered and the ground was being tilled. We were passing through a district where there had been fighting.

Village of Barica a Type.

Later on we saw the village of Barica on the mountain slope opposite. It was not on our line of march, and we did not go to it. This village we were told had been held by the insurgents, and the troops were constantly fired on from there. An attack on it was made and the insurgents driven out. Then the inhabitants were ordered to leave. Some did and some did not. The village was then set on fire, but a part of it only had burned. Through our glasses we noticed the people were beginning to build again. A little further on we met a band of volunteers, commonly called bashi-basouks. They had been out engaging in a small fight up in the mountains, which apparently had consisted principally in a waste of ammunition. There were no casualties on either side.

Permanent Insurgents Are Few.

In a general way the soldiers hold the valleys, roads, towns, and villages, while the insurgents are up in the hills. Occasionally the insurgents sweep down on a small post or village, fight a short time, and then withdraw. The number of permanent insurgents is quite small. They have among them many Bulgarian officers. Occasionally they succeed in persuading a village to rise in arms. Their method of persuading the villagers to rebel is most reprehensible. They threaten, and have even resorted to murder when they found men standing in their way.

Perhaps the most heartless method they use is to hold out false hopes to an ignorant peasant. They tell him that not only is Bulgaria backing him up, but Russia also, and that in a short time Russian troops will be on the spot.

Russian Methods Unfair.

The villagers revolt, thinking that if they do not rise they will be considered enemies when the Bulgarians and Russians arrive. Neither Russian nor Bulgarian troops arrive, and the peasant is left alone to meet the revenge of his master, the Turk. If this method is part of the secret politics of Russia, as I have some reason to believe it to be, it deserves the condemnation of the whole world.

Up a rocky pass 3,000 feet above the sea level, and down into a narrow valley with a scarce growth of trees we went, and ever before us appeared yellow peaks dotted with green heather. Wherever the treeless country afforded moisture enough the peasants had cultivated small patches of ground. We passed through several villages in this district. The Bulgarians are in the majority. The houses were all barred and many Bulgarian women were in the streets, but no men. They were either in hiding on mountains or out in the fields. Later I asked the reason why I saw so few Bulgarian men. He answered me that from the age of 20 to 40 they must pay for their behavior. The presence of women in the streets, looking up at us with questioning eyes, proved that they felt safe. It is true that they were prone to hurry out of the way as our cavalry clattered over the cobbles, still they were Startling Evasion of Naturalization Law Discovered by Secret Agents of Government.

WAY OPEN TO ANARCHISTS

Chicago Judge Admits 1,800 Aliens in One Evening; 250,000 Illegal Oaths in Ohio.

Tacoma, Wash., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—Startling violations of the new naturalization law at Chicago and elsewhere have been brought to light by C. D. C. Vandusen, a special agent of the department of justice, who has just completed a trip of inspection across the continent.

Mr. Vandusen declares that the provision of the new law which prevents any one with anarchistic beliefs, inclinations, or tendencies from becoming a citizen has in many cases been ignored.

As a result President Roosevelt, it is said, will recommend to congress a radical change in the law, so as to limit the right of conferring naturalization to the federal courts. It is understood that the president will favor a permanent commission to question the applicant for citizenship papers, take other testimony if necessary, and report the result of the examination to the judge.

One Chicago judge was found to have admitted 1,800 foreigners to full citizenship in one evening, an act which would have been physically impossible unless the oath were administered to the applicants in platoons, and the law presumed that it shall be administered to each individual separately.

In Ohio more than 250,000 men were admitted to citizenship by Probate judges, who have no right to administer the oath. Although these men made application in good faith, they are still foreigners under the law.

Frauds Are Extensive.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—Naturalization frauds of gigantic proportions have been perpetrated during the last few years, the number reaching a quarter of a million. The government has been aware of the existance of these frauds and is doing all in its power to put a stop to them. Special agents of the department of justice, secret service officers, and other officers of the government have been engaged for the last two years running down those who are guilty. C. D. C. Van Duzen, a special agent of the department of justice, is one of the officials engaged in the investigation.

Most of these frauds have been perpetrated by unscrupulous individuals who are not connected with the government in any way and whose sole aim is to rob ignorant immigrants and enrich themselves. It was learned tonight from the highest authority that these frauds exist in every section of the country.

How Fraud Is Worked.

Unscrupulous individuals seek immigrants who possess a little money and blandly inform them that if they take out naturalization papers they will prosper wonderfully and everything be made easy for them. These stories are believed by the immigrants, who gladly part with their money for fraudulent certificates, a large supply of which are always on hand. Judges who naturalize aliens on forged papers are victimized by the fraud and not a party to it. The government has determined to break up this practice, and is now gathering facts which will be instrumental in placing some of the guilty ones behind the bars.

Conspiracy in St. Louis.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—Details of the greatest fraudulent naturalization conspiracies ever unearthed in the country are coming to light through the investigations of the grand jury now in progress in this city. The jury today voted four indictments against one police captain for his part in the naturalization frauds.

The basis of the conspiracy is an alleged political club, which controls a certain part of the police force, and which, through the aid of the police, has levied on the vice of the city for its expenses.

This political club devoted its energies to grinding out citizens in the fraud mill. Men who dared go before the federal authorities to give testimony against the naturalization frauds were arrested by the police on trumped up charges and intimidated into silence.

The club was herding ground for newcomers in Little Jerusalem. It was here they were brought together and drilled. They received lessons in clubrooms, so they could go into court and swear without fear of making mistakes. Many of them never went near court, but received their papers through the club's members after they had been forged.

Judge Edward F. Dunne said last night that he did not believe the charge against Chicago judges was just, as it would be impossible to naturalize any 1,800 foreigners in one night. He said in his opinion the present law was sufficiently exacting and honest.

CITY OF CHICAGO OWNS THE COUNTY HOSPITAL.

Aldermen Surprised to Learn Result of Purchase at Tax Sale—Anxious to Restore the Property on Any Terms.

The aldermen were more than surprised last evening when they learned for the first time that the city of Chicago is now the owner of the county hospital property. Their surprise increased to consternation when it was intimated that they probably would have to provide for its maintenance unless they made a bargain with the county. In their terror over the prospect, they hastily authorized the finance committee to get the white elephant off their hands on any terms it saw fit.

It seems that two years ago the hospital and the grounds surrounding it were sold at tax sale to meet a special assessment for street improvements of $1,600. To protect its interests, as it does in all such cases, the city bought it in. It has held the tax title ever since, and in a few days it will become perfected and the entire title with all its responsibilities will be in the city.

Ald. Mayor, in announcing the situation, stated that the county was willing to pay the $1,600 with 6 per cent interest, but was not willing to pay the 100 per cent the city could claim under the law. The council at once told him to let the interest go entirely, just so the city did not finally acquire the property.

SOME FACTS AND FIGURES ABOUT JAPAN AND RUSSIA.

PLOT TO GET $5,000.

Blackmailers Threaten Mrs. Orville Babcock by 'Phone.

NAME PLACE TO PUT CASH.

Police Appealed To and Detectives Guard Home Constantly.

Anonymous letters and a telephone message demanding $5,000 under threats of personal injury have been received by Mrs. Orville E. Babcock, the daughter of John R. Walsh, and yesterday evening the Chicago police were asked to run down the plotters. Since the first communication was delivered to Mrs. Babcock every effort has been made by the family to obtain some trace of the sender, but no progress has been made. Detectives are now constantly on guard at the Winston apartments, Lincoln Park boulevard and Chicago avenue, where Mr. and Mrs. Babcock reside.

Two letters were delivered to Mrs. Babcock, and she was once summoned to the telephone in regard to the attempted blackmail. The first communication, dated Sept. 8, was written on plain paper, which was inclosed in a sealed envelope and stuck in the ornamental ironwork in the passenger elevator in the building. The signature under the demand was "Durma Society." Mrs. Babcock was asked to put the money in $5 bills in a package which was to be thrown in the weeds in a vacant lot near Jackson boulevard and Hamlin avenue.

Blackmailers Bold; Use 'Phone.

No attention was paid to the note, and another of similar import was received two weeks later. Still the request was not complied with, in spite of the threats. Then, last Saturday, Mrs. Babcock answered the telephone and was asked why she had done nothing in response to the letters. For reply she hung up the receiver, and yesterday the police were called in.

A plan for trapping the plotters was at once formed. A dummy package was to be made up and tossed into the lot at the place and time designated. Policemen were to be on hand and were to remain on guard until some persons appeared to get the bundle, when they were to be arrested. But when members of the family learned of the scheme they vetoed it and it was abandoned.

Mr. Babcock Discusses Case.

"We have run down every clew that we have received," Mr. Babcock said last night, "without accomplishing one single result.

"The first letter was brought by a small girl who thrust it into the iron work around the elevator shaft. The second was thrown into the hall by some person who was not seen.

"The last word that came to us of the matter was received on Saturday over the telephone. Mrs. Babcock was summoned to the instrument and some one began an inquiry about 'those letters.'"

Chief O'Neill was visited and detectives were detailed on the case. After giving up the plan of the dummy package, nothing has been done except to place detectives on watch at the Babcock apartment. Lieut. Hanley of the East Chicago avenue station arranged a detail of three detectives who relieve one another, so that one is always at the door of the building. The police believe the letters were sent by some mentally unsound rather than malicious person. They have little hope of arresting the guilty ones.

Mr. Babcock is a member of the bond and stock firm of King, Hodenpyl & Co.

TELLS ALL; AT PEACE

Forger, Haunted by Conscience, Comes 1,000 Miles to Confess.

MADE WANDERER BY GUILT.

Carl Cheney Asks Postal Authorities to Make Him a Prisoner.

Made an outcast by a crime committed in May, 1902, and dogged in his wanderings by a guilty conscience, Carl Cheney gave himself up to the federal authorities in Chicago yesterday afternoon and begged them to send him to prison. He had come 1,000 miles to confess the theft and forgery of a postoffice money order.

The telephone in Postoffice Inspector Stuart's office rang at 4 o'clock, and Inspector W. E. Martin, answering it, heard these words:

"Is this the place to confess? Is this Col. Stuart?"

"No," answered the inspector, "but if you have violated the postal laws, come right down and confess to me."

Martin hung up the receiver, thinking it a joke, but an hour later a young man, careworn and tired, walked into the office.

Confesses His Crime at Last.

"For a year and a half I have suffered torment," he began. "I fled from Chicago to escape arrest, but I could not escape my conscience. I am a thief and a forger. I have been to Seattle and I have been to Boston. Everywhere I went I felt I was shadowed by postoffice secret service men. I got work, but I could not remain.

"Eighteen months ago I was employed as a bookkeeper by Emilio Longhi, the spaghetti and fruit dealer at 380 State street. One night I lost all my money in a poker game at 'Mushmouth' Johnson's. On my way home I passed the office. I unlocked the safe and took a money order for $11. I hurried back to the poker game, signed Longhi's name to the paper, and had it cashed by the saloonkeeper. I lost that, too.

"I thought of suicide, but my nerve failed and I fled from the city in a freight car.

Comes 1,000 Miles to Confess.

"When I reached New York I could stand it no longer. I came back as a tramp and told the Twenty-second street police. They sent me here, and this is the first peaceful moment I have had for more than a year. Send me to prison."

Inspectors Martin and Mullin found Longhi and learned that Cheney's story was true. Longhi declared he did not wish to prosecute and the inspectors released the man, who will return to Longhi's employ and work to pay the debt.

GIRL A VICTIM OF HAIRCLIPPER.

Agnes Bolange, Returning from School, Loses Her Tresses—Assailant Escapes.

Another school girl fell a victim to the hair clipper yesterday afternoon. She was Agnes Bolange, 11 years old, and living at 2945 Loomis street. The child was made ill by terror. The man escaped.

When near Loomis and Haynes court on her way from school the girl was seized from behind. She screamed several times, but the man drew a pair of shears from his pocket and cut her hair off. Several persons heard the child's cries and pursued the stranger, but he escaped easily.

AIR INDIAN SCANDAL.

Members of Dawes Commission Involved in Charges.

SOME MAY LOSE POSITIONS.

Tams Bixby in Washington to Explain Interest in Land Deals.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—Every member of the Dawes Indian commission is involved in fraud charges, the investigation of which will be taken up here tomorrow, and there are indications that involuntary retirement will be the fate of some of the commissioners.

Tams Bixby, chairman of the Dawes commission, summoned by telegraph, will appear tomorrow before Secretary of the Interior Hitchcock for a conference regarding the grave accusations that the Indians have been swindled in land deals. It is predicted that some pointed questions will be propounded to Mr. Bixby.

Connected with Corporations.

One point Mr. Bixby will be called upon to explain is his connection with several corporations which are engaged in the leasing and purchasing of lands from the Indians.

Mr. Bixby is president of the Canadian Valley Trust company of Muskegee, I. T., and is a director of the Muskegee Title and Trust company of Muskegee, I. T. The latter corporation loans money upon real estate, personal property, and other securities. It also buys, sells, and leases real estate, chiefly in Indian territory.

Has Duty to the Indians.

As chairman of the Dawes commission, it is Mr. Bixby's duty to superintend a fair and impartial allotment of the lands in Indian territory.

Secretary Hitchcock looks with disfavor upon the connection of government officials with corporations which deal in Indian lands.

Mr. Hitchcock already has dismissed a number of officials because of such transactions, and has notified others that they must sever their connection with the land companies or relinquish their government positions.

The charges under investigation have been filed by friends of the Indians, and they are to the effect that interested persons have induced them to dispose of their lands for less than their values, and that other financial wrongs have been done the red men.

MORE ROOM IN PULLMAN CAR.

Supt. Dunbar Makes a Commodious One by Replacing Some Wood with Steel.

Persons who ride in Pullman cars and who have in years past abused the style of architecture which forced them to pile their suit cases between the seats and bring knees on a level with chins are to have relief. Gen. Supt. Thomas Dunbar has evolved a car which will have room for hand baggage.

The heavy wooden posts which have heretofore been placed between backs of the seats to support the upper berths have been replaced with light steel rods. The advantage is twofold, says Mr. Dunbar. Not only does it make of each seat a miniature baggage car, but it adds several inches to the length of the berth when made up.

One of the new cars has been built and is to be sent to the St. Louis fair to be placed on exhibition.

ALDERMEN GAIN BY CITY'S LOSS.

Lawyers in Council Are Retained in Many Personal Injury Suits Against Chicago.

CLIENTS TRUST IN "PULL."

Committee Will Inquire Whether Influence Really Has Effect in Getting Damages.

There is profit for aldermen in the dilapidated condition of the city sidewalks and streets. A report now being prepared in the city attorney's office will show this to the aldermanic investigating committee and will give the names of members of the council who have worked for the city for $1,500 a year and against it for clients having personal injury claims.

A board or two off a plank sidewalk, an unprotected excavation in the street, a damaged viaduct, anything of that nature which may bring a damage suit against the city, may also bring a client to the alderman, if he be an attorney.

Ald. Edward J. Novak will appear as the record breaker in this class of business, but he will not be found alone. While serving the city in the last two years Ald. Novak has brought damage suits aggregating in amounts over $300,000 and has obtained over $8,000 in judgments for his clients.

City's Gain Alderman's Loss.

Ald. Novak's experience will prove that when an alderman goes out of his way to keep the sidewalks of his ward in good condition he is not promoting his own interests—if he be an attorney.

A wise policy for him to pursue would be to leave the holes in the sidewalk, wait for some one to fall through, and then represent the victim in a suit for damages against the city.

This report from the city attorney's office was ordered by Ald. Herrmann, chairman of the investigating committee, to ascertain who has been responsible for the confession of judgments against the city and what influences, if any, secured such treatment.

Two Questions Considered.

Two questions will be involved in considering the statement of facts. One will relate to a question of ethics—whether it is consistent with a high standard of morals for any city official to take sides against the city, whether his influence as an official counts at all or not.

The other will relate to the use of influence to secure the confession of judgments. It is doubtful if any tangible evidence can be obtained to show that the city has granted damage claims simply because an influential man represented the claimant.

The statement will show the names of politicians as well as members of the council. It will show that half the cases against the city are brought by lawyers with political connections. It will prove that these lawyers are favored by claimants, presumably because they are supposed to have influence in the settlement of cases.

The question of ethics can be settled without further evidence than that presented in the report of "judgments confessed" as made by the city attorney's office.

Compared with Directors.

The aldermen who have taken these cases against the city have been likened to the members of the board of directors of a corporation which allowed its property to fall into decay. As a result of this condition of the property citizens are injured and damage suits follow. Then the members of the board of directors sue the corporation in behalf of the injured persons.

Ald. Novak, as the records will show, has been the busiest alderman of them all. A partial examination of dockets in the city attorney's office in the last two years shows that he has represented twenty-six claimants against the city. He has now pending in the Superior court alone seven cases against the city.

In a majority of the cases it was a board or two off the sidewalk that caused the trouble and brought the alderman his client.

Does "Influence" Win Cases?

The feature which will be investigated by the committee is the confession of judgments by the city attorney's office. It is the theory of the claimants that if they are represented by an alderman with "influence" they stand a better show of getting damages against the city. A politician will do as well, even if he be not in the city council. That is said to account for the number of politicians who figure in these damage cases. The investigating committee will endeavor to learn whether political influence really ever does cause the city attorney's office to waive juries and confess judgments.

Shown by the Records.

A partial examination of books in City Attorney Smulski's office shows that the following aldermen and ex-aldermen have been interested in cases:

	No. of cases.
Ald. Novak	26
Ex-Ald. Litzinger	15
Ald. Dever	3
Ald. Butterworth	5

The law firm of Smulski & McGaffey appears as attorney for several clients against the city, but City Attorney Smulski, then alderman, declares that he never undertook any cases against the city, so the work must have been done by Mr. McGaffey. Ex-Ald. Goldzier also appears as attorney for claimants. Some of Ald. Dever's cases, it is said, were started before he became alderman.

Many Politicians Employed.

As for politicians—the records in the city attorney's office and the dockets of the courts are filled with the names of ward powers.

The Superior court docket shows the following number of cases pending in charge of politicians and men who have been connected with the city administration or the state government:

	No. cases.
Miles Devine, Divine & O'Connell	59
McGoorty & Pollock	33
Quinn O'Brien	31
P. S. O'Ryan	6
R. E. Burke	4
Kitt Gould	6

Next to Ald. Novak, Mr. Litzinger in his last two years as alderman was the busiest. While the city paid him $1,500 a year for aldermanic services he found occasion to start damage suits for over $150,000 and to secure judgments for $4,000.

The discrepancy between the amount claimed and the amount recovered might argue that the aldermen were poor champions, but many of the cases are still pending. And the investigation has not been completed as yet.

Ald. Butterworth's "average" is better than that of the other two. His claims were held down to $31,000, but the judgments he obtained amounted to $1,675.

Some of Ald. Novak's cases in which the city attorney agreed to a waiver of jury and agreed cases, with the amount of judgments granted, were as follows:

Claimant.	Damages asked.	Judgment granted.
John Wondra	$10,000	$2,200
Emelia Trost	5,000	200
Stephen Vronski	10,000	400
Katerina Hostalek	25,000	900
Mary Sonkup	20,000	650
Nicholas Blaha	10,000	700
Mary Weingart	10,000	1,800

Some of ex-Ald. Litzinger's cases, where an agreed case was taken into court, were the following:

Claimant.	Damages asked.	Judgment granted.
Isaak Sand	$10,000	$ 500
Charles Dallege	25,000	450
Bernhardina Kern	1,000	800
Patrick Keane	20,000	200
John Williams	5,000	125
Annie Lisoroweth	25,000	1,500
Annie Middie	10,000	300

Three of Ald. Butterworth's cases which yielded judgments were the following:

Claimant.	Damages asked.	Judgment granted.
Edith Evans	$ 1,000	$ 500
Susie Patton	10,000	275
Harriet Gates	10,000	900

The work of examining the records has not been completed by any means. The full returns may double the number of aldermen interested in these cases and may double the amounts.

Method of Procedure.

As the dockets show the method of procedure, it was something like this: Some person, usually a woman, falls through a hole in a plank sidewalk. An alderman or a politician is retained to represent the claimant and push the case against the city. A præcipe is filed. A conference is held with the city attorney. It is agreed to waive jury trial and submit a case to the court, naming a figure at which the city is willing to confess judgment.

In the case of Nicholas Blaha, Attorney James Roth brought suit, the claim being made for $10,000. Ald. Novak afterwards was brought into the matter. A jury then was waived by the city attorney and judgment entered for $700.

In many cases in which ex-Ald. Litzinger was interested the first attorney to take charge was P. J. O'Keeffe. Mr. Litzinger afterwards was brought in. In other cases Mr. Litzinger started the suit and Mr. O'Keeffe's name was substituted later in the proceedings.

Smulski Says Care Is Used.

"Since I have been city attorney," said Mr. Smulski, "no one has been allowed to confess judgment except myself. I have examined all facts where an agreed case was to be submitted." What was done before I can't say.

"When I was an alderman I refused to take cases against the city. I regarded it as questionable ethics for an alderman to be concerned in a suit against the city. Every alderman who is an attorney has numerous chances to take up this kind of work. People come to him and beg that he take their cases against the city. If he wants that kind of law business he can have all he can do."

Sidewalk Inspector Out.

Sidewalk Inspector Emil Bessa was ordered discharged during the day by the civil service commission.

The charges against him arose from the complaint of a property owner last August, who declared to the board of local improvements that he would not pay for the cement sidewalk then being constructed on Garfield avenue, between North Halsted street and Racine avenue, if better materials were not used. The walk between these two streets was laid by the R. S. Bloom company, and Bessa was detailed to inspect the work. After the complaint was received John Ericson, George Schilling, and Peter Kiolbassa, members of the local board, went to the spot with Chief Sidewalk Inspector Nicholas E. Murray and examined the ground and walk.

"In every place we tested except one," said Mr. Murray, "we found an insufficient depth of cinders put in under the cement. In one place there was only a trace and in another four inches of cinders. The ordinance and specifications required twelve inches. Where cinders should have been used and were not natural earth was used. In places the concrete was only four inches thick instead of five inches."

Effort to Keep Away a Witness.

A plain attempt to prevent the appearance of an important witness before the civil service commission when the hearing of Sidewalk Inspector J. J. Sullivan was called aroused the anger of the board and an investigation will be made.

Gustav Herman, manager for the clearing house of the Cook County Bottlers' Protective association, said:

"It is hard for me to get away to a hearing like this. This morning I was called up by some lawyer's office and asked to say, if my presence was desired here today, that it was my busy day and I could not come. But I called up Mr. Schilling of the local improvement board, who told me by all means to be present."

Mr. Schilling declared it evidently a strenuous effort to keep an important witness from the hearing, and the merit board members were indignant.

The latest charge is that Sullivan devoted his energies to work outside of the city's service while employed by the city and while on city time.

Favorable Report on Campion.

Eugene Sweeney, chief of the Second fire battalion, has forwarded to Fire Marshal Musham a favorable report on the charges of intoxication that have been made against Capt. Campion, son of First Assistant Marshal John Campion.

"I shall not discuss the report," Chief Musham said, "until I have made a further investigation. In general, Chief Sweeney's report denies the charges, though not entirely. I find from the records that Capt. Campion has been twice before the fire trial board, and that he was once punished by a fine of thirty days' pay."

Ald. Herrmann's committee held a meeting behind closed doors last night after the council meeting to consider means of handling the evidence which the aldermen will begin to consider again today.

In the police department charges that money has been received by detectives from gamblers and criminals will be sifted and charges of incompetence will be examined into.

In the fire department the question of purchase of supplies will be investigated. The department buys all its engines from the American Steam Fire Engine company, claiming that these engines are the best.

WESTERN ROADS PREPARE TO LAY OFF MANY MEN.

Announced That Southern Pacific Will Reduce Force by 1,200 at Once—Other Lines May Take Similar Action.

The Southern Pacific railroad is to follow the example of the New York Central and curtail expenses by laying off employés. The Harriman line is preparing, according to an authoritative report received in Chicago yesterday, to reduce its force by 1,200 men immediately. The chief cuts will be made in the shops, but there will be economizing all along the line.

No road entering Chicago would admit yesterday a definite intention of adopting this course, but rumors of a concerted move of that sort were in the air. The expenses of the roads are now declared to be out of proportion to their earnings. The fall movements of grain are well under way, and the usual decline of the season in other shipments has begun.

If the orders for layoffs come, they are not expected until the end of the month. Particular interest on the part of railroad men attaches to the course of the western Vanderbilt roads.

Refuses to Tell About Rebates.

James S. Watson, former president of the Porter Bros. company, refused to testify before Bankruptcy Referee Frank Wean yesterday regarding rebates which he is said to have received from transportation companies in connection with the large commission business of that concern. The witness took the position that such testimony might incriminate him, as the giving or receiving of rebates is an offense against the laws.

CITY EMPLOYES TELL OF GRAFT.

Engineers De Long and Goebel, on Trial, Make Chief McDonnell Defendant.

TAXED FOR "SLUSH FUND"

Intimation That Even This Is Sometimes Diverted for Private Purposes.

Charges of graft flew thick and fast last night in the trial of the city engineers, John De Long and Louis Goebel, before the civil service commission. How tribute is levied from city employés for campaign funds, and how, in the face of the merit law, they are suspended and discharged for failure to contribute, formed the burden of the testimony.

Though it was a hearing of charges of dereliction of duty preferred against the engineers by Chief Engineer P. E. McDonnell of the Fullerton avenue pumping station, it was the chief engineer who was really on trial last night. In substantiation of their defense that they were suspended for rebelling against the "slush fund" demands, Goebel and De Long related McDonnell's attempts to compel them to contribute and his threats of punishment if they refused.

Hint of Campaign Fund Diverted.

Intimations that the money for alleged campaign purposes sometimes was diverted to private uses were involved in the testimony of Charles Esher and James Shaw, who declared that McDonnell commanded them to invest their campaign assessment in mining stock which McDonnell's son had for sale. In addition there were stories of the perquisites from coal companies which McDonnell and De Long enjoyed at the Fullerton avenue station, and charges of McDonnell's interest in a repair company which did work there.

"Why were you transferred from the day to the night watch?" Attorney Western Starr asked of De Long.

"Because for four or five weeks I had the contract for unloading the coal at the pumping station. McDonnell had been making five cents a ton out of the work, but Cornelius Callahan of the Dearborn Coal company gave the job to me because McDonnell had been the cause of his paying $49 demurrage on cars. I took the contract, but couldn't make anything out of it because I had to pay too much for the unloading. McDonnell denied me the use of shovels and wheelbarrows, though these were used when he had the contract."

McDonnell's Duties Light.

"How often did you ever see McDonnell at the station?" asked Mr. Starr.

"He used to come around about three times a week. I have known him to stay away a week at a time."

"What about the campaign fund?"

"McDonnell spoke to me about contributing a few weeks before election last spring. He said it would take a lot of money to win the election, and that if we didn't win we'd all be knocked out of our jobs, because this civil service, he said, was a farce. He told me that I ought to give $50. Then, on April 3, when I came down to get my pay, I met McDonnell in the city hall. He asked me to give $50 to the fund. I told him I couldn't afford $50 or $25, but thought I could pay $10. He said he wouldn't introduce me to any one for a paltry $10. Then he asked me if I knew what happened to Esher. I said 'yes,' but that I wasn't Esher. McDonnell suspended Esher because he refused to contribute to the fund."

"Goebel and I then went up and paid $10 apiece to Blocki for the campaign fund," continued the witness. "The same day McDonnell sent me, with some others, to a Fifth avenue printing shop to get a lot of campaign literature. We took it to the pumping station, folded the posters, and had them distributed among the employés of Deering's. McDonnell also had campaign billboards put up from material owned by the city and with labor paid for by the city."

Long Delay in Repairing.

De Long then told how the pumping station was closed from Jan. 10 to April 15 for the purpose of repairs which could have been completed in eight days.

"The McDonnell Odometer company had the contract for the repairs," he said. "Al McDonnell, son of the chief engineer, had charge of the work. One of the family is president of the concern. The Deering company wanted the station running because they use the water for tempering. Their representatives came over and looked at the repair work. They said it should not have taken over two days to complete and declared that they would have been glad to pay for the job had they known it was to take so long."

De Long closed his testimony with a story of how he was compelled to pay for six tickets to the Watita league dance, although he had to return the tickets, which were sold to other employés, there not being enough to go around at the rate of six each. He paid $6 to Supervising Engineer William Donlan.

"McDonnell told me I ought to put up $90 —that's a month's pay," said Engineer Goebel in his testimony. "I told him I couldn't afford it and he asked me if I knew what happened to Esher. I said I did, but that I would get a job somewhere else rather than be held up like that. McDonnell explained that I would get off cheap at $50. Esher, he said, was asked to pay $45 and refused. So he got a suspension of a month, which meant a loss of $90."

Goebel told the same story of the Watita league tickets.

Esher Tells His Story.

"I was an engineer at the old Bridgeport pumping station when the second Harrison campaign came on," said Charles Esher. "McDonnell, who was chief there, started out to form a political club among the employés, and made out a list of contributions which we would be compelled to give. When I found he had me down for $90 I told him the scheme was illegal and he abandoned it. Then, a little later, McDonnell handed me a business card bearing the name of his son, Attorney Francis McDonnell, and told me to go to that address and buy $50 worth of mining stock from the son. I refused to buy the stock and was then suspended."

TUBE COMPANY FILES A BOND.

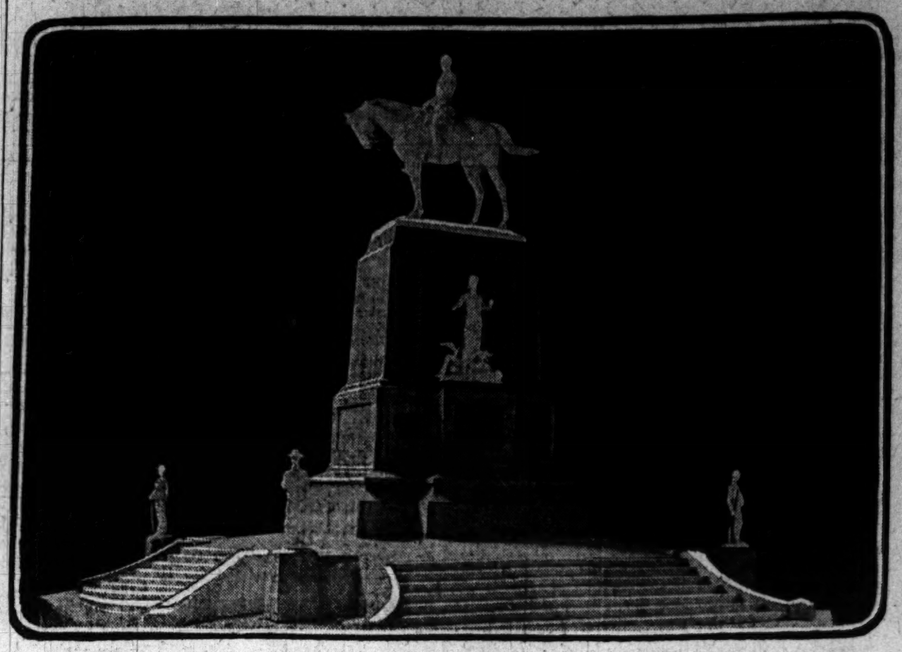

Prepares to Begin Laying Mail Conduits —Trouble Over Right to Patents Predicted.

The Chicago Pneumatic Tube company filed its bonds with the city clerk yesterday and formally accepted the ordinance given it just before council vacation. It was announced also that the company would begin at once the work of laying tubes in Indiana avenue from Twelfth street south to connect with the stockyards station.

The main bond of $250,000 was signed by the National Security company. In addition there were deposited bonds of the Boston Consolidated Store Service company to the par value of $50,000.

When the ordinance was passed Ald. Mavor, to insure good faith on the part of the promoters, had an amendment inserted compelling the company to deposit $50,000 in cash. Mayor Harrison, however, relieved the promoters of this obligation by inserting afterwards a provision reading "or negotiable securities," and these bonds are supposed to meet the requirement. As the Chicago promoters, W. R. Kerr and ex-Congressman Durborow, claim to have secured the right to use the patents involved from the Boston renters, they leasing from the New York company which owns them, the supposition is that the Boston people have loaned the bonds. Controller McGann said in the afternoon he had investigated the securities and found them valuable.

SHERMAN STATUE TO BE DEDICATED AT WASHINGTON ON THURSDAY.

The statue of Sherman by Carl Rohl-Smith, erected in Washington at the expense of the United States government, will be unveiled on Thursday. When Mr. Rohl-Smith died three years ago, leaving the statue unfinished, the contract for its completion was awarded to his widow, who employed Stephen Sinding and Lauritz Jensen of Copenhagen to finish the statue and the two groups, "War" and "Peace," Sinding doing the groups and Jensen the model of Sherman and his mount.

The statue stands just south of the Treasury building. It is mounted on a high and narrow pedestal, broadened at the base to subdue the appearance of great height. The pedestal is decorated with four low bas-reliefs, eight medallion portraits of Sherman's corps commanders, two allegorical groups, representing "War" and "Peace," four independent figures of enlisted soldiers, and two conventional designs representing the United States.

The extreme height of the group is 50 feet and its extreme breadth 58 feet. The pedestal is of New Hampshire granite. All the decorative figures are of bronze. The whole work cost $90,000.

POLICE CHIEF IS ACCUSED

PROTECTING THIEVES CHARGED BY A DETECTIVE.

Dennis Mackey Declares in an Affidavit That He Was Told to Stop Prosecution of Woman Arrested for Diamond Robbery—Victim Induced Not to Prosecute and the Thief Afterwards Boasts in Court of Her Political "Pull."

Chief of Police O'Neill, in an affidavit filed by Dennis Mackey, one of the detectives under fire in the civil service inquiry slated for next week, is accused of protecting thieves. Lottie Richards, for whom warrants still are unserved for larceny, is declared to have been shielded by the chief when detectives endeavored to have her indicted for robbery.

The affidavit, made by the detective before S. E. Wolf, a notary public, alleges that on Nov. 14, 1902, a complainant, whose name is not given, appeared at the central station and told of being robbed of a watch and diamond horseshoe pin by a woman at 47 East Randolph street.

Detectives were sent out with the complainant and Lottie Richards was pointed out by him as the thief. She was placed under arrest and on the way to the station endeavored to throw away a pin identified later by the complainant as his own.

The complainant was not booked, and, according to the story of the detective, was influenced by political friends of the prisoner and did not appear in court to prosecute. The woman was discharged in the Harrison street court next day and boasted of her political "pull."

The men who had arrested the woman then went before the grand jury in an effort to indict the woman until the complainant could be located. They assert they were called before Chief O'Neill, where the following conversation took place.

"What are you trying to do with this woman?" asked Chief O'Neill. "She did not steal that stuff."

"I intend to have her indicted," answered Mackey, "she is a well known thief and we can convict her on this charge."

"You let that case go by default," was the answer of the chief, and the affidavit ends simply, "We did it."

TELLS OF CAPTURE BY PIRATES.

Young Woman on Her Way East to Be Married Recounts Thrilling Adventures in the Pacific.

Some adventures in the Pacific that Robert Louis Stevenson overlooked were narrated yesterday by a young woman who reached Chicago on her way from Hongkong to New York, where she is to be married.

The young woman, who with her brother registered at the Great Northern hotel, is Miss Amelia Vanderlip, the daughter of a merchant in New York and Hongkong. Her fiancé is Richard Judkins of New York. Miss Vanderlip was visiting her uncle in Hongkong in June and started in his yacht to Manila, she explained, to take boat for San Francisco.

"One night," she continued, "a Chinese junk ran along side, and before we could prevent it we were captured by pirates. Mr. Vanderlip offered to pay any sum to secure our release, but the pirates feared a plot and would not accept his offer.

"On the eighth day my maid and I were placed in a small boat and rowed to one of the remote islands of the Japanese group. After several efforts, for I could not understand the language, I bribed a native to take a message to the nearest Japanese port, and thus we were rescued."

ASK $5,000 FOR APPENDICITIS.

Physicians Tell Jury of Scale of Prices, but Dr. Ferguson Gets Only $1,000.

A jury in Judge Hutchinson's courtroom yesterday awarded Dr. Alex. Hugh Ferguson a verdict of $1,000 for medical services rendered Frank L. Loring Jr. and his wife. Dr. Ferguson sued for $5,000.

The physician declared he performed an operation on Loring for appendicitis and, later, treated him for injuries sustained in a railroad accident. Another item was treatment given Mrs. Loring. Loring averred his salary is $15 a week and that the charges were too high for a person in his station of life to pay.

Several physicians were summoned to testify in the case. Dr. J. B. Murphy declared no regular price could be fixed. Some of his patients, he said, he had charged $5,000 for an operation for appendicitis. From others he had received nothing.

HORSE SHOW ON ONE TRAIN.

All Best Animals Displayed at Kansas City Coming to Chicago in Single Shipment.

Secretary Love of the Chicago Horse Show association is making arrangements to bring to Chicago the largest and most valuable shipment of horses and equipages ever made on a single special train. The Kansas City horse show ends one week from next Saturday night. Immediately after the show closes a train will be loaded with horses worth $500,000 and started for Chicago. The Chicago Horse Show association will pay nearly $3,000 for the transportation of these horses.

MAY CLOSE MALTHOUSES.

ENGINEERS OF AMERICAN COMPANY THREATEN TO STRIKE.

Big Concern Refuses Demand for Change from Two to Three Shift System—General Manager McCulloch of City Railway Company Tells Committee of Employes Their Requests Cannot Be Granted—Elevator Conductors Strike at the Fair.

Two thousand employés of the American Malting company may be thrown out of work before the close of the week if the management does not grant its twenty-eight steam engineers the scale of 37½ cents an hour and the eight hour day.

The same demands have been filed with the independent malting companies of the city, and the engineers are confident that with these companies the matter will be settled. All attempts to adjust the controversy with the American company management have failed and the men have been ordered to walk out as soon as notified.

The engineers are supported by the Steam Power council, and the firemen, electricians, and steamfitters will join in the strike should one be called. Their joint action will tie up the plants, temporarily at least.

The wages now paid vary from $80 to $90 a month for twelve hours' work a day. This arrangement makes but two shifts, and the rules of the Engineers' union provide for three.

Mr. McCulloch Says No.

General Manager Robert McCulloch of the Chicago City railway company refused to grant the demands of the employés when they again requested him to establish the "closed shop" and give the electric men a wage increase of four cents an hour. The stand of the company was expected by the men.

The conference between General Manager McCulloch and the men was arranged by General Organizer C. O. Pratt of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employés. Pratt opened the meeting by informing General Manager McCulloch of the action of the meeting of the men on Saturday night. He declared that the two important points at issue were the increase in wages and the "open shop."

General Manager McCulloch replied that the company cannot afford to raise wages. He said that if the city requires a large compensation before granting a new franchise the present wages will be too high for the company to pay. As for the "open shop," he announced that he and the members of the company would never put that into effect until forced by circumstances.

Meet Late in the Week.

According to the present plans the employés of every street and elevated road of the city will be called together on either Friday or Saturday night, told of the situation, and asked to give the south side men their support, even if that amounts to an individual levy of $1 a week.

When this action has been taken the representatives of the men will make another attempt to have the trouble adjusted.

"It's like a game of poker," said a car man. "Both of us have good hands and are bluffing. The outcome will depend on who does the calling."

The stand of the company was explained by General Manager McCulloch after the conference as follows:

"A week's time could not alter the conditions which compelled the company to reject the demands of the men. We cannot grant exclusive employment to union men. We cannot grant an increase in wages; conditions will not permit. We are ready to arbitrate and have told the men so. We can do nothing more."

Will Strike Against Rysdon.

Unless the Wm. Grace Construction company cancels its contract with E. A. Rysdon & Co. to put in the sheet metal work on the new Linné school building it will face a strike of practically all the men engaged on the job. The unions, especially those connected with the Associated Building Trades, are determined that their members shall not work where Rysdon employs his nonunion force.

The Linné school has been a source of trouble ever since the board of education let the bids. It was on this job that the sheet metal pool attempted to lift prices and were beaten by Rysdon. It was this job that was ready for the metal work when Rysdon made his charges.

A meeting of the business agents was called in the morning, and it was decided to take drastic action. A committee went to notify the Grace company, but were unable to reach the proper officials. Another attempt will be made today, and if the firm refuses to take action the men employed will seek other places to work.

Elevator Conductors Strike.

The elevator conductors and starters began a campaign for higher wages in the State street department stores by striking at the Fair. The men are now being paid from $11 to $12 a week and demand $14. When this was refused twelve of them walked out and twelve remained at work. General Manager J. L. Kesner promptly put nonunion men at work.

Reports were circulated during the day that the Franklin union of pressfeeders and the pressmen had patched up their quarrel and would unite in a fight against the Chicago Typothetæ. This was denied by the two organizations, and the pressfeeders declared that they will wage the battle alone. They have picketed the plants of the employers in the face of an injunction prohibiting such action.

ROOSEVELT TAKES A HAND

ADVISES GOVERNOR OF COLORADO REGARDING STRIKE SITUATION.

Thinks It Not Advisable to Have More than 500 Militia Men in Field at One Time — Chief Justice Campbell Returns to West After Conference with the President—Coal Strike Is Feared, but Every Effort Will Be Made to Prevent It.

Denver, Colo., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt has taken a hand in the strike trouble in Cripple Creek and has advised Gov. Peabody to reduce the force of soldiers in the field. The governor received a message from the president saying that at no time should more than 500 men be sent to camp. Chief Justice John Campbell was questioned closely by the president regarding the strike, and it was as much to get accurate information on that point as to discuss the political situation that Justice Campbell was summoned to Washington by President Roosevelt.

Advice from the nation's chief executive touching the threatened coal strike also was brought from Washington by the chief justice, and it is understood the president is to use his influence with President John Mitchell to prevent a strike in the state among the coal miners.

Acting on the president's advice, the governor is about to order 500 men home. None will be permitted to resign, but will be held in readiness for the coal strike, which seems inevitable. A detailed report of the situation has been forwarded to the president by the governor, and he is keeping him informed of the situation day by day.

The governor has said he will do all in his power to prevent the coal strike. "I will make another attempt to bring the laboring men and mine owners together," said he, "and will do all in my power to prevent a strike."

Fight Expected in Federation.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—A lively fight is promised at the convention of the Illinois Federation of Labor, which will hold its annual meeting here commencing tomorrow. It was supposed that Secretary James F. Morris of Springfield would have no opposition for reelection. When the Chicago delegation arrived this afternoon some of them started a boom for William Hefti of Belleville. They claim the Chicago delegation will be solid for Hefti for secretary and that he will have the support of a majority of the miners. It was said that the miners were deserting Morris because of his influence in the passage of the shot firers' bill.

Barney Cohen of Chicago wants to be president and spent the day consulting the Springfield delegates. He asked Secretary Morris for support.

Morris's delegates say that Morris will be reelected by a large vote, and that Hefti, who conducted his campaign for him a year ago, will not run against him. There seems to be some doubt whether Cohen will be elected, according to tonight's reports.

Strike Lawful, Interference Is Not.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—"Trades unions may cease to work for reasons satisfactory to their members, but if they combine to prevent others from obtaining work the combination is unlawful."

This in brief is the opinion handed down today by Justice Dean of the Pennsylvania Supreme court in a case involving the rights of unions as brought forth by the allied building trades organization and the plumbers' league of this city.

The decision sustains that by the local Court of Common Pleas. The cause of the strife between the two labor organizations was the attempt to force the plumbers' league into affiliation with the allied building trades organization.

Express Employes Threaten.

St. Louis, Oct. 12.—Employés of the Pacific Express company all over the United States, it is reported, are demanding an increase of 10 per cent in wages. Unless their demands are complied with they threaten to strike next Thursday evening.

STRIKE DELAYS SEWER WORK.

Construction in Thirty-ninth Street Soon Will Be Resumed, the Engineer Says.

Work on the Thirty-ninth street intercepting sewer will be resumed in a short time, according to W. A. Shaw, engineer in charge. The city's laborers, tunnel miners, and masons, hired by the day, have been on strike three weeks because of trouble at the Thirty-ninth street intake at the lake shore.

Mayor Harrison vetoed a suggestion that the work go on under police protection with a remark that stoppage of the work would induce the men to abandon the strike.

The hoisting engineers remain out, but Commissioner Blocki expects them to abandon the strike soon.

Conductor Charged with Larceny.

J. H. Manning, a conductor on the South Chicago City railway, yesterday was arrested on a charge of larceny made by another conductor, his roommate. With John H. Vann he had been rooming at 9635 Avenue L, and Vann asserts that he had $550, which he charges Manning with taking.

Discuss Jewish-Christian Unity.

"The Common Ground of Sunday School Teaching for Jew and Christian" is the subject for discussion by the Chicago Union of Liberal Sunday schools tonight in All Souls' church, Oakwood boulevard and Langley avenue. Rabbi Abraham Hirschberg, Dr. Dewhurst, and the Rev. Granville R. Pike will speak.

COUNCIL AVOIDS TRACTION TANGLE

Buries Measures Prohibiting All Permits and Ordering Trolley Poles Down.

MIGHT AROUSE COURT.

"L" Platform Advertisements Must Go—Unusual Electric Sign Law Introduced.

WORK OF THE CITY COUNCIL.

Placed on file resolutions forbidding issuance of any permits to street car companies and ordering all trolley poles down.

Referred to committee ordinance providing for referendum of Mueller law at spring election.

Referred opinion declaring legal the plan for formation of department of local transportation.

Defeated ordinances allowing advertising boards on elevated stations, and ordered all existing ones removed.

Referred request from Health Commissioner Reynolds for more room for sanitary inspection bureau.

Referred ordinance taxing "penny arcades" $100 a year.

Referred ordinance governing electric signs.

By the decisive vote of 46 to 16 the city council last evening decided not to meddle further in traction matters until the committee having them in charge presents a report for its action. This action was taken on a resolution and ordinance presented by Ald. Jozwiakowski instructing the commissioner of public works not to issue any more permits to street car companies without permission from the council and ordering all trolley poles removed after May 1 next.

Bennett Fights for Committee.

No sooner had the resolution regarding the issuance of permits been read than Ald. Bennett, chairman of the committee on local transportation, was on his feet. "It is useless," said he, "to send any more resolutions and orders of this kind to our committee. It is loaded down now with a lot of lumber it cannot handle. Especially is it useless to send us matters affecting the Union Traction company. That corporation is now in the hands of the federal court, and in many things the council is powerless.

"As to the permits it recently asked for, they are in the hands of the corporation counsel, who is considering them. He appreciates their importance and the care the company's lawyers took in drawing them up, and can be depended on to protect the city's interests. It is no time for the council to meddle in a matter where by meddling it may seriously jeopardize the rights of the city, and I move the rules be suspended so the resolution can be placed on file."

Rules Suspended; Measures Buried.

Ald. Foreman suggested a case where a broken rail might stop traffic and asked: "Are you going to delay all repairs until the next meeting of the council grants a permit?" Then the rules were suspended by a vote of 46 to 16, the roll call being:

Zimmer,

The resolution was then placed on file by a vote of 47 to 16, Ald. Moynihan, who had not voted the first time, joining the majority.

Ald. Jozwiskowski's ordinance declaring all trolley poles and wires a nuisance and ordering their removal after May 1 next from all parts of the city was not even dignified with a roll call. It was put on file by a practically unanimous vote.

The ordinance prepared by the corporation counsel for submitting the Mueller law for ratification or rejection by the people at the election next April was made a special order for the next council meeting. It is simply in accordance with the referendum section of the law and there is nothing in it preventing the passage of traction legislation before its submission if the council cares to.

"L" Platform Placards Doomed.

Ald. Hunter called up the ordinances favored by his committee on license, which gave permission to the elevated roads to maintain advertising billboards on their stations on payment to the city of 15 per cent of the gross receipts. Ald. Race sent up a substitute instructing the commissioner of public works to remove at once all such existing advertisements. Ald. Foreman made a supposedly jocose speech, in which he spoke of the advertimsements as combining artistic instruction with a liberal education, but his eloquence was wasted, as the council, by a vote of 40 to 21, defeated the ordinances and passed the Race substitute. So the existing advertisements will have to go.

Unusual Sign Presented.

At the request of City Electrician Elliott the corporation counsel sent in an ordinance regulating electric signs, the legality of which he does not vouch for, and which is bound to make trouble if it ever gets before the council for final action. Its most important provisions are:

That no signs except electric ones can be placed over any sidewalk, street, or alley.

That there is no maximum limit to the size signs can be made, although inferentially there is a minimum.

That all permits are to be granted by the city electrician instead of by the council.

The clause providing that all signs extending from a building must be electric ones, requires that all letters must be at least six inches in height and all signs constructed of letters formed by incandescent lights or of transparent glass with the lights behind them. The signs with painted letters illuminated with a border of electric lights will not do unless the same number of lights are used as would be necessary if the other kinds. All signs must be kept lighted until 11 p. m.

Sanitary Bureau's Quarters Unfit.

Health Commissioner Reynolds sent for reference to the finance committee a statement of the condition of the sanitary inspection bureau, in which he said that room 8, which it occupies, is small, dark, and insanitary, and that to this fact might be attributed much of the complaint made against the bureau as to inattention to callers and lack of system in caring for the records.

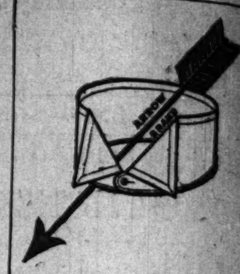

"The situation," said Dr. Reynolds, "is intolerable—a disgrace to the city. Words cannot picture it."

The commissioner asks that room 22 be assigned to the bureau.

Other Measures Introduced.

Ald. Sloan asked for a stay of one year in the enforcement of the ordinance compelling the removal of vaults, but on Ald. Mavor's demand that the health department be not so hampered it was sent to the finance committee to be buried.

A request from members of the real estate board that the building ordinance be modified, especially as to the inclosing of elevators with brick walls, was also sent to this committee.

DENEEN THROWS DOWN GAUNTLET.

Big Crowd Cheers Announcement of Candidacy for Governorship.

SUPPORT IN HOME WARD

Declares He Still Will Be a Republican, No Matter Who Wins Fight.

Surrounded by his neighbors and in the presence of 2,000 republicans of his home ward, Charles S. Deneen announced last night that he was a candidate for governor. In making this announcement, he said:

"The power vested in the governor by the constitution and laws of the state calls for great administrative ability, and, in the past, has enlisted the best efforts of some of our ablest and noblest men. Therefore it is a high honor you confer upon me in deeming me worthy to fill that exalted position. As your representative, now that I formally enter the field as a candidate for the nomination of governor of this state, I shall use every honorable endeavor to secure it, and trust that the event will favor our joint labors."

Is Greeted with Ovation.

No Chicago candidate ever went into the race for an office under more favorable auspices. Mr. Deneen was met by a great crowd of the men who know him best and long have been associated with him in political work. Long before the hour appointed republicans of the Thirty-first ward began to assemble at Boulevard hall, Garfield boulevard and Halsted street, and when Mr. Deneen arrived, escorted by a committee, the place was packed with men and women who cheered and hailed him as "the next governor of Illinois."

There was a committee on resolutions, composed of E. C. Fields, William Radhge, John Bayne, F. G. Cochrane, and F. L. Hugelets. They reported the following, which was enthusiastically adopted:

Resolved, By the republicans of the Thirty-first ward of Chicago, in massmeeting assembled, that, after many years of association with Charles S. Deneen, we hold him in such high esteem as our neighbor, as an able, conscientious, fearless state's attorney, as a loyal and earnest republican, as an upright, fair minded citizen, that we hereby request him to become a candidate for the office of governor of Illinois, for which position he is eminently fitted by ability, character, and experience in public service. We hereby pledge ourselves to give his candidacy our hearty and active support.

Then there were loud calls for Mr. Deneen.

Mr. Deneen Speaks.

In reply to the request, as expressed in the resolution, Mr. Deneen said:

"I cannot express in words the gratification I feel, and I never shall forget this hour and this scene. I have lived in this neighborhood sixteen years, and I was the first committeeman chosen to represent this ward in our party councils after the annexation to the city fourteen years ago.

"I have been chosen by you at each successive convention since then. For nearly ten years of that time I have represented you on the state committee. I have represented you in public office, as member of the legislature, and state's attorney for nine years. All these public honors are due to you. The only return I have been able to make was an honest effort to discharge the duties connected with them in a way that would meet your approval.

"The office of governor is a high and honorable one. It is the chief executive office in the state. Its occupant embodies for the time being the collective conscience and will of the whole people. Through his appointees he is responsible for the care of the afflicted, the unfortunate, the dependent, and the delinquent, and a neglect on his part to exercise proper care in the selection of public servants works irreparable injury to the general public.

Service Test of Merit.

"Efficient service is the test of merit. This test should be applied to every department of public administration and tenure of office should depend upon it. The obligation of the public servant should be to the people by whom he is employed and to whom he should render service.

"This principle applies with even greater force to elective officers. In vain are wholesome measures proposed or enacted into law if men are so nominated that they are fettered in advance by private and secret obligations which prevent a due administration of the law or the fair consideration of proposed remedial legislation.

"To that end a primary law should be enacted which would give the fullest opportunity to every member of his party in every county in the state, to have a direct influence in the nomination of public servants, so that the obligation of the elective officer may be coextensive with his party.

Declares Loyalty to Party.

"I know I voice the sentiment of every republican here, as well as my own, when I say that once the selection of a candidate has been made, in the event the nomination goes to another, the chosen nominee of our great party will receive no more loyal support than that which you and I shall give him.

"As to state policies, I deem it unnecessary at this time to speak further, but shall from time to time announce my views as occasion affords or calls for. Again thanking you for the high and distinguished honor which you have conferred upon me, and accepting with it also the burdens and obligations incident to the arduous and extended campaign which will be necessary to success—a campaign in which I can do nothing without your continued support and approval—I solicit your invaluable aid in this great undertaking."

Big Club Is Organized.

At the beginning, the Charles S. Deneen republican club of the Thirty-first ward was formed with the officers of the regular ward organization as its leaders. Walter Page was elected president, and John W. Utesch, secretary. Mr. Page presided. A call of the ward by precincts showed that the club starts with a membership of 5,862. That number of republicans have signed the petitions and signified their determination to take part in the campaign.

Speeches were made by Congressman William W. Wilson, Senator Carl Lundberg, Representatives Chester W. Church and N. J. Nagel, Roy O. West, A. G. Anderson, Francis F. Saddler, H. R. Stewart, John W. Marr, and several others. Mr. West said that his ward, the Thirtieth, soon would be in the field with as strong a club as that of the Thirty-first.

LOWDEN OPENS UNLUCKY ROOM

Takes Possession of Headquarters Where Haney and Sherman Lost—Cullom a Winner in Same Place.

When Col. Frank O. Lowden opened his headquarters at the Great Northern hotel yesterday afternoon his campaign manager, Charles M. Hughes, suggested that they must try to break the record of the rooms.

"Because," he said, "these are the quarters from which Haney conducted his fight four years ago when he was running for governor and Cherry and Sherman had their headquarters here during the speakership contest last fall. All those men, as you know, failed to land."

"Yes," Mr. Lowden replied, "but Senator Cullom did not lose. It was in these rooms that he made his memorable fight against what at the time were thought to be great odds and came out victorious. First Haney had them and lost. Then Senator Cullom had them and won. Next came Cherry and Sherman together and they did not land. My turn comes now, and it is on the winning number."

ORPHANS HAVE GALA DAY.

TALCOTT SHOE MEMORIAL GLADDENS LITTLE HEARTS.

Each of the 250 Children at the Chicago Asylum Made the Proud Owner of New Footwear—Small "Customers" Are Particular—Feast Concludes the Celebration—Annual Reception and Exhibition at the Home for the Friendless.

"Please, nurse, can't I hold my shoes till I go to sleep?"

"No, dear, I'm putting them under your bed—see? Now, good night."

"Good night—O, nurse, will they surely be there in the morning?"

And then, as the door closed on the matron, a little, white robed figure crept out of the coverlets and peered over the edge of the bed. There peeped the shoes from beneath the cot, toes in and side by side, just as they peeped from beneath 249 other little cots in the Chicago Orphan asylum last night.

Yesterday was "Shoe day"—at the big south side institution for homeless children. The shoeman came early and staid late, and fitted every boy and girl in the place with a brand new pair of shiny, black shoes. Then the little folk received more than 200 of their friends in the society world, and wound up the day with a feast and a funny story by Bishop Cheney.

Small Customers Are Particular.

"No, I don't want button shoes—girls has button shoes an' I ain't goin' to be girl," almost sobbed little Frank Peters when threatened with a species of footgear all buttoned up the side. Frank got lacers.

"Is they holes in the heels fer skates?" asked another before he closed his deal with the shoe man.

It took just six hours to fit all the pairs of feet from Marie, who is 16 years old, to Sammy, who is 4 months. Sammy was the last, as the shoe man strictly observed the rule of seniority, and Sammy's gurgle, as he held aloft a pair of beribboned, crocheted things of no particular shape, announced that the last measure had been taken.

But if the children's eyes grew big and round at sight of the array of footgear, they fairly bulged as they swept the tables spread with the holiday dinner. The invited grown-ups stood four ranks deep around the dining room when the little wards took their seats. Then there ensued a painful interval for the little boys who had to sit with folded hands while the girls sang songs and recited. At that not a few fingers strayed into the red and white jelly on the plates and tested the frosting on the cake before Bishop Cheney rose and said:

Guess Bishop Cheney's Puzzle.

"I knew a little boy once about sixty-two or sixty-three years ago who wanted a pair of boots awfully bad. They wore boots in those days that came almost to the knees, and the little boy was promised a pair for Christmas. And Christmas morning he stole down to the fireplace and there they were, just as his pa had promised. Then the little boy hurried to pull them on, but alas! They were too small. And the little boy boohooed as if his heart would break. Now, who do you suppose the boy was?"

"You," shrieked the children.

"Shoe day" became an established holiday at the Orphans' asylum through the charity of Mrs. Mancell Talcott, who gave $5,000 in 1882 as the nucleus of a shoe fund. The endowment was dedicated to her husband's memory and Oct. 12, his birthday, was chosen as Shoe day. The interest on the original gift more than pays for the footgear needed annually.

At the reception in connection with the children's celebration, Mrs. B. B. Botsford, the president of the institution, was assisted by the board of forty women directors. William Fuller, who gave the building now occupied, was also present.

At the Home for Friendless.

It was a gala day, too, at the Chicago Home for the Friendless, Fifty-first and Vincennes avenue, a few blocks away. More than 700 persons visited the big building to attend the annual reception and meeting of the board of directors.

A display was made of the cooking, sewing, and other work of the children.

Miss E. Babbitt, the superintendent, announced that the home now has a capacity for 500 children, and the number accommodated during the last year averaged more than 300.

'PHONE CALL SAVES MAN $900.

Justice Jones of Whiting, Ind., Aroused at Midnight, Drives Burglars from His House.

The man who calls you up on the telephone in the middle of the night to ask you a trivial question is not always a nuisance. If one of the litigants in a suit to be tried in Justice G. W. Jones' court in Whiting, Ind., today had not called the justice from bed to the telephone last night the man of law would have been robbed of $900. It was midnight when Justice Jones answered the 'phone. As he did so he saw two men jump from a rear window. Justice Jones is also city clerk of Whiting and had collected $900 in taxes. It is believed that the robbers knew of this and had planned to steal the money.

Section 2—Joseph J. Duffy	675,137

NIGHT LIBRARY TO COST $5,000.

Directors Discuss Plans to Allow Public Access to Books in Evening and on Sunday.

The question of once more opening the public library at night and on Sunday was discussed by the directors at their meeting last evening. The additional cost was estimated at $5,000. The matter was introduced by the Rev. George D. Heldman, who suggested that the circulating department be kept open a certain length of time after 6 o'clock in the evening to accommodate working people. A committee was appointed to report on the plan at the next meeting.

FRIENDLESS LITTLE WARDS OF TWO GREAT INSTITUTIONS HAVE A DAY OF HAPPINESS.

[From photographs taken for The Tribune.]

DINNER FOR FRIENDLESS BABIES

SHOE DAY AT CHICAGO ORPHANS' ASYLUM

Yesterday was a "day of days" at the Chicago Orphan asylum and at the Home for the Friendless. The two great buildings on the south side sheltered none but smiling faces and light hearts. At the former it was "Talcott shoe day," and each child was made the proud possessor of a pair of new shoes. At the Home for the Friendless it was an equally exciting occasion, for the day brought the annual reception and display of the children's handiwork to over 700 visitors. Tired but happy were the little ones, who fell asleep last night to live the day over again in the land of dreams.

IS A WOMAN OF MYSTERY.

FRIENDS OF KOHN AWAIT ALLEGED WIDOW'S ACTION.

Records at Lake Beulah, Wis., Show No Evidence of Ceremony Edith Webb Says Was Performed—She Is Expected to at Once File Will She Asserts She Holds and Begin Legal Proceedings to Establish Her Claim to Property.

Edith Webb, known also as "Dot" Thurman, the young woman with Abraham H. Kohn at the time of his death in a San Francisco sanitarium, is expected to reach Chicago this morning. It is supposed she will at once take steps to file the alleged will she says she has in her possession, and endeavor to establish that she is Kohn's widow.

According to her assertion, the woman was married to Mr. Kohn at Lake Beulah, Wis., on May 17. Examination of records at Lake Beulah yesterday, however, showed no evidence of such a ceremony. As she says she has known Kohn little more than a year, friends of the young man do not believe she will claim a common law marriage. They are awaiting the time when she will disclose the nature of the documents she says she holds.

The body of Mr. Kohn, in charge of the negro nurse, Philip Jones, who went to the coast with the invalid a week ago, will reach Chicago next Thursday.

According to San Francisco reports, the woman took possession of personal property valued at nearly $3,000 as soon as Mr. Kohn died, asserting the right as his widow.

"Dot" Thurman was the woman whose name figured in the case of William B. Dunton in 1901. Dunton took $20,000 from the Union National bank, in which he was chief clerk. He was aided, it was charged, in covering up his pilfering by George S. Forbes, the receiving teller, who appears to have acted solely out of friendship for Dunton. When the latter disappeared no suspicion attached to Forbes, but conscience weighed so heavily upon him that on Sept. 16, 1901, he shot and killed himself in a hotel in South Chicago. He left a letter of confession.

Several weeks passed before Dunton's arrest in the east in company with the Thurman woman. He was brought back, tried, convicted, and sent to Joliet for five years. The woman remained in the east a while and returned to Chicago several months afterwards.

THIEF ANSWERS TELEPHONE WHILE ROBBING A DWELLING.

Intruder's Daring Almost Causes His Capture in the Residence of W. P. Needham, 1219 West Monroe Street.

A telephone bell ringing in the residence of W. P. Needham, 1219 West Monroe street, so disturbed a "flat worker" yesterday that he answered the call and unwittingly caused a police alarm.

Mrs. Needham, whose husband is a superintendent for the Union Traction company, had been delayed while shopping, and, fearing that her husband had arrived at home before her, telephoned to the house. After several minutes' wait the bell was answered.

"Is that you, dear? I'll be home in an hour; wait for me," Mrs. Needham said.

"O rl', o rl', dear," a voice growled in reply.

"I don't believe that was my husband's voice," declared Mrs. Needham to her companion. "I'll call the police." The Warren avenue police station responded to her call, and when Mrs. Needham reached the house it was surrounded by policemen, who had made a vain search for the burglar. Clothing and furs valued at more than $1,000 had been packed, but left behind by the thieves. A watch owned by Mrs. Needham and several trinkets were the only articles secured.

Oak Park residents are alarmed at the activity of burglars in the suburb.

Early yesterday morning the residence of C. H. Martin, 137 Scoville avenue, was visited by a burglar, who attempted to open a dining room window. He was heard by Mrs. Martin and fled. Soon afterward, at the house of Fred Gerlach, 319 South Sixty-fourth avenue, one of the servants was awakened by an intruder. The maid screamed and the man escaped.

The residence of A. N. Fiske, 125 South Elmwood avenue, was also entered. Mrs. Fiske's screams frightened the thief away.

GO TO INSPECT TERRITORIES.

Members of the Congressional Committee Start for Arizona, New Mexico, and Oklahoma.

The claims of Arizona, New Mexico, and Oklahoma for admission to statehood will be thoroughly investigated by a commission made up of United States senators and representatives which left Chicago at 8 o'clock last night in a special train over the Santa Fé.

The congressmen, who will make the trip as the guests of Congressman William R. Hearst, will visit all the important cities in the three territories, returning to Chicago on Oct. 22.

Among those in the party were Senator-Elect Overman and Congressmen Klutz of North Carolina, Powers of Maine, Lloyd of Missouri, Griggs of Georgia, Robinson and Miers of Indiana, Rainey of Illinois, Emerich and McAndrews of Chicago, Crowley of Illinois, Campbell of Kansas, and Samuel Power of Indian territory.

TELLS OF TRIPLE MURDER

ALLEGED CONFESSION MADE TO SUPPOSED FRIEND.

Detectives Declare They Overheard Earl Ellsworth in Chicago Give Details of the Killing of His Parents in Woodstock, Ill.—Crap Is Laid by "Chum"—Deed Committed to Get $7,000 Life Insurance—Two Other Men Are Implicated.

After confessing that he had committed a triple murder to a man he had known more than a year and believed was his best friend Earl Ellsworth discovered that his confidant was a private detective. The confession into which he had been trapped had been overheard by several witnesses.

If the confession, as announced by City Detectives Gallagher and Thompson, who claim to have heard it, is true, what was believed to be a double murder and suicide really is a triple murder, and Earl Ellsworth, now under surveillance, charged with the crime, shot his father, his mother, and a man who boarded with his parents for $7,000 life insurance.

The crime was committed in Woodstock, Ill., two years ago. William Ellsworth, a blacksmith, and his wife and Amos Anderson, a boarder, were found dead in an upper room of the Ellsworth home, and two partly emptied revolvers on the floor told how their deaths had occurred.

Accuses Father of Crime.

Earl Ellsworth, 24 years old, the son, was the only person who could throw light on the tragedy. He told the police that his father, while angered by jealousy, killed the man and woman and committed suicide. This was the verdict returned by the coroner's jury, but the life insurance company in which Benjamin Ellsworth held a $7,000 policy suspected a plot and employed private detectives. Enough evidence was found to cause the arrest of Earl Ellsworth, but he was released on bonds of $8,000. Then he came to Chicago, and while arranging for his defense at the trial made the acquaintance of a man with whom subsequently he became intimate.

The stranger, a detective, told the young man he could secure his acquittal, but demanded that Ellsworth make a full confession. The detective persuaded Ellsworth to go to a room in the Temple Court building and there he induced him to repeat the story of the tragedy.

Holes had been bored in the walls of the room and at each a policeman was listening. Earl Ellsworth's confession, the detectives say, involves two other men whose names the police have and for whom they are searching.

Tells of the Tragedy.

The following is said by Detective Thompson to be a part of the alleged confession of Ellsworth:

"I told father frequently that mother and Anderson were too friendly, and finally, after I had him thoroughly sore, I got mother and Anderson in one of the upstairs rooms and sent father up with a gun. He began to shoot at Anderson and I think he hit him. Anderson fell. I was watching from a peep hole, and, after Anderson fell, I went down and killed father and then mother.

"After I saw they were dead I placed a gun on the floor by the side of each of the men to make it look like a duel. Then I got the notes out of father's desk and put them in my pocket."

Repudiates the "Confession."

Matt Pinkerton, head of the agency employed by the insurance company, repudiates the supposed confession and says the two detectives are seeking notoriety.

State's Attorney L. D. Lowell, at his residence in Nunda, Ill., last evening said he believed Earl Ellsworth's confession to be genuine. Detectives Gallagher and Thompson declared last night that he had been arrested by a constable and taken to Woodstock, but in Woodstock this was denied.

VISITOR CUTS HIS THROAT.

Andrew McCormack Kills Himself While at Owen Rogers' House in Twenty-fifth Street.

Andrew McCormack, 29 years old, committed suicide by cutting his throat last evening when at the home of Owen Rogers, 379 East Twenty-fifth street. McCormack, who lived at 2346 Canal street, had gone to the house early in the evening and complained of being ill. He asked Rogers to go to a drug store and get some medicine for him. When Rogers returned he found McCormack lying on the floor, his throat cut. McCormack had been out of employment and despondent.

While on his way to work, at 5 o'clock yesterday morning, Patrick Kennick, 4940 Lowe avenue, found the body of a man hanging by the neck from the limb of a tree at Fifty-fifth street and Oakley avenue. The body was removed to 5137 Ashland avenue, where an inquest will be held today. The police have not yet found out who the man was.

Mrs. Celia Murphy, who drank carbolite acid Sunday morning at her home, 6709 Vincennes avenue, died at 7 o'clock last evening. Her husband, James Murphy, is expected home today. His absence is said to have caused the woman's suicide. He has been living in Pittsburg some months.

Despair because of his deafness is supposed to have caused Charles Chapman, 25 years old, to commit suicide by swallowing acid. He roomed at 4827 State street.

Floods Have Subsided

Along the line of the Lackawanna railroad from Buffalo to New York, and through trains are now running on time. No damage was done on the main line.

ACCIDENTS IN THE STREET KILL OR INJURE MANY.

One Man Meets Instant Death in Effort to Recover Lunch Basket Dropped Off Cable Train in Milwaukee Avenue.

In jumping off a south bound Milwaukee avenue car yesterday to recover his lunch basket, which he had accidentally dropped, Ludwig Kuhn, 42 years old, 39 Churchill street, was struck by a north bound cable car and instantly killed. The car on which Kuhn was riding to his work was crowded with passengers on their way to the downtown district. Many of the passengers were compelled to stand on the platforms and footboard.

Kuhn was holding to one of the supports at the end of a seat. In changing his position the lunch basket which he was carrying under his arm dropped, and he jumped after it.

The warning shout of the motorman on the approaching car only attracted the attention of the passengers of both trains. Kuhn was struck, and when the cars were stopped he was dead.

Several other persons were killed and injured during the day in other accidents.

The Dead.

GUTH, HYMAN, 33 years old, 8330 Emerald avenue, driver for Henry Guth, butcher, 3915 Halsted street, fell from wagon at Thirtieth and Halsted streets, the wheels passing across his chest. Taken to the Provident hospital, where he died at noon.

LAAS, JOHN, porter in saloon of Henry Haggard, 941 Blue Island avenue, found dead in the morning at foot of stairs leading to the basement. Laas' neck was broken, and it is supposed he fell down the stairs.

Scales, Samuel, 964 Grand avenue; knocked down by peddler's wagon at Western and Grand avenues, and sustained injuries that may result in death. The peddler escaped.

POLITICS IN INCURABLES' HOME.

Employes on Trial Are Charged with Accepting Money for Using Their "Pull."

Evidence offered in Judge Kersten's court yesterday afternoon was to the effect that politics had played a part in securing the admission of a patient into the home for incurables. Ole S. McCracken and Enos E. McEldowney are now on trial in the Criminal court as a result of the desire to "do a favor."

The state charges that McCracken and McEldowney are guilty of appropriating $200 which rightfully, it is alleged, belongs to the institution. The defendants say the money was given them and they earned it in using their political influence in behalf of the patient from whom they accepted the money.

John Ramer was anxious to be admitted to the institution, and enlisted the efforts of the defendants, it is charged. McCracken says he interested Ald. Nagle in the matter, and, because of his good work in politics, was enabled to secure recommendations from many politicians.

Although McCracken was told by officials of the institution that they usually expected not less than $300 from applicants, he managed to secure the admission of Ramer, he testified, by producing $100.

WILL BE WELL SHOD THIS WINTER.

BERWYN MEN WOULD LYNCH MAN ACCUSED BY A GIRL.

Many Women and Children Recently Have Been Annoyed, and Citizens Try to Take Law Into Own Hands.

Incensed at the apparent laxity of the police, seventy-five angered citizens of Berwyn tried to take the law into their own hands and punish Arthur Warren, 26 years old, after he is alleged to have attacked Elsie Sellke, an 8 year old Berwyn girl. The man was rescued by special policemen last Sunday afternoon after he had been severely beaten by the crowd.

Constable Charles Fairvalley and the residents of Berwyn believe Warren guilty of attacking more than a dozen defenseless children and women since last June. He will be confronted today at the county jail by several of his alleged victims, whose parents, if they are able to identify him, will take the cases before the grand jury.

Other persons recently attacked by an unidentified man, believed by the police to be Warren, were:

Fennes, Mabel, 12 years old; Twelfth street and Euclid avenue.

Fey, Grace, 13 years old; Lexington and Euclid avenues.

Kelly, Nora, 12 years old; Twelfth street and Oak Park avenue.

OCCULTIST FALLS INTO TRAP.

Advertisement Leads to Arrest of Man Supposed to Be Wanted in Boston.

An advertisement in a morning paper announcing his desire to meet persons wishing their fortunes told, and telling of his occult powers, led to the arrest last evening of Harry Baker, 2242 Michigan avenue, at the Auditorium hotel, where he had gone to meet a prospective client.

Baker is charged with being a man for whom the police of Boston have been searching for two years to answer to thirteen indictments on charges of larceny.

The man is accused of swindling persons in Boston of sums aggregating more than $2,000 by winning their confidence after representing himself as a fortune teller and mind reader. Detective Gallagher saw the man's advertisement and laid a trap.

CHARGES "PULL," TRIED; RESIGNS.

Faith Moore, Kindergartner, Learns It Is Dangerous to Accuse School Board.

REFUSES TO RETRACT.

Believes Classroom Gossip When She Fails to Secure Coveted Transfer.

While half a dozen trustees of the Chicago board of education were groping about in search of a suitable punishment for Faith Moore, a kindergarten teacher who had charged she was the victim of a "pull," the young woman checkmated her impending humiliation by resigning. In just one minute her resignation had been accepted. Then Faith Moore wept.

Miss Moore's troubles began when she saw a position she coveted go to another teacher, Miss Edith Schneider. Miss Moore, as she explained to the school management committee, had been trying for four years to secure a transfer from the Bernhard Moos to the John C. Coonley school, which is much nearer her home. When Miss Schneider and not Miss Moore was sent to the Coonley school Miss Moore decided that "pull" did it. A little investigation, a little talk with other teachers in which "pull" was freely mentioned, and Miss Moore was convinced she was a victim of school politics. She so declared in a letter to President Harris, implicating Trustee Mark and Supt. Cooley. The former, she said, had used his influence in behalf of Miss Schneider, while the superintendent, so she charged, had yielded to the influence. Miss Moore's hearing yesterday was the result.

Teacher Will Not Retract.

When questioned Miss Moore stated that she had received her information regarding the "pull" at second hand, from a friend of Miss Schneider. She declined to admit that she had made a "serious mistake," and insisted that her charge was true.

"This woman has made the charge that Trustee Mark and Supt. Cooley used a 'pull' against her," said President Harris, after the teacher had been heard. "I say she should be suspended. I make the motion she be suspended."

"Suspension is too harsh treatment for this little woman," interposed Supt. Cooley.

Miss Moore was asked again if she would retract. She declined to do so.

"Do you know what moral turpitude means?" asked President Harris.

"Yes, it means that Mr. Cooley was influenced by Mr. Mark," she replied.

Then President Harris declared that Miss Moore should be severely reprimanded.

At this point the teacher arose and walked to the end of the long table, about which the trustees sat, her eyes filled with tears.

"Saves Trouble" by Resigning.

"Just a minute, gentlemen," she said; "I will save you the trouble by resigning."

For a moment there was silence. Then President Harris spoke: "Well, that's about the best thing you could do," said he.

"I did not want to make any trouble as I did," Miss Moore said later. "I have been treated unfairly by the board, but I don't see what I have done that they should reproach me in open meeting as they did.

"President Harris asked me to prove what I had said about a 'pull' and I could not do it, as I only knew what I had been told. When I went before the committee this afternoon everybody began asking me questions. I saw that I was unpopular with nearly all the men present and so I resigned."

"This teacher has deliberately accused Supt. Cooley of bending to influence," continued President Harris after the meeting. "Had I thought that charge was true I would have suspended Cooley as I would have suspended a janitor. There must be no 'pull' or charges of 'pull.'"

Supt. Cooley said that he was sorry Miss Moore had resigned, and that he would do all in his power to give her another trial, if she desired it.

Supt. Cooley reported that the pupils of the burned Graham school would be cared for at the Fallon, the Lake High, and the old Graham schools.

SAYS WIFE'S JEALOUSY HAS WRECKED HIS HAPPINESS.

Ruined Business Is Attributed to Green Eyed Monster in Pleadings Filed by Dr. Emil Melze.

Asserting that at first the persistent attentions, and later the persecutions, on the part of the woman whom he married four years ago have ruined his business, Dr. Emil A. Melze pleaded yesterday for nonattachment before Judge Holdom. He had been ordered to show cause why he should not be adjudged in contempt of court for failure to pay alimony.

Melze alleges that when he married, Feb. 15, 1898, he was a member of the dental firm of Melze & Sons, and had an income of $350 a month. His wife objecting to his remaining a member of the firm because women assistants were employed he was forced to open an office for himself. Then, he says, she spoiled all prospects of business success by insisting on accompanying him to his office every day and bothering his patients. Finally, in despair, he says, he fled to Quincy, Ill., but his wife followed him.

Says He Used Hot Ashes.—Complaining that her husband, Frank B. McIlroy, to whom she has twice been married, preferred the company of other women, and that he treated her cruelly, on one occasion burning her with hot ashes, Mrs. Harriet McIlroy asks legal separation, alimony, and the right to resume her maiden name, Harriet Gulian.

Mrs. Murphy Makes Charges.—Mrs. Dorothy Moulton Murphy asks a divorce from her husband, John H. Murphy, 2742 Michigan avenue. The names of several women and downtown hotels figure in the proceedings she has brought.

Minus the partitions, gilded trappings, and the convenient private office, the half-basement at 97 Dearborn street, occupied by George Silver as a dive before Mayor Harrison revoked his license, last night was opened as a saloon by Adolph Hasterlik.

"I have nothing to do with that man Silver," Hasterlik said. "I do not know him and never have met him. Look about the room for yourself and you will see that the old order of things has passed away. Silver has not even a 'look in' here."

Hasterlik has conducted a saloon at 44 Fifth avenue.

MANY RUMORS OF LOST MAN.

Harry Springer's Father Reported Both as Dying and on His Way to Evanston to Seek Son.

Word was received in Evanston yesterday that the father of Harry Springer, the missing Northwestern student, is dying at his home in South Dakota. The news that his son was missing, it is said, caused Mr. Springer's illness. Other rumors had it that the father had started for Evanston to aid in the search for the young man. Herbert Springer, member of the life saving crew, and brother of the missing young man, said he had received no word of his father's illness. The missing man has been traced to the Northwestern depot, but after he boarded a train supposedly for Chicago last Wednesday night he disappeared. His brother believes he is alive.

MIKADO HOLDS A COUNCIL OF WAR.

Negotiations Between Russia and Japan Seem to Be at a Deadlock.

NEW ALARM IN ENGLAND

Feared at London That Great Britain May Be Drawn Into the Affair.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Oct. 13, 1 a. m.—Russia and Japan apparently have reached a deadlock in the negotiations at Tokio, and yesterday afternoon the emperor of Japan summoned the premier, the minister for war, the minister for the navy, and the minister for foreign affairs to a special conference, that to observers here looked much like a council of war.

News Is All Warlike.

Nearly all the news from the far east this morning is warlike. The report that Japan is landing troops at Na-San-Pho on the Corean coast, has not been contradicted.

Japanese civilians are leaving Port Arthur. The Russian forces at New-Chwang are being increased.

Admiral Alexieff, the Russian viceroy, yesterday held a review of the 40,000 men of the Khang Tung army. After the review the admiral gave a banquet, at which the greatest enthusiasm was manifested.

Russia is hurrying naval reinforcements to Asiatic waters, a battleship and an armored cruiser passing through the Suez canal yesterday.

Dispatches from Chefoo report that a Russian warship and a transport with 500 troops left Port Arthur Oct. 4 for Corea.

Gen. Kodama, the Japanese home minister, has been appointed chief assistant to the military staff. The premier will assume Gen. Kodama's portfolio.

The Tokio correspondent of the Times telegraphs that the appointment of Gen. Kodama is regarded with universal satisfaction at this critical period.

A dispatch from Moscow to the Times, dated Oct. 10, states that a large force of Russian troops under orders for the far east are now on their way thither by rail from Kharkoff.

Disquiet in England.

Baron Hayashi, the Japanese minister to Great Britain, is less optimistic over the prospects for peace. He says he has no information that Japan has sent an ultimatum, but adds:

"Of course, I have had certain information, but nothing of that character. War between Japan and Russia in any case would be a great injury to both powers, but in the event of a crisis being precipitated I hope Japan will have the active sympathy of her ally, Great Britain."

This significant remark by the mikado's envoy, together with the mysterious movements of the Russian and Japanese fleets and the excited state of public opinion in Japan, is causing no little disquiet in England. Only the most sanguine believe that in the event of hostilities they could be kept within the limits which would free Great Britain from her obligation to support her Japanese ally.

Slump in Japanese Bonds.

So many rumors of imminent war were current in London yesterday that the new Japanese 5 per cent bonds fell 3¼, and 4s, which are better held, lost 1¼. Russian bonds did not move.

All London newspapers this morning display prominently all news bearing on the far eastern situation, and several print articles descriptive of the relative strength of Japan and Russia. The Daily Telegraph follows its tabulated statement of the Russian and Japanese fleets by a note to the effect that all things considered in naval power the two countries are fairly evenly matched, but that the higher intelligence of the Japanese, their capacity of endurance, and, above all, the magnificent patriotism which animated every man, and which in the hour of need will double his fighting strength, will tell.

The Daily Mail thinks that under present conditions Japan has a slight advantage which will pass from her within the next year, a fact which makes war now more probable.

Hold More Peaceful Views.

As indicating, however, that the situation is not so grave as surface indications seem to show the London manager of the Nippon steamship line and the London manager of the Yokohama Specie bank point out that if Japan was meditating war the Nippon line steamers, which are subsidized, certainly would have been recalled to transport troops. Nothing of the kind has been done. The Japanese consul says that shipping is not affected, and that trade is normal.

On the other hand, newspapers in Berlin, Paris, and elsewhere remark upon various indications which are regarded as ominous. Among these is the suggestion that the czar's return to St. Petersburg from Darmstadt without making his proposed visit to Rome may be connected with the situation in the far east, since his majesty's presence in Russia is necessary to a declaration of war.

The announcement that Vice Admiral Sir Gerald Noel has been appointed to succeed Vice Admiral Sir Cyprian Bridge in command of the British China station is also pointed to as having peculiar interest, owing to the official record and the resource and judgment he displayed during the troubles in Crete.

Russia Must Observe Treaty.

It was announced at the foreign office this afternoon that the powers, having treaty rights with China affecting their position and that of their subjects in the Chinese empire, including Manchuria, will require such rights to be maintained unimpaired, whatever arrangement Russia makes with China. If these rights are respected the British officials consider it improbable that either Japan or any power will be disposed to thwart Russia's desire to safeguard her special interests in Manchuria, or do anything which may threaten peace in the far east.

France Holding Aloof.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—The French foreign office is watching the developments in the warlike situation in the far east with keenest interest. It is not believed that in the event of war with Japan, Russia will draw France into the conflict at present. It is assumed here that the czar's visit to Rome was postponed because of the situation in the far east.

As Viewed at Berlin.

BERLIN, Oct. 12.—The relations between Japan and Russia have reached a crisis, according to the official view here. The exact nature of the diplomatic exchanges between the two governments that brought out the present tensity appears to be unknown at the legations of the two countries here or at the German legations at St. Petersburg and Tokio, although it is understood that Great Britain is privy to Japan's movements.

Interest at St. Petersburg.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 12.—Significance is attached here to the fact that the Official Messenger and the Journal de St. Petersburg print the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger's dispatch relating to the movement of the Russian fleet and the possible coincident landing of Russian and Japanese troops in different parts of Corea. Several newspapers publish reviews of Japan's military and naval strength.

Russian Ships at Suez.

PORT SAID, Egypt, Oct. 12.—The Russian battleship Czarevitch and the Russian armored cruiser Bayan arrived here today, bound for Chinese waters. The Czarevitch proceeded today.

Domingo Yields to United States.

SAN DOMINGO, Republic of Santo Domingo, Oct. 12.—The Dominican government has informed United States Minister Powell that in view of his protest it will recall the bill now before congress providing for the neutrality of Dominican waters and declaring certain harbors to be free ports.

JUSTICE IS DUE TO TURK.

PART OF BLAME IN MACEDONIA LIES WITH OTHERS.

Correspondent Who Is Journeying Through the Balkans Says Sultan's Soldiers Are Meeting a Trying Situation in Commendable Manner—Agitation Is Constant and Restraint Upon Troops Is Strict—Story of the Journey from Seres to Starcica.

about in the villages and in the fields husking corn.

At last we came down into the plain of Starcica, a fertile plain surrounded with mountains. We passed through another village of flat roofed houses, which rose in tiers above each other and were open at one end.

Everywhere we saw Bulgarian women, but no men. We wound about the valley, and after eight hours in the saddle, doing the whole journey (according to Turkish fashion) at a stretch without food or rest, we arrived at Starcica, and dismounting we loosened our horses' girths and sat down in a little square before a mosque for our much needed rest.

Subject of "Right" in Balkans.

Fifty moslem villagers came out to inspect us. We noticed the absence of any Bulgarian molok, or priest of the village. I asked our officer: "Is this according to the right?" "It is according to the right," he answered. We had met it face to face, the bone of contention of Macedonian life—religious prejudice—the only "right" is the word of the religious head, and a priest has the "right" to interfere.

If a captain of cavalry, with an escort of twenty men, brought two strangers into some village in the Philippines would any person ask, is this according to "right"? Religious prejudice is the stock with which each side prods the unfortunate peasant, be he Moslem or be he Christian, against his brother. I have been astonished to find how deep seated with all the Turks, educated and ignorant, is the idea that religion is at the base of this trouble. "It is a crusade," they say. "We have not a friend among the nations. If they had the land they could not agree on a division. What have they against us but that we are Moslems?"

Turk His Own Worst Enemy.

The Turk is his own worst enemy. He has all the qualities of a master race, except the initiative and diligence. He has a character which makes him a pleasant friend, but an unbearable master. It appears to me now that lack of industry and initiative are near the root of all his troubles. He will not make the necessary effort to progress and so he drifts along subject to races that have more industry. But long years of subjection have made them shy, tricky, underhanded, and untruthful. The Turks are far more attractive aside from the official class. They are manly, truthful, and generous. They are, however, overbearing to inferiors, and there is a strong undercurrent of brutality in their nature, which comes out when they are roused.

Well Treated by Villagers.

I have not spoken of the Albanians, who are a fierce, unmanageable mountain people, to whom much of violence under arms must be attributed.

When the villagers once accepted us our lot was easy. The best rooms were assigned to us; the choicest food the village had, for which we might not pay, was put before us. Under the system by which our expedition was managed it was difficult to get at the people. However, a few facts came to us. One villager complained that some days before our arrival the telegraph wire had been cut and two Moslem peasants killed in the fields. "We think that Bulgarians in the villages about here have done this," he asserted. "At any rate as soon as we are sure about it there will be some killing done on our side." It is a kind of vendetta, in which the Mohammedan, having the authorities on his side, naturally comes out ahead in this district.

I am under the impression, though I have not been able to investigate as I desire, that the Turkish soldiers and the Moslem population have not committed many acts of violence. They have been held in check by strict orders.

Soldiers Under Strict Orders.

A soldier talking along the road remarked, "There are Bulgarians who ought to be cleared out, but what can a man do? If we attempt anything we will be punished. Our government has forbidden it. I think the government makes a mistake."

In the future there is danger of grave trouble in this district if the Bulgarians resort to violence. But probably the insurgents will do little, as every position is now strongly held by Turkish troops. The amount of fighting done has been grossly exaggerated, as a band of insurgents does not number more than fifty, so as a matter of course the number of killed and wounded is generally exaggerated on both sides.

PARIS' NEW MURDER MYSTERY.

Roumanian Singer Found Dead in Hotel and an Art Editor Is Held for Shooting Her.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—The mysterious shooting of the Roumanian singer, Eliza Papesco, at the Hotel Regina here, in the center of a fashionable quarter of Paris, resembles in its essential features the case of Mrs. Ellen Gore, the American woman who was killed in the apartments of Jean de Rydzewski, the Russian singer, in November last. As cabled last Saturday, Frederick Grietgling, editor of an art paper, reported to the hotel clerk that day that a young woman had killed herself in his room. Investigation showed that she was Eliza Papesco.

When the body was examined today a bullet wound was discovered in the base of the skull, which, physicians declare, was impossible for her to have inflicted herself. Grietgling is held on the charge of murder.

According to Gina Papesco, sister of the dead woman, Grietgling proposed marriage to Eliza, claiming he was rich, and saying he was opposed to her going to Bucharest to fill an engagement at the Royal theater there.

SOCIALIST RIOT AT PORTO RICO.

Anti-Americans Parade with Red and Black Flags and Fight Police—Many Sent to Prison.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Oct. 12.—Gov. Hunt returned here this afternoon from Ponce to find that during his absence the socialists and anarchists had had a clash with the police. Forty arrests were made, and many of the prisoners today were sentenced to six months' imprisonment, including the anarchist Conde, who was recently convicted of insulting the American flag.

Americans here are particularly incensed at the carrying of black and red flags and a draped American flag by a mob yesterday as an incitement to disorder. Conde delivered an offensive harangue, in which he approved of the mob resorting to bloodshed if necessary.

The Americans demand the punishment of all the dangerous socialists, and are overwhelming Gov. Hunt with assurances of support in a vigorous campaign to uphold law and order.

RUSSIA MAY GIVE JEWS A HOME.

Czar Said to Be Willing to Grant Zionists Land for an Autonomous State in Manchuria.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Oct. 13, 3 a. m.—A dispatch to the Daily Express from Berlin says the Russian government, influenced by the British offer to allow the Zionists to colonize Uganda, in east Africa, is causing hints to be conveyed to the Russian Zionists of its willingness to grant territory in Manchuria for an autonomous Jewish state under Russian protection. A formal offer will not be made until the manner in which the proposal is received by the Zionists is ascertained.

NEW PARLIAMENT NOT NOW PLANNED

Austen Chamberlain Says Government Will Go On Without Dissolution.

MUST LEARN WAR LESSON

Declares Many Affairs Are More Pressing than Much Talked Of Tariff Issues.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Austen Chamberlain, the new chancellor of the exchequer, made a most significant statement tonight at a congratulatory reception given him at Acock's Green, Worcestershire, his parliamentary constituency.

Mr. Chamberlain announced that the government would not dissolve until the lessons of the south African war commission report had been applied and the war office reorganized.

This announcement confirms the general impression that it is the government's intention to meet parliament and proceed with business, leaving the fiscal problem alone as far as any attempt at legislation is concerned.

The new chancellor said he regretted that the new issues had lost the government some valued supporters, and declared himself in entire harmony with Mr. Balfour's program as outlined at Sheffield. There was a great danger, he said, in complacently assuming that Great Britain's fiscal policy needed no revision. He declared that it was against all the canons of sound finance that the income tax, the nation's first reserve in time of war, should stand at 11 pence in time of peace.

Election Will Wait a While.

This idea of Austen Chamberlain's regarding the present plans is shared by James Bryce, M. P., who at Tunbridge Wells tonight expressed the belief that there would be no general election until Mr. Chamberlain was ready. The government, he said, seemed to be divided between the fear of Mr. Chamberlain and the fear of the electorate.

Lord Stanley, the new postmaster general, in a speech at Bolton declared himself in favor of Mr. Balfour's Sheffield program but opposed to Mr. Chamberlain's food taxing project.

Ex-Minister Is Busy.

In the meantime Mr. Joseph Chamberlain is elaborating his scheme and preparing a reply to the objections raised by his opponents.

The fiscal campaign is being vigorously pursued in the country. Speeches will be delivered daily by political leaders, particularly of the liberal party. Mr. Chamberlain's reference to the condition of the tinplate industry has been strongly criticised.

Lord Rosebery will apparently support the free traders, as he has written Sir Henry Hartley Fowler, a prominent liberal, apologizing for not attending a meeting held in Glasgow. Lord Rosebery will speak in Sheffield tomorrow.

CANADIAN PREMIER DOUBTS REPORT ON BOUNDARY CASE.

Alleged Interview with One of Dominion's Commissioners, Mr. Aylesworth, Is Discredited.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 12.—In parliament today Minister Borden asked if the prime minister had taken any steps to verify the accuracy of an alleged interview with Mr. Aylesworth, one of the commissioners on the Alaskan boundary question. Mr. Borden said the telegraphic report contained certain observations, both with regard to his duties as commissioner and with regard to his views on matters now the subject of political controversy in the united kingdom.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that the government had taken no steps to ascertain whether the alleged interview had taken place or not. He added:

"We assume that this interview had not the character attributed to it. Mr. Aylesworth is a counsel of great eminence, and I would hesitate to believe—and I think my honorable friend would have equal hesitation—that Mr. Aylesworth would have expressed any opinion on a matter which is sub judice, and in which he himself is one of the judges."

Mr. Bell of Pictou called attention to a cablegram which said that Lord Alverstone considered the United States had the better of the case, and that he was going to decide accordingly.

Sir Richard Cartwright, in the absence of the prime minister, replied: "I think this so improbable, and almost impossible, that it does not require the slightest consideration at the hands of the government or any member of this house."

May Compromise on Alaska.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The Alaskan boundary commissioners this morning met in secret session and will meet thus daily until a decision is reached. The Globe says there is so strong a desire on the part of the American commissioners to reach a conclusion that there is reason to believe that a compromise will be effected.

The Turks were defeated with terrible slaughter, it being said all were killed except forty.

ROOSEVELT NO WAR URGER

FRIENDS DENY HE FAVORED BLOW WHILE STILL AT PEACE.

No Official Statement Is Made by President in Reply to Charge by Long—Former Assistant Secretary of the Navy Said to Have Considered Sending of Spanish Fleet to West Indies as Hostile Act and Beginning of Conflict.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—No official comment was forthcoming at the White house today, either in denial or confirmation of former Secretary of the Navy John D. Long's statement that, as assistant secretary of the navy, Mr. Roosevelt was "anxious to send a squadron across the ocean to sink the ships and torpedo boat destroyers of the Spanish fleet while we as yet were at peace with Spain."

The most authoritative statement obtainable was that the president had no recollection whatever of any word or suggestion to Secretary Long which could be construed as indicating that he favored attacking the Spanish ships while the two countries were at peace, but there is no doubt that the ideas of the two men about the preparation for war were at wide variance. Mr. Roosevelt was for beginning hostilities earlier than President McKinley and his cabinet deemed wise. Mr. Roosevelt, as well as others at the time, deemed the departure of the Spanish torpedo craft and cruisers for the West Indies as early as March 25 as a hostile act which he would have met with active naval operations.

Long Is Deemed Sarcastic.

Pending any further statement from Secretary Long, the preponderance of opinion here is that his comment on the president was thoroughly sarcastic, and permeated with his personal view of a subordinate, later a superior, with whom he never experienced congenial relations.

Secretary Moody this morning brought to the president's attention the article by former Secretary Long in the Outlook. The president was not much perturbed by it, and it is not expected that he will raise any heated issue with Mr. Long, with whom he had much friction while he was assistant secretary of the navy, and who, as a foregone conclusion, left the cabinet when Mr. Roosevelt succeeded Mr. McKinley.

No one was authorized to speak for the president today, but several of his friends, observing the vast comment occasioned in army, navy, and diplomatic circles, rushed into the breach and declared that the president never made any such preposterous suggestion.

Story as Told by Friends.

It is fully expected that the article will make as great a stir in Europe as here.

Two men, whose knowledge of what was going on in the navy department just before the Spanish-American war will not be questioned lightly, agreed today to the story that Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, who went with the two men to the White house, where Secretary Long was at a cabinet meeting, was invited into the cabinet room by President McKinley, who is said to have asked him what he would do, assuming the report that the Spanish cruisers had sailed for the West Indies. To this Mr. Roosevelt emphatically replied, it is asserted, that he would "smash them."

The vital point about Mr. Roosevelt's attitude at that time appears to be that he regarded the departure of the Spanish ships for Porto Rico as a hostile move.

REGULARS AT CAMP YOUNG MANEUVER OVER A DEFILE.

Brown Advance Guard Seeks to Pass Blue Rear Guard and Brisk Practice of All Arms Is the Result.

Camp Young, West Point, Ky., Oct. 12.—Today's maneuver was participated in solely by regulars. The plans of Col. Wagner, chief umpire, called for the passage of a long and tortuous defile by a force acting as the advance guard of the invading Brown army, the attempt to be resisted by the rear guard of the retreating Blue army.

The Blue rear guard was acting under orders to impede and harass the Brown advance as much as possible without bringing on a serious engagement and without being cut off from the main command.

The Blue rear guard, consisting of a regiment of infantry, a squadron of cavalry, and four field pieces, during the course of the engagement succeeded in delaying the advance of the Brown force to such an extent that it was about two hours before the last of the Brown advance could get clear of the defile. This would hardly have been a sufficient impediment in actual warfare.

The losses on each side were comparatively light, as adjudged by the umpires.

Gen. Joseph Wheeler arrived at camp today to be the guest of Gen. Bates until the latter leaves for Fort Riley, which probably will be on Wednesday.

Officers on Way to Fort Riley.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 12.—Gen. Frederick D. Grant, commanding the department of Texas, and about twenty other regular officers, including seven umpires from West Point, Ky., passed through Kansas City today on their way to the maneuvers at Fort Riley, Kas. Col. Arthur L. Wagner, who will act as chief umpire, and Gen. John C. Bates, major general, commanding the maneuvers, are expected on Thursday.

The signers included all the leading hardware and similar firms in Chicago.

OBITUARY.

WILLIAM PENN GILMORE, Chicago, who died Sunday afternoon at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. O. C. Eastman, was one of the few survivors of those who saw John Wilkes Booth shoot President Lincoln. Mr. Gilmore was born in Reading, Pa., June 27, 1831, and spent most of his life in that state, being for many years a cigar manufacturer in Halifax and Dauphin. During the civil war he was employed as quartermaster, and was once captured, with a trainload of union men, by the confederates. He came to Chicago in 1866, and March 3, 1903, celebrated the golden anniversary of his marriage to Clementine Kline. His health had been failing for the last year. Mr. Gilmore left, beside a widow, four daughters—Mrs. O. C. Eastman, Mrs. L. P. Eastman, and Mrs. J. H. McFarlin, all of 285 Winthrop avenue, and Mrs. Alice Bradford of Porto Rico.

THE REV. A. W. PAIGE, 100 Humboldt boulevard, died yesterday, aged 80. Born in the east, Mr. Paige entered the ministry, serving at one time in Wheaton, Ill. Later he had a pastorate in Iowa. Six years ago he returned to Chicago, and for three years he was a minister of the Reformed Episcopal church under Bishop Fallows. His wife, who survives him, was the daughter of Jesse Wheaton, one of the founders of Wheaton. He is survived also by two adult sons. The funeral will be held at 10 o'clock Thursday morning. Burial will be at Wheaton.

MRS. ANNA J. TREE, Chicago, who died on shipboard, will be buried next Thursday. The funeral will be held from the residence, 94 Cass street, at 11 o'clock in the morning. The body was brought to Chicago yesterday afternoon by Lambert Tree, who, with Mrs. Tree, had been visiting their son at Leamington, England. They were on their way home when Mrs. Tree died.

New Currency Law Drives Away More than $7,000,000 in Few Months.

BANKS GIVE BAD ADVICE.

Financiers at Philippine Capital Mistaken in Their Recent Warnings.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

MANILA, Oct. 12.—Statistics of the movements of Mexican dollars from June to Oct. 9 prove the wisdom of the policy of the Philippine commissioners in not placing a tax on the coin. The Manila bankers advised the commission to place a prohibitive import tax on Mexican silver. Such a tax, it is now demonstrated, would have been disastrous to the government. During June the total Mexican coin imports were $72,045 and exports $1,703,180. In July the imports were $22,100 and the exports $2,747,000. In August, when the bankers advised the taxation, asserting that otherwise heavy importations would follow, thus upsetting the tranquil introduction of the new currency under the Conant bill, backing up their advice by making temporary importations, the imports were $697,978 and the exports $1,769,750. In September, when the effort failed, imports dropped to $71,059 but exports remained steady at $1,530,500. Up to Oct. 9 there were no imports, while the exports amounted to $359,000. For four and one-third months the exports exceeded the imports by $7,246,248.

Meantime a conservative estimate of the total amount of Mexican silver in Manila banks and the treasury does not exceed $800,000, and the total amount in the archipelago does not exceed $5,000,000. It is rapidly flowing to Hongkong and Singapore. Hence it is reasonable to assume that natural causes will remove the Mexican coin before January, leaving a clear field of operation for the new currency bill.

Eight Ladrones to Be Hanged.

Eight ladrones, convicted of highway robbery, have been sentenced to be hanged. Two others, on account of their extreme youth, were sentenced to twenty-five years' imprisonment. The band of ladrones raided the town of Ibajay, on the island of Panay, and killed thirteen peasants.

Pirates Still at Liberty.

Hermann and Johnson, the two constabulary officers who seized the steamer Victoria and turned pirates are reported to have abandoned Banca, where they left the Victoria. Taking supplies with them they journeyed to Guimbal, a town eighteen miles from Iloilo. There they obtained a larger boat and fled in the direction of Cagayanes island. They were accompanied by two other men who deserted from the constabulary.

Disaster for Head Hunters.

Five hundred head hunters in the province of Neuva Vizcaya, island of Luzon, some armed with rifles, recently attacked a native lieutenant and thirty of the constabulary. Two of the latter were killed. The head hunters lost fifty-three killed besides many wounded.

PIUS X. INDORSES PLANS FOR CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY.

Pontiff Gives Approval for Collection in All Churches on First Sunday in Advent for the Washington Institution.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—Papal indorsement of the plan to take up a special collection in all Roman Catholic churches in the United States for the benefit of the Catholic university in Washington is contained in a brief brought here from Rome by Cardinal Gibbons.

The brief, which is signed by Pope Pius X., agrees to the first Sunday in Advent or the first convenient thereafter as the date for the collection. Following is a translation of the brief:

"To our beloved son, James, Cardinal Gibbons, cardinal priest of the holy Roman church, with the title of Santa Maria in Trastevere, archbishop of Baltimore, and chancellor of the Catholic university at Washington.

"Beloved son, health and apostolic benediction.

"The condition of the university at Washington has enlisted our deepest sympathy and concern, inasmuch as the report recently submitted by your eminence deposes that its affairs are not altogether so encouraging as we could wish. It is meet that we should follow the example of our predecessor in the furtherance of noble projects, more especially such as are of great moment and hold out the promise of large advantage. In this spirit we are pleased to continue, and, as far as may be to increase, in the exercise of the apostolic office the interest which we have ever cherished toward this distinguished American foundation.

"Wherefore we learn with genuine satisfaction that the bishops charged with the approval of all others interested in its welfare, that a collection be taken up in all the churches throughout the United States annually for ten years on the first Sunday of Advent or the first convenient Sunday thereafter, with a view of enhancing the dignity and enlarging the influence of this noble seat of learning.

"This plan, the result of their joint deliberations, we consider most beneficial. It is therefore our earnest wish and prayer that all the bishops of the country, as well as the faithful who have at heart the progress of learning and religion, should labor strenuously for the good of the university.

"That God may be pleased graciously to help this undertaking by his grace we lovingly impart to you and to the faithful committed to your care the apostolic benediction.

"Given in Rome at St. Peter's on the 9th day of September, 1903, the first year of our pontificate. PIUS PP., X."

DR. SHOOP'S
Rheumatic Cure
Costs Nothing if It Fails.

Any honest person who suffers from Rheumatism is welcome to this offer. For years I searched everywhere to find a specific for Rheumatism. For nearly 20 years I worked to this end. At last, in Germany, my search was rewarded. I found a costly chemical that did not disappoint me as other Rheumatic prescriptions had disappointed physicans everywhere.

I do not mean that Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Cure can turn bony joints into flesh again. That is impossible. But it will drive from the blood the poison that causes pain and swelling, and then this is the end of Rheumatism. I know this so well that I will furnish for a full month my Rheumatic Cure on trial. I cannot cure all cases within a month. It would be unreasonable to expect that. But most cases will yield within 30 days. This trial treatment will convince you that Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Cure is a power against Rheumatism—a potent force against disease that is irresistible.

My offer is made to convince you of my faith. My faith is but the outcome of experience—of actual knowledge. I KNOW what it can do. And I know this so well that I will furnish my remedy on trial. Simply write me a postal for my book on Rheumatism. I will then arrange with a druggist in your vicinity so that you can secure six bottles of Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Cure to make the test. You may take it a full month on trial. If it succeeds the cost to you is $5.50. If it fails the loss is mine and mine alone. It will be left entirely to you. I mean that exactly. If you say the trial is not satisfactory I don't expect a penny from you.

I have no samples. Any mere sample that can affect chronic Rheumatism must be drugged to the verge of danger. I use no such drugs, for it is dangerous to take them. You must get the disease out of the blood. My remedy does that even in the most difficult, obstinate cases. It has cured the oldest cases that I ever met, and in all of my experience, in all of my 200 tests, I never found another remedy that would cure one chronic case in ten.

Write me and I will send you the book. Try my remedy for a month, for it can't harm you. If it fails the loss is mine.

Write Dr. Shoop, Box 670, Racine, Wis.

Mild cases not chronic are often cured by one or two bottles. At all druggists.

He Addresses Followers in Tabernacle Last Time Before Trip to New York.

FIRST TRAIN AT 9 A. M.

Leader Announces That Cordial Welcome Is Expected in Eastern City.

Final preparations for the departure of John Alexander Dowie's restoration host to New York were made yesterday at a great meeting in Shiloh tabernacle, Zion City. Dowie drilled his hearers thoroughly in the details of the itinerary, and then grew enthusiastic in contemplating the trip.

"The first train departs at 9 o'clock, and all passengers for it must be on hand by 8:30," he said. "Now, when does the train go?"

"Nine o'clock," came the thundering reply from 4,000 throats.

Dowie spoke, as he has since the New York trip has been under discussion, with a large map of the eastern city hanging before his audience. He dwelt again on the various parts of the metropolis until he saw a name marked that attracted his attention.

"This is Hell gate," he said, pointing to it. "It is by this gate that we must enter the city. Every city has its portals and such are New York's."

Expects a Cordial Welcome.

From this entrance Dowie said the Zion hosts would proceed until they had spread their regenerating influence throughout the city. He was particularly sanguine of the reception to be accorded by the citizens.

"Every privilege will be extended to us in New York," he said. "No restrictions will hinder or annoy.

"And I am going after those preachers who have had so much to say about this work. If they will attend to their own business I will attend to mine. Now that they have seen fit to attack me, however, I will meet them on their own ground."

While the meeting was in progress Dowie and Mrs. Dowie indulged in a bit of characteristic pleasantry. A draft from an open window struck the bald head of the overseer, and after pulling on his skull cap he asked that the window be closed.

"You see how I have suffered at her hands," he said, addressing the audience and referring to his wife. Mrs. Dowie denied the implication, but admitted that she had pulled the first gray hairs from the "prophet's" beard.

"You wanted to keep them in a locket, I suppose," he said.

"Not much," she replied, "people would think they were bristles out of a tooth brush."

Mrs. Dowie was given an enthusiastic reception, as it was her last appearance in Zion before her departure for her trip around the world.

"Prophet" to Take Last Train.

The last train for New York, on which Dowie will go, will leave at 3:30 this afternoon. It was reported at the tabernacle meeting that the Baltimore and Ohio road had sent one of its royal blue trains for the Zion hosts, these being the finest cars the road possessed.

BEFORE DOWIE IN LACEMAKING.

Jennings Works in Brooklyn Twenty Years and a Factory in Pennsylvania a Decade Old.

The assertion recently made by Zion City officials that their lace factory is the first of its kind in the United States is held to be incorrect. W. A. Nutter writes to THE TRIBUNE from Milwaukee:

"Over twenty years ago Mr. Jennings started the 'Jennings lace works' in Brooklyn, N. Y. The plant is a large one, employing several hundred operators.

"There is also in Pennsylvania a lace mill making lace curtains, etc., established ten or more years ago."

UPSET CAR KILLS THREE MEN.

Collision in the Railway Yards at Kansas City Results in Death or Injury of Many.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 12.—Three men were killed and three others were injured, one seriously, in a collision between Missouri Pacific and 'Frisco freight trains in the switch yards at St. Louis avenue and Santa Fé streets in this city tonight. The dead are all railway employés. The 'Frisco train was standing on the crossing when the Missouri Pacific train ran into it, turning over a freight car. This car fell over on a crowd of men on the other side of the 'Frisco train, who were waiting for the cars to pass. The engineer of the Missouri Pacific train says that he got a signal to proceed across the crossing, but it is believed that he momentarily lost control of his engine.

ARGUE ON EXTRADITION POINT.

Representative of British Government Holds Lynchehaun's Crime Was Not a Political Offense.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 12.—Argument in the Lynchehaun case occupied the entire day before United States Commissioner Moores. Charles Fox, representing the British government, insisted that the act for which Lynchehaun was convicted and sentenced to prison for life was not of a political nature and is therefore extraditable. Henry Spaan followed for the defense, arguing that the act resulted from the political conditions, and was therefore a political crime and not extraditable. There may be a decision tomorrow evening.

NEWS OF THE DRAMA IN CHICAGO AND ELSEWHERE.

Scene from Act III — "The Girl with the Green Eyes"

THE GIRL WITH THE GREEN EYES.
A Play in Four Acts.
BY
CLYDE FITCH.
Presented at Powers' Theater, Chicago, by Clara Bloodgood and Her Company, Oct. 12, 1903. The Cast:

"Jinny" Austin	Clara Bloodgood
Mr. Tillman	William H. Tooker
Mrs. Tillman	Grace Henderson
Geoffrey Tillman	Frank De Kum
Susie	Edith Talliaferro
Miss Susie Chester	Rose Flynn
Maggie	Lucile Watson
John Austin	Robert Drouet
Miss Cullingham	Jessie Busley
Peter Cullingham	Grant Mitchell
Mrs. Lopp	Ellen Rowland
Carrie	Clara B. Hunter

A first act of wasps, a second of giggles, an a third of exceptional emotional intensity—such is Clyde Fitch's "The Girl with the Green Eyes," which had its first hearing last evening at Powers'. There is a fourth act, but it is brief, and is merely the happy ever after ending which the playwright's lack of courage caused him to feel it was necessary to concede to his patrons' prejudices.

The third act is the making of the play, and in it Mr. Fitch has produced the most masterly and sustained piece of dramatic writing any of his dramas yet seen in Chicago contains. It is the first of his "strong acts" in which it has been felt that the characters really make the scene, and not the scene the characters. The whole act is a study in jealousy, and two people are virtually all who are employed in it. Yet it grips the spectator's attention and holds it with such firmness that the fall of the curtain finds every nerve tense, and the deep impression produced is not dissipated until long after the short fourth act is over and the theater has been left.

It is not a cheerful act, for it is too true and exact a reflecting of a common human frailty to be amusing. It leaves the auditor a bit thoughtful—just a bit uncomfortable mentally. But still it is an act no observer of the drama should miss seeing, for it is the biggest and best thing Mr. Fitch has yet sent to Chicago, and his shipments in this direction have been frequent and, all in all, of remarkably piquant and likable quality. He is a master in his way, and the best he has done is therefore well worth the seeing.

The first two acts are the Fitch we have seen and enjoyed in the past—Fitch the tricky, Fitch the artificially brilliant. Not so clever and skillful as he has revealed himself on certain other occasions, but still fairly entertaining. The going away of a newly wedded pair, the farewell speeches of the bride to her bridemaids, the pasting of "honeymoon" labels on the trunks, and the tying of white ribbons on the hand luggage, the scattering of rice, the weepy farewell to each and every member of the family—such is the first act.

And in the second we have the Apollo Belvedere in the vatican with all the comments, delicate and indelicate, the statue makes possible; we have the tourists of various nationalities, and, of course, the "cookies" in all their picturesqueness and denseness, and we have the meeting of a number of the principal personages of the play and their gossip and their giggles. These acts are Fitchy to a degree, and they are not of the finest quality of Fitch. There is a dramatic thread of red that runs through the thin and tinseled weave, but it is scarcely noticed until the end of the second act is reached.

Geoffrey Tillman has been a fast youth, and in a drunken carousal at college has married a young serving girl. The girl is now a domestic in the Tillman home, and she catches this man to whom she is married making love to a maiden who is of his own social set—to a Miss Ruth Chester. Thinking he was about to start for the Philippines, Tillman had induced Ruth to marry him clandestinely, and the young fellow, although now living a "straight" life, finds himself in the uncomfortable position of a bigamist. Tillman's sister, "Jinny," is devoted to him and believes absolutely in his reformation. She has just married a noble, big minded man, John Austin, and it is to this man that the serving maid tells her story. Young Tillman confirms it, but does not confess his further wrongdoing, save to say that he loves Ruth. John conceals all from Jinny, and she, being of a jealous disposition—a weakness inherited from both her parents—misunderstands John's interest in Ruth when they all chance to meet again in Rome, and when he learns for the first time the real state of affairs. The Austins return at once to New York at John's suggestion, but Jinny's mad jealousy will not rest. It reappears constantly and ever in intenser form, until the final outburst is so great that the husband finds all love in his heart is killed by her distrust and he leaves her. She attempts suicide, but is, of course, saved. John comes back, and all ends happily.

It is in the third act that the real drama begins. The couple have returned to New York, but the jealous fits of the wife have become ever more frequent and more unreasonable. There is a succession of these outbursts, each followed by repentance and partial reconciliation, but so skillfully has Mr. Fitch understood to grade them in intensity and power that there is no suggestion of weakness or anti-climax in the long act. The spectator is made to feel that the final crash is not far distant, and that it must come. It is the first act Mr. Fitch has written in which the inevitableness of the climax has made itself distinctly felt. The characters are such that the scene could not rationally be other than it is. There are certain theatric features that are blemishes just because they are theatric—the wording of the letter John writes is unnecessarily melodramatic, and the upbraiding of Jinny by Ruth in the last scene seems scarcely to ring true—but these cannot destroy the high dramatic worth of the act. Nothing else seen here of Mr. Fitch's has given so much cause for hoping and believing that the day will yet come when this gifted writer will give the American stage a play of really enduring value.

The performance given by Mrs. Bloodgood and her company was a meritorious one. The play is, in fact, one with only two principal parts, and these were last evening in thoroughly competent hands. Yes, more than competent, for both Mrs. Bloodgood as Jinny and Mr. Drouet as John offered portrayals that would be difficult to improve in any way. The character of Jinny is one of no little complexity. Vivacious, impulsive, of quick sympathies, loving, and tender, she is a creature to be warmly and wholly liked. But the trait of jealousy she has inherited makes her suspicious, and when aroused she is absolutely irresponsible in speech and action. She knows that by her jealousy she is driving from her the man she adores, and yet even while recognizing that fact and confessing her wrong she finds herself unable to control herself—the slightest trifle suffices to loose the flood of recriminations she hurls at him. It is a character of moods as complex and strongly contrasted as they are quickly changeable, and the task set the actress who attempts the rôle is far from an easy one. Mrs. Bloodgood, however, proved herself equal to all she undertook. The earlier scenes of happiness and tenderness were charmingly played with delightful buoyancy and sincerity, and in the crucial third act a depth and intensity of emotional power was displayed that were surprising. The perturbed mental condition of the woman was shown from the commencement of the act, and even in the assumed gayety of the "theatricals" and of the song and the dance, the strong undercurrent of unhappiness and distrust that was sweeping her onward was made appreciable to the spectator. It was a piece of acting that spoke of thorough mastery of all technical resources and of temperamental gifts of high order.

In Mr. Drouet Mrs. Bloodgood had an excellent artistic partner. He was able to make sensible to the auditor the strong manliness, the bigness of nature, and the genuineness of John Austin. Tender and gentle in affection, there was never the slightest hint of any lack of virility in the man, and when the struggle against that which was killing the love he held dear was being fought, and when the final desperate rush away from the scene of it all really came, the actions were but in strict keeping with his nature and character. It was an impersonation artistic in the many fine details that distinguished it, consistently and carefully conceived, and intelligently and capably carried out.

The support was entirely adequate. Jessie Busley played a breezy western girl with delightful vim and brightness; Miss Watson handled the part of the maid Maggie with discretion and good understanding; Mr. Mitchell did all that was possible with the colorless comedy part of Peter; Grace Henderson had no chance to prove her known capabilities in the rôle of Mrs. Tillmann, and Miss Flynn made the most of her one effective scene—the explanation at the close of the third act. Mr. De Kum had an ungrateful task in the impersonating of the weak brother, but he made him not entirely despicable, and therefore not entirely devoid of sympathetic appeal. W. L. HUBBARD.

COUSIN KATE.
A Comedy in Four Acts.
BY
H. H. BAVIS.
Produced at the Hyperion Theater, New Haven, Conn., Oct. 12, 1903. The Cast:

Heath Reid, an artist	Bruce McRea
Rev. James Bartlett, a clergyman	Grant Sewart
Bobby Spencer, a schoolboy	Harold Grau
Mrs. Spencer, a widow	Mrs. Thomas Whiffen
Amy Spencer, a girl	Clarice Agnew
Jane, a servant	Anita Roth
Cousin Kate, a novelist	Ethel Barrymore

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—Ethel Barrymore scored tonight what local critics unanimously voted a success in "Cousin Kate." In the audience were her uncle, John Drew, her brother, Lionell, and John and Charles Frohman. Miss Barrymore's most effective support was given by Bruce McRea, Grant Stewart, Harold Gray, and Clay Agnew. The play tells a charming story in which two pairs of lovers take prominent part. Kate Cutis (Cousin Kate) is breezy, big hearted, sympathetic, and honest. She writes novels. Amy Spencer is engaged to an artist. Miss Spencer would be called a prude, the artist would not even by accident. They quarrel with the best of intentions. Cousin Kate advises Miss Spencer to make up with her lover, and offers her aid to the extent of calling on the young man. The result is that the artist falls in love with Cousin Kate and she loses her heart to him.

Proud Prince a Hit in Gotham.

New York, Oct. 12.—[Special.]—E. H. Sothern's "The Proud Prince" set up his court in Herald square tonight and unless all indications fail he may hold it there if he chooses until the ice breaks up next spring. After the stupendously melodramatic first act the house burst into a shout that ended in a vain call for a speech. After the second act the call was repeated.

After the third act Mr. Sothern made a grateful speech, saying he would cable Mr. McCarthy in London, but he was cut short by an untimely, but unrehearsed curtain.

Whatever one may think of the literary quality of Justin H. McCarthy's new play, Broadway will rise to it en masse, and with reason. In Detroit the worthy mayor, abetted, perhaps by Mr. Sothern's press agent, denounced as immoral certain passages in the second act, in which the pride of the prince became the pride of the flesh. The said proud flesh has been treated surgically.

While the play presents a churchly parable with decorum its main intention as a frankly theatrical melodrama makes its appeal in a way that has no play of recent years, not even "Du Barry" and "The Darling of the Gods." Many of the most effective stock devices of melodrama hve been skillfully and effectively arranged into a whole in "The Proud Prince."

New York, Oct. 12.—[Special.]—Richard Mansfield selected for his opening of the new Lyric theater this season tonight Wilhelm Meyer-Forster's charming little idyl of German college and petty court life, "Old Heidelberg," already familiar to New York theatergoers through its presentations at the Thalia in the original German and in English last season at the Princess theater. A large audience, perhaps the most notable of any premiere as yet this season, which crowded the new and beautiful Lyric theater, was keenly expectant of Mansfield's appearance in the part and also of the stage setting he would give the attractive play. It was not disappointed. The universal verdict of the last curtain was that a more artistic, refined, and finished production of a play of the kind has rarely if ever been given in New York. In every detail—costume, scenery, appointments, "atmosphere"—nothing was left to be desired, to use a hackneyed phrase.

Mansfield as Karl Heinrich, the hereditary prince of Sachsen Karlsberg, gave the attractive, natural character the true German flavor of his well remembered Prince Karl, and the humor of his equally well remembered "Monsieur," with the added appreciation, dignity, and strength which those rôles didn't call for, and which emphasized his rare art and his versatility. Every detail of the formal, ceremonious court life at Karlsberg—that life at which the soul of the young prince revolted, as well as the rollicking university days "Alt Heidelberg-Dufeine"—was perfect, and through them all moved the central lovable figure of the young prince, splendidly played by the finished actor, in full sympathy by training, association, and feeling with his rôle.

Mansfield's fellow players—inspired and trained by him—supported him admirably.

The new Lyric theater is pretty and well designed.

THE FORTUNE HUNTERS.
A Musical Comedy in Two Acts.
BY
J. M. STRAUSS and CAMPBELL and SKINNER.
Produced at the Teck Theater, Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 12, 1903. The cast:

Alfred Simmons, a sporty millionaire	Sidney De Grey
Herbert, duke of Cambridge	Frank Root
C. Bryon Shelley, a poetic millionaire	Leo D. Wharton
Archie Bald, an ambitious bellboy with a penchant for the stage	Sydney Grant
James, a knowing waiter	Harry A. Weigand
Petunia Crimmins, an aspiring chambermaid in love with Archie	Carrie Graham
Nancy Clancy, a read headed chorus girl	Edna Dorman
Pearl Gem, a guest of "The Golden Fleece"	Irene Ward
Harry Edwards	Doc. Doherty
Guy Atheton	H. Steadman
George Sinclair	N. S. Barlob
Kyle Howard	Harrie Lyons
Frank Furlong	L. B. Pierce
Adele O'Brien	Nellie Hawthorne
Celeste O'Brien	Lola Hawthorne

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—"The Fortune Hunters," the new musical comedy in which the Hawthorne sisters made their début as stars at the Teck theater tonight, made a hit, and the Misses Hawthorne received many curtain calls. The music is bright and catchy and generally tuneful, the topical songs being especially melodious. The book is sparkling and humorous. The story deals with the adventures of Adele and Celeste O'Brien, two French milliners, who go to southern California in search of two millionaires for husbands. The millionaires are a poetic hotelkeeper and an English duke, and still a third party as a man of wealth mixes up in the complicated situations. Much of the comedy is supplied by Carrie Graham, an aspiring chambermaid, with an amazing wealth of slang, and Archie Bald, a bellboy, who wants to be an actor. Lola and Nellie Hawthorne carried off the honors, and their singing won unstinted applause. The scenes being in California, there is every opportunity for exquisite coloring. The costumes are beautiful.

CHICAGO POSTOFFICE—At suggestion of Postmaster Coyne work on one wing of new federal building may be hurried so as to complete it for occupancy within a year.

WAR PORTFOLIO.—Gov. Taft of Philippines will reach Washington in January to take place in cabinet when Secretary Root retires.

EXTRA SESSION—President Roosevelt on Oct. 20 will issue call for congress to meet on Nov. 9 to consider Cuban reciprocity.

POISON TEST—Reorganized squad of government boarders, under direction of Prof. Wiley, begins eight months' test of effects of salicylic acid on food.

POSTAL REVENUE.—Receipts at Chicago for September shows a gain of 10.2 per cent over same month a year ago.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—Postmaster Coyne and Representative Boutell spent the greater portion of the day in conference with Postmaster General Payne and Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Taylor in urging improvement of the postal service in Chicago. They requested Mr. Taylor to push work on the public building so one wing of the structure may be completed within a year. This was urged so that the pneumatic mail tube system, which must be completed within twelve months, may be installed in the new structure.

Mr. Taylor decided to send the supervising architect to Chicago to see if it is possible to carry out the suggestion of the Chicago officials. At the postoffice department Messrs. Coyne and Boutell urged that the southeast wing of the new building be completed and the work of the stations in the Monadnock building, the board of trade, and the Crilly block be combined and transferred to the new building. They also made a requisition for additional clerks and carriers so as to facilitate the handling of the mails. The department looked favorably upon the suggestions advanced and practically everything asked for will be granted.

Mr. Coyne's recommendations regarding the compensation of the superintendents at substations were adopted, and hereafter the salaries will be based on the sale of stamps and the money order and registry business, instead of on the sale of stamps alone.

President Roosevelt has received a letter from Judge Taft, governor of the Philippines, informing him that he will be in Washington some time in January to enter upon his duties as secretary of war. It is expected that Secretary Root will return from England, where he is serving as a member of the Alaskan boundary tribunal, in time to prepare his annual report before the assembling of congress and that he will take the month of December to wind up some affairs of his administration in the war department. The exact date in January of the arrival of Judge Taft and his assumption of the war portfolio has not yet been determined.

President Roosevelt today dispelled all doubt as to whether there would be an extra session of congress when he informed his congressional callers that the legislative branch of the government would be called together Nov. 9. The call will be issued Oct. 20 so as to give the senators and representatives ample time to make their plans.

The extra session will be called for the consideration of Cuban reciprocity alone, and the president, in his message to congress, will not discuss any other subject.

There has been considerable opposition to an extra session, but the president decided that congress should be called together to dispose of the Cuban reciprocity question.

Representatives Dalzell and Grosvenor assert that the democrats will discuss the tariff question during the reciprocity debate for the purpose of making campaign material. In discussing this subject Representative Dalzell said:

"The democrats probably will take up considerable time talking over the general subject of the tariff, but there will be no tariff legislation either at the extra or the regular session. The democrats have nothing else to talk about, and so I presume they will waste many good English words on a mighty good law. The country is prosperous, despite the pessimists here and there, and there will be no tariff revision."

The famous squad of government "poison eaters," which was disbanded last spring and recently was reorganized by Prof. Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry of the agricultural department, sat down this morning to an adulterated breakfast, and for the next eight months will try to determine by practical experience just what salicylic acid will do to the human system.

The members of the squad will take capsules of salicylic acid, which is in general use as a milk and meat and general food preservative, three times a day with their meals until something happens.

The former experiments were with borax, and a constant diet of this chemical did not seem to bother the poison eaters. They all finished their adulterated diet in the best of condition, and Prof. Wiley's chief trouble throughout the experiments was to keep the government boarders from getting fat.

The present experiments with salicylic acid will be more carefully conducted than the former tests, as the chemical is known in a general way to act as a deterrent on the digestive apparatus. But just how it works and just what it will do when given a fair test are not specifically known, and that is what Prof. Wiley is trying to discover.

During September the postal receipts at Chicago showed a gain of $87,315, or 10.2 per cent, over the same period last year. The receipts for last month were $938,575, against $851,260 for the same period in 1902. The receipts of the New York office last month were $1,153,161, against $1,074,627 for the same month last year, a gain of $78,534, or 7.3 per cent. The total receipts at fifty of the larger postoffices during September were $5,509,422, as compared with $5,059,828 for the same month in 1902.

Justice and Mrs. McKenna announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Isabel McKenna, to Pitts Duffield of New York, formerly of Detroit.

Miss McKenna is the eldest of the three daughters of her family. She made her début in San Francisco just prior to her father's appointment as attorney general in President McKinley's cabinet. She is of medium size, has regular features, and a fair complexion, with dark hair and eyes. Mr. Duffield is one of the six sons of Gen. and Mrs. Henry M. Duffield of Detroit and junior partner of the publishing firm of Fox & Duffield of New York. He has lived in the latter city for the last five years. He is a member of the Players', University, and Harvard clubs.

No date has been decided upon for the wedding, which will, however, take place in the next few months, probably early in January, and at the home of the bride's parents on Rhode Island avenue.

FLOOD PERIL IS PASSED.

MANY MILLIONS LOST BY HIGH WATER IN THE EAST.

New Jersey Towns Begin to Figure on the Extent of the Damage—Thousands Are Left Idle as a Result of the Shutting Down of Mills at Paterson—Water Is Receding at All Points and Big Dams May Stand—Railways Resume Traffic.

New York, Oct. 12.—With the receding of the floods, reported today from all quarters, Paterson, Passaic, and the other water swept New Jersey towns are relieved of further peril and are beginning now to get a clear idea of the extent of the devastation.

In Paterson alone the damage to property is estimated at $2,000,000, without taking account of the loss in wages to the thousands who have been deprived temporarily of occupation by the shutting down of factories.

Water Mains Are Undermined.

Tonight the water was reported to have fallen four feet below the highest mark, and the only possible source of damage would be the bursting of the great water mains, which were undermined by the flood. The distress continues great, and tonight fully 500 persons were still compelled to seek food and shelter in the armory. No additional fatalities were reported throughout the day.

In Passaic the damage is estimated to be at least equal to that in Paterson.

Many adjacent villages still were under water today, but with the falling of the waters all danger of a collapse of the great Dundee dam was declared past.

Traffic was resumed during the day on all the railroad lines entering New York with the exception of the local service on the main line of the Erie. The milk famine in the city was broken by the arrival of the usual number of milk trains on the West Shore, New York Central, Lackawanna, and other roads.

Ramapo River Is Subsiding.

Tuxedo Park, N. Y., Oct. 12.—The Ramapo river, after rising higher than ever before and sweeping away many small dams, several bridges and houses, and a section of the Erie railroad track, is now slowly subsiding and tonight the Tuxedo dam is considered safe. So far as known only two lives were lost.

The village of Ramapo was nearly obliterated by the overflowing of Pierson's lake and the breaking of the dam at its lower end.

SHIPS LOST ON EASTERN REEFS

Reports of Thursday's Storm Show Several Vessels Are Wrecked and Many Missing.

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 12.—The shoals between Currituck and Hatteras have claimed their quota of craft. Two vessels are known to have been lost, and further reports are expected to bring news of more wrecks. Three schooners are missing, with one barge. Two schooners and a barge in addition to those wrecked between Cape Henry and Dam Neck were lost during Thursday.

Scrofula

It is commonly inherited.

Few are entirely free from it.

Pale, weak, puny children are afflicted with it in nine cases out of ten, and many adults suffer from it.

Common indications are bunches in the neck, abscesses, cutaneous eruptions, inflamed eyelids, sore ears, rickets, catarrh, wasting and general debility.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills

Eradicate it, positively and absolutely. This statement is based on the thousands of permanent cures these medicines have wrought.

"My daughter had scrofula, with eleven sores on her neck and about her ears. Hood's Sarsaparilla was highly recommended and she took it and was cured. She is now in good health." MRS. J. H. JONES, Parker City, Ind.

Hood's Sarsaparilla promises to cure and keeps the promise.

GREAT RACING AT LEXINGTON.

Fereno and Prince of Orange Trot Fastest Event of the Season.

JUDGES SUSPEND DRIVER.

McDonald Set Down for Year for Drive of Gray Gem—Billy Buck a Winner.

[BY HENRY TEN EYCK WHITE.]

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—There was plenty of excitement and good racing today, enough to make up for the monotony and poor performances of last week, when all the important events were won in hollow fashion. Summing up what occurred this afternoon, it may be said that Fereno and Prince of Orange, in the 2:05 trot, put up the fastest race of the year; that Billy McDonald, one of the oldest drivers on the turf, was set down for a year on account of his raw work behind the trotter Gray Gem; that Billy Buck, supposed to be lame and a doubtful starter, won the Walnut Hall cup after a desperate duel with Caspian, both horses being in the best form of their lives; that Scott Hudson, put up by the judges in the deciding heat of the Gray Gem race, won easily and burned up a lot of so-called wise money that had been bet on a supposed sure thing; and, finally, that in the 2:14 trot Marian Wilkes and Norrie gave the people one of the really great contests of the year, every one of the five heats trotted being done in 2:10 or better.

Judges Suspect a Job.

The Gray Gem race was watched with eagle eyes by the judges right from the start, as they knew from the betting that a job was on foot. Gem was made a mild favorite in the Saturday night betting, and today at the track he again sold against the field, but this time the other horses brought far more than he. He went to the post bringing $20 against $70 for the field, and won the first heat in 2:10¼. Grace Kellar, believed to be the best of the others, finishing seventh. The next heat she made a break on the backstretch, and again the Gem was first, this time in 2:12½. But the field still brought as much as he did. Grace Kellar took the third heat in 2:10½, with Gray Gem third and McDonald sitting still. Then another heat went to the mare in 2:11¼. Gray Gem was a weak second.

When the horses were stopped the judges put a policeman in charge of Gray Gem, and when the fifth heat was called Scott Hudson was put behind the horse, and the field against Kellar doubled in value in the next few pools. Hudson trailed the mare with Gem, the pace being slow to the half, 1:07¼. Then he forced her to step the next quarter in 31½ seconds, and that so effectually took the run out of the little mare that she stopped in the stretch and was no better than fourth at the wire, Gray Gem winning as he liked in 2:12½.

McDonald Is Suspended.

When the judges announced the positions for the heat they added that William B. McDonald was suspended for a year, and that Hudson had been awarded $100 out of Gray Gem's part of the purse for his winning drive. McDonald used to be prominent as the driver of the pacer Buffalo Girl, and after her day went to Austria, coming back a few seasons ago. Horsemen consider the punishment well deserved.

The Walnut Hall cup showed what Billy Buck can do to a field of horses that do not class with him. Aside from Caspian, there was not one in the field that had a chance, and yet the betting was even on the theory that two weeks' letup would put Buck back to the others. Caspian, a fast and game horse, made all the fight there was. He won the first heat in a hard drive, seeming to have the Buck horse beaten for speed when the homestretch was reached, stepping the final quarter in :31¾. The leading pacer went right away from the others after reaching the half-mile pole in the second heat, having trotted the second quarter in :31¼. They maintained this clip to the three-quarters, trotting the middle half in 1:02½, but then Caspian made the first break of his life, Buck jogging home in front of Tonse in 2:09½.

Billy Buck Captures Trophy.

Again in the third heat it was Buck and Caspian all the way, but Buck won in 2:09. An easy heat in 2:11¼ ended the race, and Mr. Smathers has the handsome trophy that so many horse owners have tried to win.

The 2:05 trot brought out Prince of Orange, Fereno, Charlie Herr, Rythmic, and Dolly Dillon, and was a great race between Fereno and the Prince, the only other conspicuous figure being Rythmic, which led for seven-eighths of the mile in two of the heats. Geers drove the Prince, but in the first heat a break in the first quarter caused him to go an easy mile. Rythmic was first at the quarter in :30¼, and the half in 1:03½, but Fereno, gaining gradually, overhauled him and won in 2:06¾.

The Prince of Orange showed what a really great horse he is at times. Geers took him away carefully, Rythmic leading to the half in 1:02½ with Fereno second. Then Geers moved up, and at the third turn was in striking distance. He came down the home stretch far out to the middle of the track, like a runaway horse, and at the distance was at the mare's neck. There was a good struggle for a few yards, but in the end the Prince won by half a length in 2:06½, reducing his record a second and trotting the second fastest race mile of the year.

Fereno Wins Deciding Heat.

But in the deciding heat Fereno beat him and did it in a decisive manner. The pair were in the lead practically all the way, but half way down the homestretch Geers was driving. He went to the whip an instant later, the Prince swerving under punishment, and Fereno won by two open lengths in 2:07¼, ending the fastest trotting race of the year.

Marian Wilkes and Norrie had a desperate duel in the 2:14 trot. Alta McDonald's mare opened by trotting in 2:09¾, Norrie breaking. Then Marian Wilkes came back in 2:10, Norrie second, and the race looked to be over, but in the third and fourth heats Norrie fairly outtrotted Marian Wilkes when they hooked up in the homestretch, carrying her to a break each time, although it took a 2:10 mile every trip to do it. By this time Norrie was believed to have the race at her mercy, but in the fifth heat Marian Wilkes stepped her over to the half in 1:04¼, and then put in another quarter in :31½. The first part of this last quarter was enough for Norrie, as she tired, tried to pace, and then broke, Marian Wilkes coming home alone in 2:10, and winning a well contested race. Summaries:

Judges Get After "Cheaters."

It was pretty freely talked today that the judges have decided to make examples of any "cheaters" caught doing business at this meeting. The McDonald case showed that they are awake and in the 2:14 trot they took Merrifield from behind Millard Sanders after a couple of heats had been trotted. As Geers could not win the next heat, the horse was turned over to Merrifield again.

BAD TRACK AT BRIGHTON BEACH

Steeplechase Is Called Off Because of Flood—Astarita Wins the Feature.

New York, Oct. 12.—The Ripple handicap at six furlongs, the feature of the opening day of the Brighton Beach Racing association autumn meeting, was won in a hard fought finish by the favorite, Astarita, with Rostand second. Astarita jumped away in front and made all the pace. The card was practically ruined by scratches, so heavy was the going. The infield was completely covered with water, and the steeplechase had to be declared off. Summaries:

First race, 6 furlongs—Graceful, 109 pounds [Michaels], 6 to 5, won; Sonoma Belle, 104 [Furman], 12 to 1, second; Eagle, 100 [Higgins], 6 to 1, third. Time, 1:14 2-5. Prince Vic, Lida Leib, Raider, Riverside, Pol Roger, Gansevoort, and St. Jolly ran.

CLEVER VICTORY FOR OUR BESSIE.

Newman's Filly Beats By Ways and Other Good Three Year Olds.

SIDNEY C. LOVE IS FIRST.

Captures the Handicap After Leading All the Way; Worth Results.

Although the handicap at one mile and seventy yards was the monetary feature at Worth yesterday, the one and one-sixteenth mile race for 3 year olds, in which the fillies gave weight to the colts, produced the best contest.

In the handicap Sidney C. Love, the winner, took the track at barrier rise and held it throughout the journey, beating the favorite, Major Tenny, easily. The result of the longer race, however, was in doubt until the final eighth, when it was apparent Our Bessie, which led at the head of the stretch, would be returned the winner. By Ways, which has been running quite frequently, was installed favorite, being backed down from 8 to 5 to 6 to 5, while Our Bessie went up from 2 to 1 to 11 to 5.

Henry McDaniel, which on Saturday was tipped for a good thing and backed accordingly, but was now a 40 to 1 shot, set the pace, followed by Alfredo and Coruscate to the stretch bend, where McDaniel fell back. Our Bessie lay in fifth place, behind By Ways, to the half mile mark, at which point Ferrell sent her along, and, finding an opening near the rail at the last quarter, shot her through it, and when lined for home was a length in front. By Ways did not better her position and hit the line for home practically beaten.

Alfredo, which was as good as 60 to 1, never was worse than second and made a game effort to overtake Our Bessie, but could not get within a length and a half of her. He had stamina enough to beat By Ways for second money.

The track had dried out and was fast enough to have three of its old records tied. In the opening event Tokalon at odds of 10 to 1 tied the five and one-half furlong mark. In this event Corrigan's filly, Alma Dufour, was the choice and was possibly the best, but Reiff messed her about in the early part of the race and second was the best she got. The winner was loaded for bear and would have been a hard one to beat.

Incubator, the favorite, captured the second race after getting away none too well. He outclassed his field, however, and when he caught his stride he ran over everything and won easily. The six furlong dash for 2 year olds went to King Ellsworth, and the final, once around the course, was captured by Louisville, with Bard of Avon, the first choice, second.

Notes of the Worth Track.

Incubator and King Ellsworth were the winning favorites.

J. Coffee and J. C. Johnson arrived from Detroit en route to St. Louis.

Incubator is not eligible to start in the race in which he is entered today.

John W. Schorr, the Memphis horseman, was at the track, having returned from the east.

Wesley Schimmel attached Max D. Miller's horses—The Don, Muresca, and Forum—for an old debt.

Burnie Bunton, J. F. Newman's speedy mare, was kicked on the right thigh and seriously injured while on the track yesterday morning. Owner Newman has doubts as to whether she will ever race again.

M'CHESNEY HAS A ROMANCE.

Great Race Horse Tells Reporter How Cruel Fate Separates Him from His Heart's Choice.

"You'll excuse me while I eat it," said McChesney. "Exactly twelve-thirty, you know. I'm particular about regularity in my oats."

He nibbled at it daintily; not a grain went flying from the force of his breath. The greatest thing in horse politeness is to know how to eat and breathe at the same time. I told him so.

"That's me," said he. "Not many horses know how to eat. Once when I was a yearling I was obliged to dine with a colt that was—well, not quite the real thing. I never knew whether it was his oats or mine I was eating. That's one thing that made me love Lou Dillon. She knows how to eat her oats."

McChesney looked at me half sheepishly.

"Where did you meet her?"

"O, I was in my car—she was in her car. We were both sidetracked. She stuck her head out and whinnied. When a filly did that, what could I do but whinny back? We loved one another from the first. Cruel, isn't it, that our professions separate us? I've got to run and she's got to trot. It's fate."

By the way his upper lip drooped over the lower I could tell that he did not mean to talk about Lou Dillon any more.

"McChesney," I said. His head was down so that I could braid and unbraid his thin chestnut forelock. My lips were close to his ear. No one could hear the whisper. "Tell me honestly, have you ever run your fastest?"

He took a seam of my skirt in his teeth. It is a way he has. Some folks think it ugliness, but it is only play. He held the seam tight and nickered softly. A nicker with more certainty in it I never heard.

"Never!"—Illustrated Sporting News.

CAMPAU DENOUNCES FARLEY.

Surprised That Chicago Tolerated His Efforts to Blackmail the Racetracks.

"E. E. Farley, the ringer, will get his just deserts and spend three years in the penitentiary," said Dan J. Campau last night. "He is at present out on $2,500 bond, but his freedom is only temporary, for we have more than enough evidence to convict him."

Mr. Campau is owner of the Grosse Point track, where Farley is said to have raced Aimless, a racehorse, under the name of Sarah Black, a plug.

"It was through my efforts that the Michigan law making it a penitentiary offense to ring a horse was passed," continued Mr. Campau. "It was passed in the interest of good racing and has the support of the best people in Michigan. Farley is guilty of a great offense, and his subsequent acts have not made him many friends."

Mr. Campau commented on Farley's harassing the Chicago racetracks in an effort to secure the influence of John Condon in rescinding his ruling off from tracks of the Western Jockey club.

"I am surprised that Chicago allowed the man so much rope," said he. "It's a great wonder you didn't throw him into the river."

HARVARD SHOULD HAVE WON.

Pennsylvania Players Think the Officials Erred in Saturday's Game with Amherst.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—Regarding the umpire's decision in the Harvard-Amherst game Saturday, when, because the Amherst end was offside at the four yard line when Harvard plunged over the goal line, the umpire sent the ball back but penalized Amherst two yards, the Penn coach and captain agreed today that Harvard should have been allowed the touchdown. Coach Williams said: "In justice to Harvard it should have been allowed the play. The present rules are confusing, none exactly covering the present case. Rule 28 undoubtedly applied to a midfield play only. When confusion of the rules exists the spirit and not the letter should be observed. In such a case Harvard should have won."

Capt. Metzgar said: "The Amherst end being offside cut no ice, as he wouldn't be in the play, anyhow. The rules say the offended side, if penalized, may decline the penalty. Probably the excitement caused this to be overlooked. The Harvard captain if appealed to should have insisted on his rights." Other players talked along the same lines.

NORCROSS TAKES JAMES' PLACE

Change in Michigan's Back Field—Not Ready for Secret Practice, Says Yost.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—Of the western big four colleges Michigan alone has not begun secret practice. Capt. Redden a week ago asserted that secret practice would begin this week. Yost tonight said he had no idea when it would start. Asked the cause of the delay, he said: "We have not any use for it yet. There are too many points which the men can still learn in open practice."

That the Beloit game was hard is shown by the condition of the men on Monday. Longman's ankle kept him out of practice. No scrimmage was given and practice lasted scarcely an hour and a half.

Graver came out for the first time since his injury.

To everybody's surprise Quarter Back James was put on the scrubs tonight and Norcross took the regulars. James' work in the Beloit game has been much criticised.

Grinnell, 15; Missouri, 6.

Columbia, Mo., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—In one of the fiercest games ever played on Rollins field the Grinnell team this afternoon defeated the Missouri Tigers by a score of 15 to 6. The game was characterized by hard line bucking, interrupted by frequent wrangles between the players and officials. Carson and Toal of Grinnell and Landon and Capt. Birney of Missouri were thrown out of the game for fighting. Grinnell made good gains through the left side of the line, tearing holes in Missouri's line. Grinnell made two touchdowns around left end and failed to kick goal. A goal from the field was kicked by Doran of Grinnell in the last three minutes of the game. Lineup:

Illinois Gains Renewed Hope.

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—With renewed hopes Illinois began to prepare for the Purdue and Chicago games this evening. The word brought back from Marshall field by Director Huff and Assistant Coach Mathews that Illinois would stand a most excellent chance against its two rivals served to intensify the feeling inspired by the work of the varsity in Saturday's game. Tomorrow evening there will be secret practice on Illinois field and Wednesday the Chicago Dental college team will play here. It is likely that secret work will be resumed on Thursday and Friday. A special train will carry at least 500 rooters to Lafayette Saturday. The scrimmage tonight was good, and the varsity retained its push and tug work which showed so prominently Saturday. Muhl did not line up and Huntoon took his place at quarter. Bronson wrenched a knee, causing considerable worry.

Two Players Hurt at Wisconsin.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—The varsity had hard luck in scrimmage today, when, with five men already on the hospital list, Baine had his knee badly twisted and Fogg received a bad cut over the eye, in which four stitches were taken. Both men will be out of the game for several days, and, with the eleven just beginning to show team work, the handicap will be a severe one. With only four regulars in the lineup the varsity ran over the scrubs for four touchdowns in twenty minutes of play in today's practice. All the men played a fierce game and delighted the coaches with their spirit. Coach Hollister came up from Beloit today and agreed with Kilpatrick that Lerum serve as referee and Bertrand umpire for the game with Beloit on Saturday. The matter of protesting Walter Eckersall of Chicago comes up at the council tomorrow night.

SUSPECT ATTEMPT TO SWINDLE

Receipt at Bloomington of 1,000 Mysterious Letters Dated Paris, France, Puzzles Postal Authorities.

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—The receipt of 1,000 letters at the Bloomington postoffice today from Paris, France, all alike, and addressed to as many residents of this city, aroused the suspicions of the postoffice attachés that a swindle was to be attempted. The letter read:

"I am in a measure to inform you that your honored name figures amongst the list of the Americans chosen before the decease of M. Tiscot to receive and keep a copy of the works of the renowned M. Tiscot.

"I will therefore give to your American representative the necessary instruction to wait upon you, sir, in order to make such arrangements as the occasion demands, to carry out the wishes of M. Tiscot. I have, sir, the honor of presenting to you my best compliments and remain.

"CHARLES LEON NOREAU,
"Trustee the Tiscot collection."

An investigation will be ordered.

After nine innings of brilliant playing Comiskey's White Stockings defeated the enemy from the west side on their own stamping ground yesterday afternoon, and all but closed the breach which separates the two teams—the Colts having won six games and the White Stockings five. There was nothing close about the result, but the victory of the south siders was decisive enough to leave no doubt as to which team deserved the contest. The score at the end was 4 to 2, the Colts hanging on to the lesser figure.

Fine Work by Owen.

Frank Owen, the youngster, who has probably done better against the west siders than any of the White Stocking pitchers, pitched a grand game, and for six innings held Selee's men at his mercy, not allowing a single hit. In the three remaining innings the Colts by dint of hard labor managed to scrape four safe ones together, but these were pretty well scattered, one coming in the seventh, one in the eighth, and two in the ninth. Owen was steady as clockwork, had excellent control; his benders broke over the plate just to his liking, and Selee's men could do nothing with them.

Jack Taylor, who opposed the White Sox, was easy enough; was pounded right from the start, and Comiskey's men should have made more runs off him than they did. Good work by the outfielders, Slagle and McCarthy in particular making good catches, kept Comiskey's men from registering more hits than they did, but at that eleven safe drives, three of them doubles, and one a triple were made off his delivery. Owen also was favored by the support he received from the outfield and "Fielder" Jones and Callahan grabbed several flies out of the atmosphere which greatly resembled two basers, or at least singles.

Colts First to Score.

Selee's men were the first to reach the plate, but it was more a case of poor judgment on the part of the White Stockings than through their own efforts.

Owen passed Davy Jones, the first man up in the second round. Tannehill fumbled Evers' grounder long enough for the second baseman to be safe; then Owen threw to third too late to catch Tinker instead of throwing to first, and when the inning was finally brought to an end Tinker had scored and not a hit had been made.

The White Stockings smashed out three hits in this inning, but nary a south sider reached the plate. In the fourth another bunch of three hits, one of them a double, enabled two of Comiskey's men to count. After Green was gone, Tannehill started things going with a single to left, Isbell fanned, and Magoon "made good" with a bingle. Then Sullivan picked out a nice one and never stopped until he had reached second base, while both Tannehill and Magoon romped across the plate pulled up. Sully, however, was unable to advance and died at second, as Owen fanned.

White Sox Score Again.

Comiskey's men increased their lead in the fifth, when, after Holmes had struck out, Jones doubled to left. Callahan sacrificed "Fielder" to third, and Evers fell all over Green's grounder until the runner was safe and "Fielder" Jones had scored. In the meantime Owen was holding the Colts as if in a vise and they never even had a respectable chance of counting.

The White Stockings had a great chance to start a landslide in the seventh, but their own mistakes lost them the runs which looked sure to score. The finishing touches were put on the game in the eighth, however, when Isbell opened with a ripping triple and scored on a wild pitch by Taylor.

The Colts drew one step nearer in the ninth. Davy Jones singled and Tinker fanned. Davy was forced at second on Kling's roller, and then Evers met the ball with a crash, sending it far out past Jones, and Kling crossed the plate. Score:

Notes of the Game.

It's getting close.

Colts, 6; White Sox, 5.

Davy Jones was the only man to get a pass to first.

The White Sox will play the Colts on the west side grounds today.

White or Altrock will do the twirling for the Sox today, while Wicker will probably pitch for the Colts.

"Rube" Waddell occupied a prominent place on the White Sox bench and gave directions to Comiskey's men as to how to win the game.

Fielders' Jones and Slagle made some pretty catches in the center garden. McCarthy also made a fine catch. He grabbed Owen's fly just before it hit the ground in the eighth and held it while he rolled over on his back.

Jones and Holmes made a nice play on Casey in the seventh. Casey smashed the ball out past Callahan and Jones, and it looked like a sure triple. Casey thought so, too, but Jones got the ball quickly and shot it to Holmes, who nailed Casey when he made a desperate slide for the third bag.

Owen certainly pitched a great game, and his record of not allowing a hit for six innings is pretty near the mark in the American league this year. But the way he fielded his position caught the crowd. He pulled in several hot ones that hit his hands with a smash and got his men, too. While trying to get McCarthy's grounder in the eighth he turned on his ankle, but he was not hurt to any extent.

A play rarely seen in a professional game came up in the seventh. It cost a run or two for the White Sox, and, had the game been closer, might have caused defeat. Holmes got on first with a single, and then Jones cracked the ball away out past the fielders. There was no one on the coaching line, and Callahan, whose turn it was at bat, ran down to third. He held Holmes at third instead of letting him come home. All this time Jones was tearing around the bases and before he knew it he almost ran into Holmes at third and was put out.

GETTING READY FOR NOISY GAME.

Northwestern Spirits Rising in Advance of Contest with Chicago.

BIG CROWD IS EXPECTED.

McCornack Puts His Men at New Tricks—Stagg Stands by Eckersall.

Although a week ago it was thought the annual game between Chicago and Northwestern would be one sided, interest in the contest of next Saturday has picked up since Chicago's game against Purdue, and it is expected the event will draw a big crowd to Marshall field.

Not only has Coach McCornack put himself on record as saying his men have a chance to beat Stagg's players, but other football critics say they concede the wearers of the purple quite a chance. Accordingly the spirits of the Evanston fans has brightened and the usual display of college rivalry will probably be enacted at the game.

Evanston will send down a big delegation of spectators, and Chicago will have its biggest crowd of the season. Seats for the game will be placed on sale today at the usual downtown place.

Work to correct the faults brought to light in the Purdue game was the program at Marshall field yesterday afternoon. Stagg devoted a considerable part of the practice period to drilling the linemen in charging and in blocking off their opponents. All the players were coached on tackling and blocking, several having been noticeably weak in these particulars on Saturday. After detailed work on specific points of play the varsity and the scrubs lined up and went each run through signal practice as fast as the men could work. Ahlswede was out in suit for the first time for several days. His knee is almost well, but he has to be careful of it. Robert Maxwell was kept at left tackle for a part of the time. The big man is proving himself a good man at tackle and can be used there if necessary, Gale, who made such a good showing on Saturday, taking his place at guard.

McCornack Tries New Plays.

Secret practice at Northwestern began yesterday and will continue all week. McCornack last night devoted most of his attention to training the backs in end runs and outside tackle bucks, plays at which they have had little experience so far. In the games so far the only plays used have been straight line bucks, tandems, and an occasional quarter back run by McCann.

Capt. Fleager, who has been suffering from a lame shoulder, was out last night and played his old position of full back. Ruler and Blair filled the half back positions, and McCann was put in at quarter. Tanner was not out, owing to injuries received on Saturday, but most of the squad appeared for practice, and the work was satisfactory. Three teams were out, and McCornack worked them all. After a short scrimmage, in which the varsity scored once, McCornack tried a new method of lining up the men. All the candidates for line positions were lined up in one line, the backs being placed in their positions behind this line. The backs were then, one after another, given the ball and tried at breaking through the weak places in the long line. Twenty minutes was devoted to this sort of work.

Massmeeting Tonight.

The spirit at Northwestern is better this year than ever before. While few have confidence in the ability of the team to win the Chicago game there is a general feeling that the team will make a better showing than ever before. This noon, at chapel, there will be speeches by President James, Coach McCornack, and Manager Butterworth, and for tonight a massmeeting is planned at which the student body will gather to hear from the team and yell for it. Students have also been asked to write new songs and yells for the Chicago game. An effort has been made to get the alumni team together in order that the varsity may be given three days of practice against the veterans, and this may still be done.

Revives the Eckersall Case.

In reference to the report that Wisconsin would make a formal protest against Eckersall's playing in the Chicago-Wisconsin game because Abbott and other Wisconsin men intend to compete in the Olympian games and do not wish to be disqualified by the A. A. U., Stagg said:

"I have received a letter from Prof. Slichter of Wisconsin stating in a friendly way the contention of Abbott and others in regard to Eck's playing. But the Wisconsin men are already disqualified by playing against Lawrence and other teams which have played teams which we have not. I believe the Wisconsin men will realize this. The whole affair is but another illustration of the fact that the A. A. U. has no jurisdiction in college athletics and cannot take any action looking to a control of the college athletes. I do not expect anything to come of the affair."

Illinois Men on Yale Varsity.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—Billy Soper of Bloomington, Ill., was surprised today when ordered to take quarter back on the Yale varsity team. He has always played half back till last Friday, when he was tried at quarter because of his light weight and the scarcity of good material for that position. The veteran Rockwell is sure to hold the varsity quarter back, barring accidents, but Soper is likely to hold first substitute. Jack Owsley, the only Chicago boy on the Yale squad, got back into the game today after a fortnight's shelving, due to a wrenched knee. He was given his old place at left half back, which he will probably hold all the fall. Batchelor and Smith of the scrubs were promoted to center and left guard on the varsity.

SCHWAB MAY YET AVOID TELLING.

Compromise May Be Reached in Shipbuilding Scandal, Which Still Grows.

MORE DEALS UNCOVERED.

Ebenezer Blydenburg, Formerly of Brooklyn, Now Charged with Many Crimes.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE. New York, Oct. 12.

Owing to the indisposition of William D. Guthrie, C. M. Schwab's counsel, the hearing of the United States Shipbuilding company case will not go on tomorrow morning, but beneath the surface matters are moving with celerity and the hearing is to be resumed Wednesday morning. Several surprises are planned. There is a strong belief in the minds of many interested that Charles M. Schwab may not go on the stand after all. He reiterated his readiness to testify as soon as his counsel advises him his presence is desired, but with the talk of dropping the shipbuilding securities from the list of stocks traded in on the New York stock exchange it is believed some compromise may be arranged.

Surprises Coming in Shipbuilding Investigation.

A reorganization plan satisfactory to all participants is projected, and that may bring the present hearings to an end. James Smith Jr., receiver of the company, it is said, will ask the courts to punish for contempt certain of the company's officers for acting after the proceedings for a receiver were in the hand of the courts. Members of the board of directors, the receiver believes, have placed themselves in contempt by certain meetings held since the New Jersey courts were asked for the appointment of a receiver. Officers of the Trust Company of the Republic have been subpœnaed to produce all papers in their custody at all relevant to the present proceedings.

When these documents are produced it will be plain how much the promoters retained for their services. The vendors drove a hard bargain according to one of the men who are investigating the papers of the shipbuilding company.

In round numbers the vendors received $5,000,000 cash, $4,000,000 in preferred, and $4,000,000 in common stock, and the promoters apportioned $6,000,000 cash for themselves besides $1,500,000 5 per cent first mortgage bonds.

The news that Ebenezer Blydenburg, for many years a resident of Brooklyn, had been arrested at Eldora, Ia., last Saturday, charged with poisoning his wife, disclosed the fact that for several weeks the county prosecutor and a detective from Iowa have been in Brooklyn working up the case against him. In Brooklyn Blydenburg for a long time was looked upon as a model man. He taught a Sunday school class and attended church regularly, but before he quit Brooklyn he had been turned out of church and Sunday school with a warning never to enter them again.

Many Crimes Laid to Former Brooklyn Man.

He has been accused of several swindles and is under a cloud of suspicion because of the way two of his wives died. Blydenburg's first wife was Miss Emily Hawkins of Brook Haven, L. I. He married her thirteen years ago, and seventeen days after the birth of her child she died.

Blydenburg's second wife was Miss Laura Gotbold. She lived with her parents in Brooklyn. She died after an illness of four days.

James T. Digowitz, sometimes called the "Mining King of Mexico," was arrested at the Waldorf-Astoria today on an order granted by Judge Leventritt of the Supreme court. The action was brought by Eugene Davis to recover $100,000 damages for alleged slander. Bail was furnished. Both parties to the action are connected with a Mexican mining exploration company. Davis is first vice president and active administrative officer. Digowitz is second vice president and manager of the corporation in Mexico. Senator John P. Jones of Nevada is president of the corporation. The suit is a result of remarks said to have been made by Digowitz concerning Davis Oct. 1 last at the Holland house in the presence of Senator Jones, Edward C. Bryan, private secretary to Davis, J. K. Cowan, and others. Davis declares Digowitz maliciously and wrongfully charged that he (Davis) misappropriated to his own use more than $100,000 of the company's funds and could prove the statement he had made.

Miss Harriet Balentine, director of the gymnasium at Vassar college, when asked tonight what she thought of the statement of Miss Lucille Hill of Wellesley that girls should not play basketball, said: "I certainly do not agree with her. Girls should play basketball every chance they get. It is splendid exercise for girls. Vassar has encouraged the girls to play it as much as they care to. I am speaking, of course, of the normal girl. All physical exercise for girls must be considered in relation to the girl. If she is delicate she should be governed thereby. The excitement of basketball is just what a healthy girl needs. The danger element of the game is not to be considered."

David Lamar, the Wall street broker, sat beside "Monk" Eastman and Joseph Brown of the Cherry Hill gang of toughs in court at Freehold, N. J., today. They are on trial for conspiracy to commit an atrocious assault upon James McMahon, Lamar's former coachman, because he refused to return Mrs. Lamar's pet dog, which escaped from her carriage. Mrs. Lamar was conspicuous at the trial. The surprise of the day was the admission by Lamar's counsel that the hotel carriage bills of Eastman and Brown and others while at Long Branch were paid by Lamar. They included board bills at Green's hotel and a bill of $45 at another hotel.

As a step toward retrenchment and in a measure recoup the losses from the flood the Erie railroad officials have decided to cut down the force of employes. Many men are to be discharged from the repair shops and from the maintenance of way corps. The orders have not yet been issued, but one official said today: "Every man that is not absolutely essential will have to seek work elsewhere. Our road is in good shape and we can afford to lay off a great many men."

Erie to Cut Expenses by Discharging Men.

The curtailment of maintenance of way expenditures will not necessitate the abandonment of any new construction work which has been begun. The most notable of these improvements is the construction of a third and fourth track between Jersey City and Port Jervis, and the extension of the double track virtually to Chicago.

President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university gave a dinner tonight at Sherry's in honor of Alfred Mosely and the other members of the British educational commission, who are visiting the United States to investigate the public school system. Mr. Mosely spoke of the object of the commission and said he hoped and believed it would not be disappointed. He spoke of Hammond, Jennings, Perkins, and other Americans who in south Africa made so great an impression on Cecil Rhodes that the great financier recognized the claims of the United States and established many scholarships for youths of American birth. He concluded with the hope that the young men who go to the British universities will help to build up a constructive policy of education.

Visiting Britons Entertained by President Butler.

Apparently there are reasons for the shifting of the betting odds on McClellan today from 10 to 7 to 10 to 9. Even an analysis of the registration and the belief that P. H. McCarren is meeting with success in getting a majority of the Brooklyn district leaders away from Hugh McLaughlin could not dispel the feeling that Tammany had a fight on its hands approaching the severity of the one in 1901.

Betting Shows Tammany Faces a Desperate Fight.

In the first place, there is a most formidable revolt against Tammany, which has developed in a quarter where Tammany deemed itself secure. It is among the "Tammany" Germans who follow the leadership of William F. Grell. As a result Grell was nominated as an independent candidate for sheriff. If the voting is rational this would only affect the Tammany candidate for sheriff, but the motive behind the movement seems to be to teach Tammany a lesson and the result must injure the entire ticket. These Germans claim that Charles F. Murphy took the attitude, when he was asked to give them a place on the ticket, of saying that the Germans have to vote with Tammany anyhow, because all they cared for was a glass of beer and Fornes ought to satisfy them. Fornes, however, is French.

Another straw which came from Brooklyn is that no matter what headway McCarren makes in undermining his old patron, McLaughlin, sufficient anti-Tammany sentiment has been made across the bridge to insure a staggering majority for Low. This, in the opinion of persons whose judgment is reliable, will be furnished entirely outside the party lines, irrespective of the machine vote.

WORK OF VOLUNTEER PRISON LEAGUE TOLD IN MRS. BOOTH'S NEW BOOK.

MRS. BALLINGTON BOOTH

The loving title, "Little Mother," bestowed upon Maude Ballington Booth by those she has aided is certainly earned, and a bright reward of her efforts in behalf of prisoners who wish to lead better lives on their release from confinement has come to her in the hundreds of loving tributes to her goodness, and still more so in the actual regeneration of the men to whom she has extended the hearty hand of practical Christianity.

While others have bemoaned our full prisons, the increase of crime, and the laxity of the law, Mrs. Booth at the head of the Volunteer Prison league has talked to these men face to face, singly in their cells, or en masse in the prison chapels, and has labored early and late to guide their lives, so that on their release their steps may shun the broad path that leads to destruction and that they may climb on "their dead selves to better things."

An idea of what she has done and is doing in this direction may be found in her book, "AFTER PRISON WHAT?" (The F. H. Revell company), a book as modest in form and word as her work is great and noble. In the first chapter, "Gold in the Mine," she tells how great is the general misconception of the characters of prisoners in penitentiaries not only by the public but by prison officials, and of the reluctance of merchants to employ any of her "boys," as she calls them, on their release. She says:

> Then there are those within prison walls who, though evil well nigh all their lives, claim our sincerest pity. They may have done desperate deeds, may perhaps be ranked as habitual criminals, and may represent today the most hardened and determined offenders, and yet in strict justice they should not be spoken of with harsh condemnation before the sad pages of their lives have been read. The judge and jury take cognizance only of the offense; the police and prison record note the list of charges and the number of returns to prison, but those of us who seek to know the man beneath the criminal have a right to go back and ask ourselves, "What chance did this man have to do right, to act and to be as we are?" The answer sometimes is a pathetic revelation of a loveless babyhood and childhood, where blows and curses took the place of kiss and caress; a youth where revolt against society in an embittered heart made it easy to develop every evil tendency and to follow the lead of those in the underworld who proved the only possible friends and associates.

She then goes on to recount the case of a Joliet prisoner who wrote to her. The letter said:

> "You said you loved us. Nobody ever said that to me before in my whole life and I hardly know what the word means. You spoke of home. The nearest approach to it I ever had was my time in the kitchen of one of the state prisons, where the officer was kind to me." Briefly this was his story. He was born in a poorhouse in Ireland and never knew father or mother and received in childhood no touch of love or sympathy. When still young he was sent out to work and soon found evil companionship and was led into trouble. He came out to this country only to continue on the same path, which was in fact the only path he had ever known. It naturally led him to state prison, and his whole life here has been spent within the walls except for the few short holidays in the slums between the day of his discharge and the next arrest. All through the letter I could see that he had never dreamed there was another life for him. He confessed he had never tried to be good, had had no inducement or chance to be so. Pathetic to me was the closing sentence, in which he said: "Now that I know somebody cares, I will try."

This man on his release became an earnest member of the league, secured a place for himself, and helped others to a better life. She gives several pathetic instances of false imprisonment of innocent persons and tells how hard it is to make the wheels of justice turn backward. These men were in line to become habitual criminals till the mission of the league was made known to them. The number of cases in which real regeneration took place when the men with their freedom in hand found that all the world was not disposed to keep them down is gratifying, but it is sadly out of proportion to the vast number who, with the word and the hand absent, fall rapidly to worse after their first wrong step.

Speaking of foreign missions, but with no disparagement of them, she says:

> From every pulpit, in every Sunday school, through the pages of the religious press, the need of the heathen is constantly kept before the people, and so impressed that the youngest child knows all about it. What do the children in our Sunday schools or the congregations gathered in our churches know of the need behind prison walls? Where has any large offering ever been taken for this cause? Who has ever thought of leaving a generous legacy for the redemption of these men? I do not for a moment grudge what has been given to missions. I merely want to bring to remembrance these others who have been overlooked, this occasion for help at our door, a need which may be unlovely and have nothing about it of the glamour of romance which distance lends to a cause, but which, all the same, concerns human souls divinely loved and groping in great darkness.
>
> Those who have entered it can report that here is a glorious opportunity. This field is, indeed, white to the harvest, and there is no reason why mighty results should not be gathered where people have been inclined to look only for disappointment and failure.

She traces the history of the league from a visit to San Quentin prison to the present time, outlining its methods and retelling some of its glorious results. This is the testimony of a Sing Sing official given to Mrs. Booth by the man himself:

> I want to confess to you that I was one who took no stock in this movement at first. I used to laugh at the men making a profession of living any better. I looked upon it as so much religious nonsense, but I confess I have been forced to change my views. You do not know the change it has made in this prison and the miracles that have been wrought in many of these men. You can see them in the meetings and can judge of them by their letters, but we live with them day after day and know far more than you can. I never believed anything could take hold of the whole prison population, the educated, the middle class, and the tougher element, affecting them equally as this work has done. There was one "boy" in my company who was the foulest mouthed man I have ever met. He used an oath with almost every word and was so criminal and evil that we never dreamed he could be anything else. The absolute reformation in that man is what opened my eyes. That was not talk but reality.

Warden McClaughry, speaking of the institution of the league in Joliet, said:

> I entered upon the experiment, as I say, with a good deal of apprehension, but I am glad to say that it proved to be one of the most potent forces inside of the prison to secure not only cheerful obedience and compliance with the rules and regulations of the prison, but a force that coöperated with the authorities of the prison in the direction of law and order. Wherever that league has been established, while it has gone up and down and had its vicissitudes, like the early church, it has proved most helpful in every respect, and its influence upon the individual men, no person not familiar with its workings can for a moment imagine. Therefore I feel that the Volunteer Prison league, properly managed, is one of the most beneficent institutions that can be introduced into prison life.

One of the hardest forces the league contends with is the habit of the police in rearresting men simply because they have been convicts, or notifying their employers of that fact. The instances of this which Mrs. Booth gives are enough to turn one fiercely against the cold, inhuman brutality of a system which allows such practices. It is a hopeful sign, however, that we find many merchants as willing as Mrs. Booth herself to help these men, and police magistrates who severely rebuke officers who arrest men against whom nothing but the expiation of former crime is known.

As has been said, the book is modest in its tone. The author never forgets the power above which actuates her, or the loving men and women she mentions by name who give her such substantial aid. Nor is she illiberal in speaking of the feeling society naturally has against crime and criminals, but her plea is irresistible and her book is one which deserves the widest publicity, as her cause deserves the widest aid.

STEEL TRUST IN QUEER POSITION.

At Going Price Control Can Be Bought for Less than Cash in Treasury.

SLUMP TAKES NEW TURN.

Railway Equipment Companies Feel Effect of Retrenchments by Big Roads.

New York, Oct. 12.—[Special.]—At 12½ for Steel common it was figured out the control of the great corporation could be acquired for less money than the officials assert is in its treasury. Those who figured out the depreciation of the shares and bonds of the big corporation state that, at going prices, the shrinkage is $552,500,000 in the value of the securities from the prices at which they were marketed.

The shares of industrial concerns passed through a trying ordeal on the stock exchange today, with special pressure on the stock of the iron and steel companies. The losses were most severe, the car and railway equipment stocks suffering in particular. The market seemed to be demoralized. A new low record was made for United States Steel issues. Selling of the common and preferred stocks of the big steel trust of an urgent character carried the issues down to the lowest prices yet reached. The common touched 12½, while the preferred sold down to 57½.

Business Is Slacking Up.

The opinion is that the pressure to sell the industrial list was the result not only of actual prospective slackening in business but also to the disquieting effect on the minds of the public made by the disclosures in the United States Shipbuilding scandal. Foreigners sold on persistent reports of financial trouble in Philadelphia and Pittsburg. The news that the great railroad systems, including the New York Central, Southern Pacific, and finally the Erie, had decided to reduce the number of their employés, sent shivers through the holders of car and railroad equipment stocks. It was pointed out that if the railroads had to shut down a part of the repair forces altogether it was unlikely they would buy new cars or locomotives to any extent.

The news that officials of the Steel trust purposed to close down a great many plants also had a bad effect on speculative sentiment. The result of the shipyard disclosures upon outside investors was reflected in the manner in which they sold the stocks immediately after opening. Hardly any rally from the low prices was established in the industrial list during the day.

Equipment Rumors Plentiful.

Regarding the equipment companies, such as the American Car and Foundry company and American Locomotive company, many reports are in circulation. It is said that in the case of the car and foundry company more working capital is needed, but this statement is vigorously denied. One statement issued is the company is earning at the rate of $500,000 a month and will continue to pay its dividends. The decline was eleven points in the price of its stock. The heavy selling was explained as due to calling a loan in which car and foundry stock largely figured.

Railroad stocks held fairly firm throughout the session in the face of pronounced liquidation in the industrial list. Grangers were helped to a great extent by the crop report which came out on Saturday.

TILLMAN MURDER CASE ARGUED BEFORE THE JURY.

Attorneys for Prosecution and for the Defense Devote Day to Presenting Their Views of Gonzales' Death.

Lexington, S. C., Oct. 12.—Arguments to the jury in the trial of J. H. Tillman were begun today. Three attorneys for the state and two for the defense addressed the jury. Four attorneys, two on a side, are to be heard tomorrow.

Solicitor Thurmond opened for the state. Referring to the editorials in the State, Mr. Thurmond said they were before the jury to show the feeling between Gonzales and Tillman. The solicitor devoted himself largely to a review and summing up of the evidence adduced by the prosecution concerning threats.

He said Gonzales was unarmed and sought to avoid a difficulty when he met the defendant on the day of the shooting.

Mr. Rembert, for the defense, said that the defense did not concede that N. G. Gonzales was unarmed at the time he was shot. Stress was laid by counsel upon the charges made by Gonzales against the defendant to show, as he stated, the influence they had on the defendant's mind when he met Gonzales. Attorney William Elliott Jr. contended that Gonzales was within his right in criticising a man in public life and asserted that Tillman had recourse to the libel law for redress.

Col. George Johnstone spoke for two and a half hours in behalf of the defendant. He contended that the liberty of the press did not give the right of denunciation. He insisted that the two statements testified to as the dying declarations of Gonzales were at variance, and that the variance was due to the morphine administered to him after he was shot.

Mr. Johnstone had the sheriff stand before the jury with Gonzales' overcoat on, and pointing to the bullet hole, claimed it supported the defendant's version of the shooting.

INJUNCTION IN THE "SOO" CASE.

Court at Toronto Enjoins All Receivership Proceedings in the Consolidated Company Affair.

Toronto, Ont., Oct. 12.—Justice Britton today granted the Consolidated Lake Superior company an injunction until tomorrow, preventing any further proceedings in any one of the four actions of Speyer & Co. at the Soo. The Consolidated company says Judge Johnston of the Soo has not the authority to appoint a receiver.

SOCIETY WOMAN ARRESTED FOR ANONYMOUS LETTERS.

Mrs. Clara Glover of Williamsport, Pa., Apprehended by Federal Officials, Who Claim They Have Proof of Guilt

Williamsport, Pa., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—Charged with having written letters involving the reputations of prominent women of Dushore, Mrs. Cora Glover of this place is in jail. It is alleged that her missives, directed in most cases to husbands, reflecting upon their wives, have been the cause of divisions in several homes. The accused woman is prominent in society and the wife of a well known business man and has always borne a good reputation.

The arrest was made by federal officers, who insist that they have proof of her guilt. Letters which Mrs. Glover is accused of writing are alleged to have been directed mainly against characters of women prominent in Dushore social and church circles.

So annoying did the letters become that a well known citizen offered $100 reward for information after he had received a note defaming his wife.

Friends of Mrs. Glover maintain that a mistake has been made.

THE WORLD'S TONIC

Exhilarates Without Intoxicating.

AN UNPARALLELED TRIUMPH

I believe there is a cure for every disease—I believe that human life can be prolonged—I believe that people should die only from old age, and I also believe and know that Paw Paw remedy will not only relieve much suffering, but add many years to the average life.

In my opinion dyspepsia and indigestion are the cause of most ailments. Indigestion means nervousness, sleeplessness, impure blood, catarrh, sluggish liver, kidney and heart affections. No person can be happy—no person can see the beauties of life and enjoy its pleasures who suffer from any form of stomach trouble.

I have taken the medicinal qualities of this fruit and combined it with other medicaments, and have made a preparation which is called "MUNYON'S PAW PAW."

I cannot recommend this remedy too highly for all forms of indigestion and nervousness. This remedy also acts wonderfully well on the liver, blood, and kidneys, and I believe its greatest office is in its marvelous effect upon the stomach and nerves. It is really a nerve food and vitalizer.

It gives exhilaration without intoxication. It does what whiskey nor beer cannot do. It relieves the nerve tension. It stimulates every fiber and puts into active force every tissue of the body. It lifts one into the altitude of hope and holds him there. It is a bridge that enables the weak and sickly to cross dangerous places. It feeds and nourishes the nerves, so that the blood corpuscles will be constantly revitalized, and the losses of the vital forces will be almost imperceptible. In other words, it will supply a sufficient quantity of life matter to take the place of the waste.

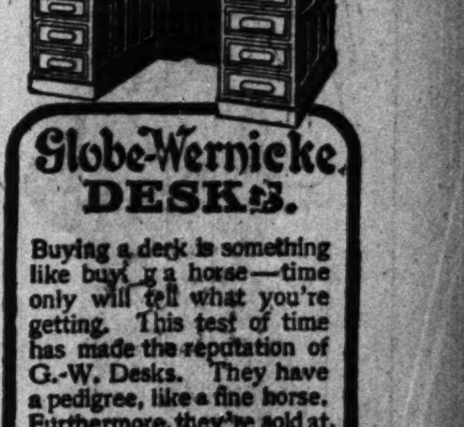

Instead of irritating the nerves and stomach, it soothes and strengthens them.

Almost every human being some time requires a stimulant, NOT AN ALCOHOLIC STIMULANT, not a stimulant that will buoy up for a moment and then cast down to lower depths of depression, but a stimulant that will give an abiding strength and lasting force.

My Paw Paw aids the stomach to digest hearty foods and to make good rich blood, which again in turn strengthens the nerves, vitalizing all the tissues, and soon produces muscle, tissue, bone.

It is my opinion that the clergymen in this country could do no greater service to the cause of temperance than to advocate the general use of my Paw Paw, for by its use drunkenness would be lessened, and the morals and health of the community greatly improved.

"WE WANT A MAN

familiar with our line of business."
That is said to us every day. Do you realize its significance. It means that there is open a position requiring a man of ability, who knows enough of their business so that he can jump right into a responsible position, and take the direction of affairs. It means a position of more than ordinary character is open, and the RIGHT man is needed. Advertising seldom finds him, because an ad. can't tell all the requirements of the place, and because, further, such men are not answering "blind" ads. They want to know to whom they are addressing themselves, before making any application.
By our system all uncertainties and possible embarrassments are eliminated.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1903.

Death of William G. Hibbard.

Within a period of less than two weeks Henry J. Willing, William J. Hemstreet, Robert H. Countiss, J. H. Anderson, William T. Baker, and John S. Gould, men who for long years had been identified with the industrial and commercial life of Chicago and who were conspicuously identified with its upbuilding, have passed away. And now to this list must be added William G. Hibbard, president and one of the founders of the well known house of Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Co. Mr. Hibbard's business life was spent in Chicago. He came here as a boy, began his mercantile career at the foot of the ladder, and rose to the top as the head of one of the largest wholesale hardware houses in the country. He was possessed of courage, energy, and farsightedness. He helped carry his house through panics with undisturbed credit and through two conflagrations from which it rose phœnix like. One of his partners well says of him: "He never permitted his ambition to have a voice in determining right from wrong or in forwarding his own at the expense of others' interests." The continuous success of the business which he so largely helped to organize of itself speaks volumes for his business ability, his restless energy, and his pleasant relations with his employés. He was a good citizen as well as good merchant, and his connection with and active interest in various institutions which he aided actively with his influence and quietly with his wealth testify to his public spirit. The loss of such a man is a loss to the whole city.

THE NEW CHINESE TREATY.

The new commercial treaty between China and the United States was signed on Thursday last, and now awaits ratification by the senate. The negotiations have been conducted by Secretary Hay with skill, courage, and open handedness. He has insisted that the treaty shall not be involved in the political affairs of any other nation, that China must make the concessions regardless whether Russia quits Manchuria or remains there, and that Russia likewise must recognize the treaty as binding, whatever her intentions toward Manchuria might be. All her demands have been conceded, and this country has secured the most favorable treaty yet made with China without any juggling or trickery with the diplomatic cards, but playing them on the table "face up"—a treaty so advantageous that it is reported Great Britain will seek one containing the same rights guaranteed under the favored nation clause.

The treaty contains numerous provisions tending to closer trade relations between the two countries. It permits Americans to engage in mining in China. It protects Chinese Christians and missionaries, and it opens two ports in Manchuria to trade, Mukden and Antung, on the Yalu river. The clause, however, which contains the most important concession of all is that which stipulates that the Chinese government, after the ratification of the treaty, shall abandon the levy of "likin" and all other transit dues through the empire, and abolish all the barriers and tax stations maintained for their collection. In return, if the other treaty powers agree to do the same, the United States will pay at the port of entry a surtax of one and a half times the tariff import duty, which will be in lieu of all other taxation within the empire. The "likin" was, in effect, a robber tax. It was levied by viceroys, not according to any law or system but just as suited their caprices, or necessities, or rapacities. Hitherto the "likin" has confined foreign trade to the coast. Its abolition will open up trade in the interior of the Celestial empire.

LONG'S ATTACK UPON ROOSEVELT.

Mr. John D. Long, ex-secretary of the navy, has contributed to the current number of the Outlook an article upon "The New American Navy," in the course of which he goes out of his way to cast a slur upon the conduct of President Roosevelt when he was assistant secretary of the navy. Mr. Long in his rather unkind article only convicts himself of self-contradiction and misstatement. He compliments Mr. Roosevelt for his intelligence, industry, and enthusiasm, for his helpfulness in the purchase of ships, and his restless energy in pushing forward preparations for the Spanish war. Having done this, he turns round and says:

> His ardor sometimes went faster than the president or the department approved. Just before the war he, as well as some naval officers, was anxious to send a squadron across the ocean to sink the ships and torpedo boat destroyers of the Spanish fleet while we were yet at peace with Spain.

The gravamen of Mr. Long's charge is contained in the above quotation. Manifestly Mr. Roosevelt did not wish to sink the Spanish ships and torpedo boat destroyers while we were at peace with Spain. The charge is almost too senseless to be worth denial. What he wished was to be in position to sink them with expedition the moment war was proclaimed. "While we were yet at peace with Spain" he wished to be prepared for war. His energy and foresight were amply vindicated by the battle of Manila bay. He was more responsible than any other for sending Dewey to the Asiatic station and for hurrying ammunition across the continent to him when Long was half asleep. The latter seeks to make it appear that this ammunition only went to San Francisco, but there are too many misstatements in this article to justify belief in this particular statement. The ammunition that went to San Francisco was intended merely to make good the deficiencies created by shipments from San Francisco to Hongkong.

In the absence of Long Roosevelt acted as secretary of the navy. He was responsible for the action of the department and undoubtedly he went over, under, and all around the orders of his superior officer. It was natural he should do so, for he was a man of action, while Long was a man of peace and a slow coach generally. It was insubordination perhaps for Roosevelt to take the initiative, but the occasion called for insubordination.

If Roosevelt had not supplied the deficiencies which Long created or permitted to exist there might have been no battle at Manila bay, and the war might have been greatly prolonged. The action by Dewey in front of Manila may not have been as great as it was thought to be at the time, for he had more vessels and more expert gunners than the Spaniards, but the importance of the victory cannot be overestimated. As in the case of Gettysburg and Vicksburg in the civil war, when the result was proclaimed all talk of European intervention ceased.

Roosevelt deserves almost as much credit for that achievement in Manila bay as Dewey, and much of the credit for the persistent target practice of the two years preceding the war, which so greatly improved the precision and effectiveness of our gunners, belongs to him. Roosevelt may indeed be grateful for the enemies he has made, even though the president of the Peace society, Mr. Long, happens to be one of them. The latter has so grossly overstated his case as to destroy the validity of many of his own statements and to cast suspicion upon all of them. He has vindicated Roosevelt in the estimation of fair men, while at the same time he has exposed himself to accusations of unfairness and jealousy which it will be difficult for him or for his friends to answer.

BOARD OF TRADE: BUCKET SHOPS.

The opinion prepared by Judge Shiras of the United States Court of Appeals, adverse to the Chicago board of trade in its long contention with the bucket shops, also is adverse in its most essential points to the report made by the master in chancery to whom the case was referred. The learned judge seems to be of the opinion that the trading on 'change is, on the whole, illegal in its character, while Master Daniels holds to the contrary. Such a disagreement invites independent study of the character of business done on the board and its influence on the community.

The average time interval between the buying of grain from the farmer in the west and selling it as grain or flour to the ultimate consumer in the eastern states, or in Europe, is a long one. The business man who should assume the pecuniary responsibility for the complete movement between producer and consumer would undertake a heavier risk of loss from price changes during the interval than from ordinary accidents in transportation, and would be obliged to charge accordingly. The risk is minimized to a most important extent by the process which some people call "hedging," and which they, or some others, profess to think is "gambling." The country buyer, or the company which wires bids to him, sends orders to a commission merchant on 'change to sell for future delivery an aggregate substantially equal to that of his purchases from day to day, and, knowing the price he can get for it, he knows how much he can afford to pay the farmer for his wagon loads as they are offered. When he sells a cargo or train load he sends his order to buy in a corresponding quantity, and it is important to remember that a knowledge of the price at which such purchase is made, or can be made, determines for him the price at which he can afford to sell the actual property for shipment. Similarly, the miller who buys wheat for conversion into flour protects himself by selling on 'change (through the board of trade firm) and buying there when he sells the flour. The untold millions of bushels of corn which are bought from the farmer to be held in cribs through the winter, and shelled in the spring or summer for shipment, require, and get, a similar protection, and the vast packing business of the country is protected substantially in the same way. It is not alone the half a billion dollars' worth of produce that comes to this city annually but that vast volume which goes around us, the wheat that goes to Minneapolis and the flour that goes thence, the grain which is shipped directly east from Duluth and even the Canadian country, and much of what goes southward and eastward without passing through Chicago at all, which is sold against and bought against on our board of trade.

If it were necessary to make actual delivery of all the property thus traded in the cost of handling in the aggregate would be tremendous. This cost is in large part avoided by the offsetting of trades between members, under the operation of rules for their guidance, and the practice surely is just as legitimate as is the transfer of a fire insurance policy when a piece of property is sold during the life of the contract with the insurance company. And the great benefit arising from resort to this plan of "protection" and transfer, where the latter is deemed most convenient to the parties, is evident from the testimony presented in the case in question, and which testimony is undisputed, that it effects a saving of 3 to 8 cents per bushel of wheat as compared with "business done in the old way." The middle man can afford to charge that much less than he would be obliged to do if he assumed the whole risk in the transaction, and this important benefit is divided between the producer and the consumer. How much of our vast export business in produce is due to the adoption of this plan of trading it is impossible to say, but doubtless the percentage is a large one, as the improved methods increase the ability of sellers here to compete with others in the foreign markets without being obliged to pay only starvation prices to the producer in this country.

No doubt some of the trading on 'change is of a kind which some people would call gambling, but that fact is no more to be charged against the board of trade and its regulations than is the sin of gluttony committed by some eaters to be laid at the doors of those who make a business of selling food. The trading in futures on the board enormously helps the commerce of the world, and is especially valuable to the producer as furnishing him with the means of judging for himself whether or not the prices offered him for his property are reasonable, and if it would be better for him to hold on awhile or let go in the present. On the other hand, the alleged "trading" in the bucket shop is nothing else than betting, and that of a kind which does not help to the extent of a single iota in the movement of produce, and it actually is a detriment in the following respect: The farmer who patronizes the bucket shop almost invariably is a "buyer"; that is, he bets the proprietor that prices will go higher. But in doing so he puts into the hands of the latter a pecuniary weapon to be used against himself, because the bucket shop man is interested in "bearing" the market whenever he operates upon it at all.

One other point, in closing: If the character of the business on the board be so bad as is alleged in the arguments made for the bucket shop men, what do they want with the quotations, anyhow? Surely, if they are the virtuous people they pretend to be, they would disdain to touch those quotations with a long pole, instead of moving heaven and earth in the effort to obtain them.

PROTECTION FOR EMPLOYES.

"I believe it to be the duty of the employer to protect his employés in the same spirit in which he protects his family." This sentence from Mr. Pliny B. Smith's letter to THE TRIBUNE on the garnishment of wages holds up an ideal which is too frequently obscured and neglected.

An employé gets into debt. His reasons for getting into debt are often good. Whether good or not, they are effective. Once in debt, he finds it hard to get out. He fails to satisfy his creditors. A complaisant justice, accepting the dubious affidavit and bond of an unscrupulous collection agency, issues an attachment writ on the debtor's wages. Here comes in the responsibility of the employer. Shall he suspend the debtor until his debt is paid, thereby placing him at the mercy of the collection agency, or shall he make the case of the debtor his own and protect poverty and ignorance against money and experience?

Mr. Smith states that in many cases employés are suspended as soon as legal proceedings against their wages are begun. This means that the employé, sometimes innocent, usually impoverished and always bewildered, finds himself on the street unable to cope with the wiles of his adversaries and obliged to accept any terms that they may offer him before he can regain his employment. The bitter tale of the extortions practiced under such circumstances will never be fully told. The victims have neither the gift nor the avenue of expression.

There are employers who during the periodic investigations of justice court evils take occasion to express their detestation of those evils and to offer up a public prayer for their removal. It may be that if some of these employers will investigate their own factories and workshops they will find that by their failure to protect their employés they have become silent partners in the firm of Justice, Collector, Constable & Co. Let that partnership be dissolved.

Promising Beginning.

"How is the new girl going to do?" asked Mr. Ferguson.

"She hasn't had much experience," said his wife, "but I think she will be all right when she gets broken in."

There came a loud sound of falling crockery from the kitchen.

"She seems to be making a good start, anyhow," observed Mr. Ferguson, encouragingly.

"Your hair is rather long," suggested the barber.

"That's the way I like it," said the man in the chair. "Spare me your conversation. All I want is a shave."

The barber lathered his face in silence. Then he strapped his razor.

"I suppose," he said, "you've been looking at some of those pictures in the funny papers that show how barbers talk their customers to death."

"Worse than that," retorted the man in the chair. "I draw the pictures."

The shave he got after that may perhaps be imagined.

LETTER OF MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

Copyright: 1903: By the Marquise de Fontenoy.

EMPEROR Nicholas, realizing that the 50,000 peasants of Russia, although the most neglected and impoverished class of the empire, are nevertheless the backbone of the latter, has on his personal initiative caused the creation of a new state fund for the benefit of the needy Moujik, and with the special object of rendering aid to that agriculture which is after all the staple industry of Russia. The late Czar Alexander III. devised similar measures for the benefit of the aristocracy ruined by extravagance and its inability to adapt itself to the new economic conditions resulting from the emancipation of the serfs. He considered the aristocracy to be the chief bulwark of the throne and of the dynasty, and was ready, therefore, to go to great lengths in order to preserve them from the ruin by which they had been overtaken.

Nicholas II., however, is more advanced in his ideas, and appreciates the fact that the Russian peasantry is a source of much greater strength to the crown and to the nation than the aristocracy, and is in consequence thereof devoting his personal attention to the improvement of their condition. The fund in question will be dispensed through the land banks, the administration of which is to be extensively changed, and while the powers of the minister of the interior are to be curtailed in so far as they relate to the peasantry and to agriculture, those of the minister of the imperial domain, who is likewise at the head of the agricultural department, are to be considerably increased.

This is not the only matter in which Emperor Nicholas has displayed an initiative and an independence of character with which he has not until now been credited either at home or abroad. It seems that he appointed Admiral Alexeief to the post of viceroy of all Russia's possessions in the far orient without consulting any of his ministers, that he transferred Count Witte from the office of minister of finance to the presidency of the council of ministers without any warning whatsoever, and that the appointment of M. Pleske to succeed De Witte at the head of the treasury was likewise his own personal choice, of which no one knew anything until he made announcement thereof, although it proved eminently agreeable to De Witte, who has long been a warm friend of M. Pleske.

It is Nicholas, too, who personally on his own initiative dismissed from office and banished to the remote province of Tamboff, General and Privy Councilor Subatoff, who was chief of the imperial police, and occupied as such one of the most influential offices in the empire. It was only subsequent to his disgrace that the emperor allowed it to become known why he had thus punished him, the cause being that the general was found to have fomented through his agents provocateurs disturbances at Odessa and elsewhere in the south for the purpose of discouraging the emperor from the inauguration of a more liberal régime, as well as from restricting the extraordinary powers of the police, and also with the object of enabling him to obtain an addition to the immense secret service funds which he had at his absolute disposal.

Incidentally I may mention that there is no truth whatsoever in the stories which are constantly appearing in the foreign press concerning the alleged delicacy of health of Grand Duke Michael, the heir apparent and only surviving brother of the czar. He is forever being portrayed as so much of an invalid as to render it out of the question that he should ever succeed to the throne. Yet nothing could be further from the truth. He is not merely in excellent health but likewise strong and sturdy, and, thanks to an American trainer, has developed into a perfect athlete and is today known as the strong man of the imperial family. Already tall, with a well knit frame, the grand duke has now developed into a fine specimen of manhood, with a thorough understanding not only of the manly art of self-defense but likewise of wrestling and of tackling a man at close quarters. While he is not a giant like his father and his uncles, the Grand Dukes Alexis and Paul, he is nevertheless well set up and stalwart, infinitely more limber and athletic than they can ever boast of having been, and presents an amusing and wholesome contrast to the prince in the last stages of consumption, as which he is continually being portrayed in the foreign press.

Without wishing in any way to champion the cause of the Turkish sultan or of his soldiers, it is only fair to call attention to the fact that the outrages perpetrated in the southeast of Europe cannot be laid exclusively at the door of the Ottoman troops. The terrible stories of Turkish outrages, with the now familiar picture of the three heads of Macedonian insurgents recently decapitated, which for months past has been appearing in all the European and American newspapers, has its counterpart in the photograph of the terrible scene presented when the insurgents dynamited a fortnight or so ago the orient express on its way from Vienna to Constantinople, the victims who were subjected to the most frightful injuries being perfectly innocent passengers, largely composed of women and children.

Moreover, it is altogether wrong to describe the struggles between the sultan and the Macedonian insurgents as a struggle between the Crescent and the Cross. For Greeks, not merely living under the rule of the sultan, but likewise from the Hellenic kingdom itself, are volunteering in large numbers for service under the Ottoman flag against the Macedonian insurgents.

This is not so astonishing when it is borne in mind that Bulgarian and Macedonian bands have perpetrated quite as terrible outrages among the Greek villages on the Black sea coast as have the Turkish soldiers in Macedonian and Bulgarian villages. Indeed, the Greek premier and many of the leading statesmen have expressed astonishment that the great powers should dream of preventing Turkey from destroying the filibustering bands which infest, desolate, and ruin her finest European provinces.

"Would the powers wish," they ask, "that the Greek government should condone the bandits, who massacre our defenseless brothers, dishonor our women, burn farms and houses, dynamite schools and churches? Would they wish that the Greek government should show itself insensible to the great sufferings of so many thousands of Greeks whom Bulgarian and Macedonian miscreants have left without food or shelter?"

Prince Henry of Prussia has once more sent his boy, Prince Waldemar, to a sanitarium, where he has derived so much benefit to his health in the past, and thanks to which he is developing into a strong and sturdy youth. This sanitarium is one of the curiosities of modern Germany and consists to a great extent of a sun and air cure, although it includes hot steam baths, massage, abstinence from tea, coffee, and all forms of alcohol. The principal feature of the treatment is, however, the effect of open air and sunshine on the skin, and the consequence is that the garments worn are of the most elementary description.

A LINE-O'-TYPE OR TWO.

Mary and Ann.

(The following puzzle, which started at Harvard, is rapidly upsetting the peace of mind of the public: Mary is 24 years old. Mary is twice as old as Ann was when Mary was as old as Ann is now. How old is Ann?)

"The thing," said Brown, "is simple—
It is as plain as day,
As easy as the dimple
That to Ann's check will stray.
When Ann, the cunning fairy,
Was at her present age,
I figure out that Mary
Was at the short skirt stage.

"That is, if into fractions
Decisively we delve,
We learn that Mary's actions
Would prove that she was twelve.
Therefore—O, this is easy,
There's nothing else to say
Except that Ann, the breezy,
It twelve years old today."

"That so?" asked Smith, politely.
"Now, think of it again:
Miss Mary—count it rightly—
Was twelve years older then—
That is, when gentle Annie
Was half as old as she.
The whole thing sounds uncanny—
It surely bothers me.

"If Mary—let's see, does she
Own up to twenty-four?
Then, Brown, I ask you, was she
Just twelve, or somewhat more?
For Ann, you see, was not then
As old as she is now.
Uh, huh. What have you got then?
We're surely wrong somehow.

"Ann's not as old as Mary,
But when the latter's age
Was something light and airy
She was just at the stage
Where she had Ann outnumbered
By two to one—but then
Our figures are incumbered
With Annie's age again."

"That's right," said Brown, agreeing.
"Let's take another start.
When Ann, the lovely being
Was—Say, she'd be too smart
To tell us what her age was
At either then or now.
I wonder who the sage was
That started all this row."

Said Smith: "An algebraic
Equation proves to me
That Ann is both archaic
And full of girlish glee—
That she is sweet and twenty,
Also that she's eighteen,
A hundred good and plenty,
Or any age between!"

And so they said they'd drop it—
This Mary's-age-and-Ann—
But found they could not stop it,
Nor yet can any man.
Perhaps in the next census
The answer will be told;
But, until that commences,
Do you think she's that old?

STANZAS.

BY ELIZABETH BARRETT BROWNING.

I MAY sing; but minstrel's singing
Ever ceaseth with his playing.
I may smile; but time is bringing Thoughts for smiles to wear away in.
I may view thee, mutely loving;
But shall view thee so in dying!
I may sigh; but life's removing,
And with breathing endeth sighing!
Be it so!

When no song of mine comes near thee,
Will its memory fail to soften?
When no smile of mine can cheer thee,
Will thy smile be used as often?
When my looks the darkness boundeth,
Will thy own be lighted after?
When my sigh no longer soundeth,
Wilt thou list another's laughter?
Be it so!

OF millionaire farmers, so-called, there are a plenty. But most of them are men who made their millions in manufacturing, or the stock exchange, or somewhere else, and then bought a few thousand acres of land and built a country house as a matter of amusement and recreation.

The millionaire farmer who has made his money out of the land and what grows out of and on it is not common. But he does exist.

Ride for three hours on the railroad almost due south of Chicago and you will come to the thriving and pretty little town of Rossville. Take a carriage there and drive for three miles out through the rich prairie country and over the elastic dirt roads and you will come to the farm of Abraham Mann Jr.

Seventy years ago the father of Mr. Mann settled on the land where his son now lives and took up a homestead from the government. At that time there were seven houses between the Mann place and the village of Chicago. Today five of those houses are within the city limits of Chicago. Just before the Mann cabin ran the ancient Hubbard trail, along which the early fur traders drove their pack ponies, laden with beaver and buffalo skins.

Abraham Mann Jr.

The elder Mann was a thrifty and far sighted farmer. Yearly he added to his land holdings. Today his son owns a princely estate of 5,600 acres of land, all of which is fertile. Of the big farm 4,600 acres are under the plow, and yearly yield great crops of corn and other grains. Four hundred of the remaining thousand are still covered with the virgin forests which grew along the edges of the prairie creeks. The other 600 acres are prairie lands. They have never been touched by the plow, and the shorthorn cattle and blooded horses of Abraham Mann feed on the buffalo grass which in early days made most of Illinois a favorite pasture for countless thousands of shaggy bison.

The house of Abraham Mann Jr. stands back 200 yards or more from the road. It cost some $60,000 to build, and architecturally and otherwise would do vast credit to the Lake Shore drive. Before it rolls away for a hundred and fifty yards a beautiful blue grass lawn, thickly dotted by great oak and black walnut trees.

Inside the house is handsomely and comfortably finished and furnished and is fitted with every convenience that the city dweller boasts of. In the bathrooms one finds hot and cold water, and there is a complete sewerage system which takes care of the waste. The house is lit with gas generated on the place.

A dinner at the Mann house is something of a revelation. The dining room is a huge apartment, with a big fireplace at one end which burns cordwood. Twenty or more guests can be seated at the table, and the menu is likely to include yellow legged chickens and a dozen other country delicacies of which city people get only the shadows even under the best circumstances.

There is a good sized library in the house and most of the current magazines lie on the tables. The telephone in the big hall gives quick communication with all the surrounding country.

Beyond the lawn is the deer park, where in a wooded inclosure of many acres a splendid herd of some fifty deer feed in perfect security.

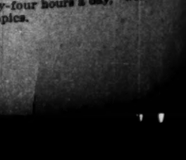

They tell a story down in Vermilion county which throws a certain light on the character of Mr. Mann. Every year when the holidays draw near Mr. Mann makes up his mind that he will have a haunch of venison for Christmas dinner. So he loads his rifle, throws it over his shoulder, and starts for the deer park with the announcement that he is going down to shoot a deer.

He goes into the deer park with the most warlike demeanor possible. As a rule the deer are almost tame and they stand and look at the approaching hunter with unconscious appeal in their big, melting eyes. The hunter looks at them. Once, it is said, he got so far as to draw a bead on the shoulder of a big buck, but never yet has the trigger been pulled.

Presently he comes back to the house, pulls the load from his rifle, and announces that he is going into Rossville on an errand. He drives in the short three miles and presently thereafter one of the game dealers on South Water street in Chicago gets an order to ship a haunch of venison by express to the address of Abraham Mann Jr.

Mr. Mann does not rent any of his land. It is all worked under his own personal direction, and the years when his farm does not pay a big profit are not worth considering.

Mr. and Mrs. Mann have no children, but there are almost always a number of visitors in the house. Mr. Mann is now 72 years old. He decided recently that he would sell the larger part of his shorthorn cattle, as the care of the big herd took more time and attention than he felt able to give it. So one day a week ago hundreds of farmers from all the surrounding country drove to the Mann place, prepared to spend the day and to buy some shorthorns if they found prices to their liking. Down on the oak shaded lawns the women of the church from Rossville served "a good square meal" to the visitors, and the cattle sold for prices ranging from $200 to $5,000 a head, the latter price being paid for a bull which had been at the head of the Mann herd.

The Mann Residence.

Mr. Mann has never taken any part in politics except that of voting. Some years ago he built, at his own expense, a church near the farm, at which he and his wife are attendants.

The feeling seems to be general that farmers are of two classes, rich "play" farmers who have moved out from the city with large fortunes and now amuse themselves by living on handsome estates, and hard working, practical farmers who have a hard time in getting enough to eat and know little or nothing of the comforts of life. Mr. Mann and his big farm are a sufficient demonstration of the fact that there are practical farmers who not only have made large fortunes out of real farming but who also enjoy quite as much comfort, not to say luxury, as the most fortunate of the city dwellers can boast.

Perhaps one way to "keep the boys on the farm" would be to call their attention to cases like this. And there are many like it scattered all over the middle west.

WEST SIDE WOMEN TO BUILD HOUSE FOR GUNTHER CURIOS.

Club Members Think Rich Men Selfish Because None Will Give the Entire $30 000—Smaller Sums Are Sought.

As no one man can be found who will give $30,000 to build a museum to hold the C. F. Gunther collection of curios, the west side club women will try to raise the money by small subscriptions.

"Human nature is not broad enough yet for one man to be willing to donate as much as $30,000 to perpetuate another man's name," said Mrs. J. C. Vaughan of the West End Woman's club yesterday at the meeting of the Chicago Culture club.

The West End Woman's club stands sponsor for the movement to raise the $30,000, and Mrs. Vaughan took the opening of the Culture club as a good time to enlist the sympathies of her sister club members.

"Mr. Gunther has offered to give the collection to the west side if the people will demonstrate their appreciation by building a house to hold it," she said. "Such a building will cost $30,000. The west park commissioners have agreed to furnish the site."

The club women then agreed to raise the amount by small subscriptions within a year.

It was reciprocity day at the Culture club, and after Mrs. H. A. Phillips, the president, had delivered her annual address, greetings were offered by Mrs. Richard Phillips, president of the Arché club, and Mrs. J. W. Hiner, president of the Chicago South Side club.

PREPARES TO DIG IN BABYLONIA.

President Harper Returns from New York and Says Expedition Was Object of His Trip.

President William R. Harper of the University of Chicago returned yesterday from his quick trip to New York. Dr. Harper said, in talking of the object and result of his trip:

"I went to New York to confer with some archeologists in regard to our proposed expedition to Babylonia. The matter was discussed in detail, and several cablegrams were sent to Constantinople, but they were of a technical nature and had to do merely with details of arrangement."

Dr. Harper admitted that the question of Rush Medical college and its reorganization as a part of the university was taken up, but said that the matter remained in exactly the same situation as before. It is understood that the union is assured, but that many details are yet to be worked out.

Temperance Work in Sunday School Will Be Special Feature of State Convention.

Delegates from all parts of the state are in Chicago to attend the annual convention of the Illinois Woman's Christian Temperance union, which will begin tomorrow morning in the hall of the Association building. Special attention will be given to temperance work in the Sunday school, and plans will be formulated for interesting the children.

An attendance of 1,200 delegates is expected. Many amendments to the new state constitution will be offered

EXPECT CIVIC FEDERATION TO PACK STEINWAY HALL.

Business Men Meet to Devise Ways of Arousing Interest and Learn That More Room Probably Will Be Needed

Business men of the city met at the Illinois Trust and Savings bank yesterday to devise ways of arousing interest in the coming convention of the National Civic federation. Reports were heard from those in active charge of the plans, and it was announced that Steinway hall may prove too small and that tickets of admission may have to be sent out.

Several of the business men and labor leaders who are to take part in the convention have reached the city. President John Mitchell of the United Mine Workers arrived in the afternoon, and President W. D. Mahon of the street car men came in late last night. President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor is expected today.

The New York city delegation, headed by President Oscar Straus of the New York board of trade, will leave there tonight in a special car. With them will come the labor leaders of the east. The St. Louis delegation is expected tomorrow, as is Senator M. A. Hanna and Archbishop Ireland.

While the convention is in progress the labor men will hold several informal gatherings to talk over the coming convention of the American Federation of Labor at Boston.

Secretary Easley of the federation announced last night that the full program of the sessions will be furnished tonight. The last day will be given over to a discussion of the joint trade agreement, as it is possible the federation will adopt this method of keeping industrial peace as one of its cardinal principles.

JEWISH WOMEN IN COUNCIL.

In Sinai Temple Mrs. Amigh of Geneva Appeals for Aid for Wayward Girls.

"The state has the right to step in when parents look upon their children as so many dollars and depend on them for support, no matter how earned. The state has spent much money for the wayward boys, and much good is being done for thousands of them. Little attention has been given to the delinquent girls."

This statement was made by Mrs. Ophelia Amigh, matron of the state home at Geneva, in her address yesterday before the meeting in Sinai temple of the Chicago Council of Jewish Women. Mrs. Amigh told of the work of the Juvenile court and appealed for support.

Mrs. Murray C. Mayer reported upon the vacation schools which the council aided last summer. She exhibited art work done by the children.

"The board of education contributed only $1,000 to the support of the vacation schools, the other $9,000 being contributed by Chicago women," declared Mrs. Mayer.

The subject of home libraries, which the Chicago Library club is establishing throughout the city, was treated by Miss E. Dickey.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE

Conducted by the School of Domestic Arts and Science of Chicago. . . . .

"It is the same hand that works and that prays, not a different one; unless it can do both it has not fulfilled its highest opportunity; and it is given you to train such hands that they in their turn may go into the world with the spirit that dignifies labor and that brings worship into every day life."—President Hazard of Wellesley College to the graduating class at the Boston School of Domestic Sciences.

LESSON NO. 70—Field for Colored Women.

NO class of American women are more in need of the educational helpfulness of schools of domestic science than colored women. This is so, chiefly because this is the one field in which colored women meet with almost no opposition, while they are discriminated against in almost every other kind of employment open to white women.

School teaching in colored schools in the south and domestic service are about the only occupations to which there is no bar on account of color. If a colored girl obtains employment outside of these it is an exception, and due either to special merit or good fortune. The national habit of saying "no" to her every request for employment in office, shop, or factory acts spontaneously in every direction, and she finds herself powerless to resent or protest against this unfair treatment.

The census of 1890 shows that out of the 7,000 colored women in Chicago only about 1,409 of them were employed in gainful occupations, and 1,200 of these were employed as domestics.

This percentage will hold quite generally north and south. The demand for colored help in the north exceeds the supply, while in the south no other help is acceptable. The fact is that competent colored women are everywhere in favor for housework and cooking, and they might have almost a monopoly if the conditions of the service could be made more attractive to the more intelligent of them.

The fact that they are not more numerously employed in housework is due chiefly to the following reasons:

1. The young colored woman who is educated for "something better," like the educated and refined young white woman, finds the present condition of the service humiliating to her pride, as it often happens that when she does do housework for pay she loses social caste among her associates and friends.

2. Colored women have not had the advantage of training in domestic science schools. It has not been brought to the attention of the educated colored woman, who wants to do something that is "respectable," that training, such as is given in these schools changes the whole character of domestic service, and that what is regarded as a "servant's work," when indifferently and ignorantly done, is raised to the dignity of a profession by the women of intelligence and character who graduate from these schools.

The young colored women who have been trained in the domestic science departments of Hampton and Tuskegee, and in Dr. Jones' cooking school in Richmond, Va., find instant and constant employment, and are not regarded as servants, in an offensive sense, either by their associates or employers These young women are not only respected and protected, but they receive better compensation than three-fourths of the white girls who are employed as clerks in offices and stores.

There is no field of employment for competent young colored women that offers so many good opportunities for them to elevate their condition in life and win the favor of the people as that of this new profession of domestic science. It is an occupation that intelligence elevates, that character adorns and ennobles, and that even now brings a higher salary to women than almost any other kind of employment.

There is still another consideration which suggests the importance to the colored people generally of being interested in the improvement of domestic service as an occupation for their young women. I believe that it is in the power of these young women, by the right sort of training and intelligence, to solve the vexatious "servant girl problem," and in thousands of American homes give to the race a better standard of character. White people, north and south, have fallen into the albeit unjust habit of estimating the entire race from the standpoint of their own servant girls.

When intelligence takes the place of ignorance, and efficiency and self-respect takes the place of shiftlessness and irresponsibility among those of our women who cook the food and render other service in American homes, one of the chief causes of race prejudice will have been removed. This does not mean that there are not now many colored women already in this service who fulfill the requirements of intelligence and integrity of character.

The more thoughtful of the race cannot fail to see that although colored women are in favor now as domestics, they cannot hold this advantage long if they fail to keep abreast with the advancing intelligence that an improved service demands.

There is no reason why the colored girl who receives the proper training in a school of domestic science should not be regarded as highly and treated as well as the colored girl who is scientifically trained as a nurse. The importance of the one is no greater than that of the other.

Though the schools of domestic science in Chicago are open to all, I believe it is true that few colored women have thus far taken advantage of their privileges. Something ought to be done to call their attention to the advantages offered by this kind of training. They have demonstrated their versatility and adaptability for every kind of work. They have alertness, patience, disposition, strength of character, and the other virtues that make up the efficient woman.

It is certainly worth while to interest these women in the new profession that is being created by the schools of domestic science. The service needs the gracious, bright, and capable young colored woman quite as much as she needs the service.

Twelve Library Rules—

For the home library, the haven whither the unlucky wight, kept indoors by steady rain overhead and steady slush underfoot, seeks retreat to pass many quiet hours of pleasant peace.

1. Arrange your books on their shelves into classes, according to the subjects they treat of.
2. Put everything in its proper place.
3. Keep directories, atlases, and lexicons in convenient places, perhaps a separate case.
4. Have your name and address easy to behold in the front of every volume.
5. If you have your books specially bound it is handy to have one style of binding and color for a given class of books.
6. Be wary of animals in the library. Newton lost the priceless results of many years' study through the pranks of his little pet dog.
7. Be chary of servants among your books. Carlyle bade a mournful farewell to the first part of his history of the French revolution while it was in manuscript because his servant required its assistance in kindling a fire.
8. Avoid dampness or excessive heat. Books flourish on warm, dry air, which preserves their bindings.
9. Do not transform your library into a refreshment room for a juvenile party.
10. Do not litter the tables and the room with notes, letters, and manuscripts. Keep each in folding pads, in drawers, or in files.
11. Do not leave a book open face downward in order to mark the place where you have ceased reading; it is ruin to all but a few specially bound books.
12. Have a good index or catalogue of the books of your library. Said Thomas Carlyle, a library without a catalogue is a "Polyphemus without an eye in his head."

The Knowing Chambermaid—

In making a bed, lay bolster and pillows aside after a slight shake.

Free the mattress of bed clothes if they have not already been put to sun.

Raise the mattress and allow it to stay in an arch for a few minutes to let the air reach the paillasse or spring bed.

She then turns the mattress head to foot or side to side to equalize the wear, and kneads and shakes it well to prevent lumps from gathering.

She lays the binder blanket smoothly over the mattress, then the sheet, and tucks sheet and blanket firmly in at foot and sides.

She shakes and tosses the bolster well and sees that the feathers are evenly distributed, and strains the sheet evenly and carefully over it, if no bolster case is used, to prevent folds and creases.

She then lays on the top sheet, tucking it in well, first at the foot end, and drawing it straight and even at the top.

She repeats this process with the blankets and the coverlet, folds the blankets and sheets well in under the mattress, and lets the sides of the coverlet hang evenly and loose over them all.

She turns back the top of the sheet half a foot over blankets and coverlet, and finally turns all together back just below the bolster.

She shakes the pillows as she did the bolster, places them in position, and then, when she has laid the eiderdown quilt in place at the foot of the bed, she rejoices over a task successfully accomplished.

Every day she tests the mattress, and every week she brushes and overhauls the entire bed.

A Bride's Luck—

The girl who dreams of fairies the night before her wedding will be thrice blessed.

"Happily is the bride that the sun shines on," but if a few drops of rain fall on her veil on the way to church it is a good omen. If she wants to have sunshiny wedding day and subsequent good fortune she must be careful never to ill-treat cats, for if she does so the bridal day will be wild and rainy, and that means ill luck and sickness for one or both of the married pair.

Swedish brides fill their pockets with bread, which they give to every one they meet on their way to church, for each slice thus distributed is supposed to avert a misfortune in their new life.

To stumble going into church, or to drop, lose, or break the wedding ring is said to be an evil omen, but the bridegroom who carries a horseshoe on his wedding day may expect good luck all his life.

Among fisherfolk a growing moon and a flowing tide are supposed to be the proper time for weddings, and in many parts of the country a marriage which takes place with a waning moon is still deemed unlucky.

The Irish peasants say that if a pair of cuckoos appear at the door of a house there will be a wedding before the year is out. Magpies, crows, or ravens are considered ill omened birds to meet at a wedding; and should geese or ducks fly across the path of the bridal party the husband will be henpecked all his days! If a cock crows while the procession is passing the pair will always be quarreling; and the same thing will occur if a dog should run between them. Doves, swallows, or a flock of sheep mean riches and good fortune for the happy pair.

And what are the American bride's superstitions? She has none. She merely is lightly amused at the superstitions of others.

House Dust Is Compounded—

Of "fluff" from the clothing, particles worn off from the floor, ceilings, walls, furniture, etc., soot and ashes blowing in from outside or welling up from a basement, hairs, feathers, crumbs, and particles from the body.

Some of this soil settles on the floor and furniture and can be removed by sweeping and dusting, some settles on the wall and ceiling, so that they also require frequent sweeping and rubbing and periodical painting, whitewashing, papering, or other covering.

If this soil be suffered to accumulate in rooms it gives them a stuffy, unpleasant odor, affords a breeding ground for insects, fungi, and bacteria, and is likely to be diffused through the air when a window is opened or furniture moved.

The inorganic part of the soil in time undergoes decomposition and has, in a less degree, effects like those of sewer gas.

It is the part of prudence to have furniture as plain and smooth of surface as may be.

There should be no corners and crevices from which the dust cannot be dislodged.

The best walls have a smooth surface from which the dust can be readily wiped.

There should be no projecting cornices near the ceiling in which dust can accumulate.

Cupboards and cabinets should either reach to the ceiling or have smooth tops.

Needless furniture, being needless, should not be admitted to absorb the all too small air space which each occupant of any room can get.

Carpets, rugs, curtains, and draperies should be frequently brushed and shaken.

Plain wood has a vast power of absorbing inorganic matters, hence the floors that are not carpeted should be stained and varnished or covered with linoleum.

Beds should be of iron instead of wood and without heavy canopies.

Rubbish should not accumulate in any quarter of the house.

Thus saith the expert cleaner, and he saith well.

STEADY PRESSURE OF "LONG" WHEAT ON THE MARKET.

Export Demand Lacking, European Requirements Evidently Being Supplied by Other Countries, Both Russian and Danubian Shipments Larger than American—Domestic Supplies Increase but Slowly and Cash Demand Continues Excellent—Corn Lacks Support.

It was an off day in the wheat pit yesterday, closing prices being ⅝c to ⅜c lower than on Saturday, and the local tone inclined to be bearish, at least for the moment. The depressing influences came mainly from scattered lines of long wheat in the hands of small traders, but there were enough of them to make a considerable aggregate of offerings. All the outside markets were lower than on Saturday, New York ⅜c off, St. Louis ⅜c to ½c lower, Duluth ½c down, and Minneapolis ½c to ⅝c lower.

It was not so much an absence of bull news as it was a case of tired longs and no outside trade to amount to anything. Some of the cables reflected a good deal of uneasiness on the other side over the Russia-Japan imbroglio, but it was significant that even with war said to be in sight corn traders were not buying wheat. At the close New York reported only six loads, while local sales were 125,000 bu of No. 2 red at 1½c over the December price in store. Of this cash wheat 100,000 bu will go to the seaboard, nearby milling interests taking the remaining 25,000 bu. World's shipments were about as expected, 10,535,000 bu, with a liberal proportion from Russia and India, the American contribution being light. Russian shipments exceeded American, and those from the Danube were almost as large as could be expected. The Argentine dropped down to 232,000 bu, only about one-half as large as a week ago, but American and Russian shipments were less than last week. The total then was 11,235,000 bu. In wheat on passage, which is now 31,900,000 bu, there was a decrease of 432,000 bu. Liverpool wheat stocks reported at 3,000,000 bu, an increase for the week of 168,000 bu. Last week the decrease was 134,000 bu. The domestic visible increase of 1,579,000 bu, compared with an increase the previous week of 2,050,000 bu, and an increase a year ago of 478,000 bu.

Stocks Not Increasing Rapidly.

Wheat bulls are making some capital out of the fact that the supply is increasing at a much smaller rate than it should at this season of the year, while the total stock is more than 5,000,000 bu less than at this time a year ago. If wheat stocks are to show any substantial increase on the present crop it would appear that wheat must come out more freely from first hands; and it is a fact that it shows no disposition to do so. Receipts in all primary markets yesterday were 1,334,500 bu, as against 1,756,300 bu a year ago. The pit trade was not specially significant, except that nearly all the large and small houses had some wheat for sale. This also applied to Milwaukee and some other outside points. The decline to the low points on both the December and May brought out the moderate inquiry, but not sufficient to bring about more than a fractional recovery. At the close the bulls claimed the market in better speculative position because of the liquidation which removed a blanket from the market and possibly created a short interest.

Corn Missed Recent Support.

In corn there was more or less steady selling, based on the bearish government report, which indicated a crop of 2,177,000,000 bu. This report acted as something of a check to speculative buying, and the continued good weather throughout the belt was also a factor against prices. The loss on the December as compared to Saturday was 1c, while the May closed about ⅝c lower. Statistics of the day, except the government report, were generally bullish, the decrease of 692,000 bu in the domestic visible comparing with an increase the previous week of 764,000 bu. Liverpool stocks are down to 624,000 bu, a falling off for the week of 36,000 bu. Last week there was an increase of this condition of 96,000 bu. The most significant showing was made in public houses, which were reported at 1,718,000 bu, a decrease for the week of 1,206,000 bu. Receipts for the day were 276,000 bu, as against shipments of 1,020,000 bu. A relative showing was made at all primary points where receipts were 440,700 bu and shipments 1,145,700 bu. The cash market was easy with futures ½@⅝c lower, with sales of 250,000 bu. Country offerings were practically nothing and all shippers were after corn. New York reported 15 loads.

Oats Lose Some Ground.

The oats market felt the effect of the surrounding depression, December and May closing ⅜c lower. The government report on this grain was construed as bearish, indicating as it did a crop of 787,000,000 bu, against the last estimate of 690,000,000 bu. A large percentage of the scalping trade, which was on the buying side on Saturday, sold oats yesterday. This included Friedman, Wells, White, Bartlett-Frazier, and Roloson. The buyers were mainly Spencer, Nash-Wright, and Sterling. Local stocks are 136,000 bu smaller than last week. Receipts overran the estimates slightly, being 257 cars, of which 8 cars were contract. Estimated today, 225 cars. The visible made a bearish showing, increasing 368,000 bu, as compared with an increase of 297,000 bu a week ago and a decrease last year of 8,000 bu. The seaboard cleared 35,300 bu.

Provision Values Are Higher.

Provisions scored an advance of 12½c to 15c for pork, of 10c to 12½c for lard, and of 5c to 7½c for the deferred months in ribs as compared with Saturday's closing. October ribs declined 5c, but the trade in this delivery was extremely light and unimportant. The effect of last week's heavy decline in the price of hogs was seen in yesterday's receipts. There were only 17,000 received here, and prices early were 10c higher. There was a better shipping demand for lard, and this considerably encouraged buyers. Smaller shorts were inclined to do some covering. The average weight of last week's receipts of hogs here was only 245 lbs, as compared with 255 the previous week, but only 229 the corresponding week last year. A prominent feature of the market was the absence of offerings. This kept the market firm despite the closing weakness in the grain list and an easier closing hog market at the yards. Total western receipts of hogs today were 36,000, against 32,000 the corresponding day last year.

Rye scored an advance of 1½c for the December delivery, but there was no advance in actual selling prices of May or of cash lots. The war rumors in which Russia, the largest rye producer of the world, was implicated, were given credit for the strength in December. Sales of the December were at 54½@55c and the close was 55c bid. May was 56c bid and 57c asked. No. 2 in store was nominally 54½c and free on board sold at 56@56½c. No. 3 sold at 54c.

Barley was slow sale and a shade easier. Low grades were 1c lower. Screenings ranged at 35@45c, low grade mixing or feed barley, 41@45c; low grade malting, 45@46c; ordinary to fancy, 46½@60c.

Timothy seed was 2½c higher. There was a fair demand and less on sale. October was quotably $3.02½, December $3.07½, January $3.12½ bid and $3.15 asked, February $3.20, March $3.25. Cash lots $2.85@2.80. Clover seed was 25c lower. Offerings were increased but the demand was only fair. Contract, spot, October, November, and December, sold at $10.85@11.00. Cash seed, $8.00@10.75.

Flaxseed was unchanged. Trading limited. Receipts here were 28 cars, at Minneapolis 76 cars, and at Duluth 208 cars. No. 1 northwestern sold at $1.02, No. 1 94½c, rejected 93@94c. October, 95c; December, 97c bid; May, $1.00 bid and $1.01 asked.

INTERESTING TRADE GOSSIP ON 'CHANGE.

The corn pit felt the absence of Comstock yesterday, who, for a long time past, has been one of the best friends of the grain whenever a disposition appeared on the part of other traders to pound the market. Brokers believed to be acting for Cudahy and Wells hammered the price persistently yesterday and made the closing prices only the smallest fraction better than the low points of the day. While the government report indicates a crop of 2,178,000,000 bu, the figures in themselves, large as they are, were not decidedly bearish because many of the best judges of the corn crop have placed the total at even higher figures. But there has been a disposition in all directions to cut down estimates since the first frost and because of reports which have come in from farmers since that time. W. P. Anderson had a letter yesterday from northwestern Iowa, written by a man in whose judgment he places great confidence. This man says the corn crop in his section was safe long ago and that, while the late planted was retarded by bad weather, it was not killed outright. Its decreased value as compared with the early planted will not be more than one-third. The writer continued: "Old corn in Iowa is practically all shipped out or fed, and Nebraska and Missouri are running close. Less old corn by a good deal than a year ago this time is in farmers' hands. The quality will likely, with a good winter to gather the crop, be considerable better than last year. Farmers are not disposed to sell or contract new corn, are not in need of money, and want to fill their empty cribs. Feeders are now offering 35c for new corn, to be delivered right out of the field, November and December, and, as this kind of corn shrinks from 15 to 18 per cent till April 1 after being put in cribs, you can figure that it is equal to 40c or better in April after shrinkage. Feeders have not been able to contract much at above 35c."

The government and Jones are only 32,000,000 bu apart on the wheat crop in the three northwestern states, and it will doubtless be gratifying to the Minneapolis statistician that the authorities at Washington have cut a matter of 8,000,000 bu off the previous estimate. There are a good many men in the trade inclined to believe that Jones has better sources of information than the agricultural department, and that, as a general proposition, his figures are more than likely to be found finally nearer correct than the official estimate. Discussing this government report, Mr. Frazier of Bartlett, Frazier & Carrington, says: "It is a little bearish on corn, oats, and wheat. I don't take much stock in the report on oats, as I believe they were 200,000,000 too high last year. I don't believe we have raised over 600,000,000 this year. I lost all confidence in the government report on oats last year, as they made it 920,000,000 bu, and, as you know we used all the old oats up and the last of them went out at the highest price on the crop, and I know we have raised a great many less oats than last year. In fact, it is about the smallest crop in the surplus states that I ever knew."

George H. Phillips sees little consolation for wheat bulls in the foreign situation, whatever the domestic may promise. He says: "Exporters told us that when wheat at Chicago was 82c we were 5c out of line with prices in importing countries. We put our price down 9c a bu to meet foreign competing country prices. A little resting order business was done on the break and then competing countries cut under our prices and again we are told we are out of line, this time about 4c a bu. It stands to reason that if these competing countries are going to sell their wheat that no matter what concessions we make, they will still undersell us. Therefore we must accept the situation as it is, a domestic one, and base our prices on that situation. This year we must lead the world in making wheat prices. Other selling countries may reap the benefit, but some other year we will have a large surplus and short crops in other parts of the country will be our opportunity."

King & Co. of Toledo are encouraging bull talk on clover seed. Their Saturday letter says: "Seven dollar seed has been realized this week and bulls are now talking $8.00 seed later on. They think the rush of receipts will soon be over. They feel confident we have no exportable surplus. Wisconsin dealers nearly all report small yields and but little saved. Michigan dealers mostly tell a similar story. Illinois, which had a fair crop, has contributed to our receipts this week, Indiana some, and Ohio a little. Receipts will continue liberal next week and then probably decrease. October is generally the big month and probably will be this season. Short interest has been materially reduced during the last fortnight. There is still some on October. All Ohio dealers report seed scarce."

Red winter wheat continues to move out of the Chicago market in a manner suggesting a good deal of competition for the small quantity yet remaining. With the price of futures gradually seeking a lower level it is significant that the cash wheat does decline in price. All the sales yesterday were 1½c over the December price in store, which is as high a premium as the red winter wheat has yet brought, except in small quantities. In all the outside markets there is a more or less active inquiry for cash wheat. The southwestern points are reported full of both wheat and flour buyers, both the raw and the manufactured article, moving into new sections.

Below is shown the estimated yield of corn for 1903, as indicated by the September report of the department of agriculture, in what are known as the corn surplus states, compared with the yield in the last two years:

Shipments from that country last week were 2,228,000 bu out of a total of 3,625,000 bu. Last year the Argentine supplied only 944,000 bu out of a total of 1,676,000 bu.

T. E. Wells returned from the west yesterday and thinks the government figures on corn—2,178,000,000 bu—are too low; that the crop is at least 2,250,000,000 bu.

While Duluth failed to report an export business, it was plain that bids were in the market only slightly under sellers' views.

Average hog weights last week were 245 lbs, 10 lbs less than the previous week. Last year's average was 229 lbs.

The wheat crop of Italy is officially reported at 179,200,000 bu, as compared with 131,000,000 bu last year.

IN FOREIGN MONEY MARKETS.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Money was in good demand in the market today, partly owing to the settlement. Discounts firm. Business on the stock exchange was inactive and the market developed increased weakness during the afternoon, owing to the reports regarding the situation of affairs between Russia and Japan. Consols touched 88 1-16, but subsequently partially recovered. Home rails were weak. Americans opened dull and irregular and mostly below parity, in sympathy with New York. Later they weakened, became lower under the influence of the general depression, rallied slightly in the last hour, and closed steady. Kaffirs were nervous and erratic as a result of fears regarding the settlement.

BISCUIT STOCK DECLINES ON OFFERINGS FROM NEW YORK.

After Three Months' Trial the Local Subtreasury Will Today Enter Upon Permanent Enjoyment of the Privileges of the Clearing House—Interest Rates Rule from 5½ to 6 Per Cent—Review of Foreign Exchange—New York Loans.

National Biscuit common was moderately active on the Chicago stock exchange yesterday at prices ranging from 36 to 35¼, where it closed. Chicago Pneumatic Tool sold from 38 to 36. With these two exceptions local shares displayed steadiness. Biscuit common offerings were credited to New York investors desiring to unload. In Pneumatic Tool the weakness was put down to a lack of demand. The trade in the latter was extremely light.

Possible buyers of securities are reported as showing some timidity in investments which are said to have been promoted in part by Charles M. Schwab.

Subtreasury in Clearing House.

The United States subtreasury in Chicago, which three months ago became a member of the Chicago clearing house on trial, will enter upon a regular membership today. The treasury department is now doing business in Boston, New York, and St. Louis and the accommodations afforded, as well as those in Chicago, have been indorsed as most satisfactory by Secretary Shaw.

Chicago Money Market.

Money rates were quoted at from 5½ to 6 per cent, with strictly local borrowers. The bulk of business and the general quotations of the day may be put down at 6 per cent. New York borrowers willingly pay the top figures for time loans on commercial paper, but the Chicago banks give the preference to loans on grain and to manufacturing firms. No change in the currency movement for crops is reported. There are still fair shipments to the west and south, but the northwest is demanding small bills but moderately.

Cashier Chattell of the Illinois Trust and Savings bank denied a report that the bank had lowered its rates on time money. He said that there was no occasion for any change in existing conditions, and that the bank could loan all the money it desired on gilt edged security at 6 per cent.

Foreign Exchange Bills.

C. Schumacher & Co. say: "The narrowed difference between long and short sterling is accounted for by the lower money market in London. The advance in francs and decline in reichsmark here are due to the decline of sterling in Paris and the advance of sterling in Berlin.

"On the whole, our exchange market has been fairly steady, considering the amount of cotton bills received during the week, and the prospect of a further good increase in the near future. The ease with which these receipts were absorbed is accounted for by the fact that with the increasing ease in our money market and difference between ours and most of the European money markets, our banks and bankers find it to their advantage to send an increasing proportion of their money abroad."

Frothingham on New York Loans.

Howard P. Frothingham, the New York money lender, in writing upon conditions generally, says:

"The condition of the money market today is brighter and clearer than it has been at any time in the last year and a half. Nearly all of the undigested securities have been taken care of and the syndicates that have had to liquidate and clean house are now out of the market, and those that did not sell have borrowed money in sufficient sums to take care of them until after the presidential election in 1904; they have not borrowed thirty or sixty day, or any other short time money as heretofore, but have taken long time money and paid the commission.

"Here we are at the first half of October with call money hard to loan at 3 per cent. In my thirty years' experience I have never witnessed this before. It now looks as if we would go over the year with an easy money market and a stronger stock market. The intrinsic value of securities has not been lessened by the wild and reckless speculation of crazed millionaires. I could submit to you some first class loans at 5 per cent for four, five, and six months. I have no bids on my books above that rate."

Chicago and Milwaukee Electric.

Earnings of the Chicago and Milwaukee electric line make an excellent showing for September and the first nine months of this year. Gross earnings show an increase of over 90 per cent for September over the corresponding month last year, while for nine months the gross earnings show an improvement of 32 per cent and the net earnings 46 per cent. The statement in detail is as follows:

	1903.	1902.

Net earnings	31,101	12,350

General Financial News.

The public seems to be seeking information regarding the exact status of Amalgamated Copper. It is claimed that the company has greatly strengthened its position and has good earnings, but there is a constant selling of shares, attributed to large interests, that is not reassuring.

The Greene Consolidated company reports for the year ending July 31 the following statement: Proceeds from the sale of bullion, $3,572,403; operating expenses, $2,537,136; net, $1,035,267; other income, $211,558; charges, $426,360; surplus, $820,465.

The annual meeting of the United States Shipbuilding company has been called for Oct. 21. Under the present receivership the officers of the company cannot exercise any corporate function.

Union Traction Earnings.

Receivers of the Union Traction company state that the earnings of the surface roads of the company in Chicago during last September were $80,000 greater than for the same time a year ago.

September Bond Sales.

According to figures which have passed under the review of the United States Investor, bond sales for the month of September amounted to $10,617,377, not including temporary loans. Of the above amount $8,483,077 were issued by cities and towns, $1,709,300 by counties, and $425,000 by states. This amount shows an increase of $3,138,634 over the $7,478,742 reported for the month of August and an increase of $4,146,337 over the $6,471,040 reported for the month of September, 1902.

Inspection of Steel Plants.

Inspection of the plants of the United States Steel corporation has begun, and the report of the committee will be looked forward to with much interest by the investors in the securities of that concern. The investigating party is composed of President Corey as chairman, former Judge Gary, and officers of the corporation. Important changes and economic curtailment of operating expenses in the steel business are expected to follow in the wake of the travelers.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

Receipts of 25,000 Cattle Larger than the Trade Needed—Light Run of Hogs.

The opening market day of the week at the stockyards brought some slight surprises in the way of receipts. On the severe slump last week there was nothing in the situation that could draw out liberal receipts, but the cattle owners seemed determined to unload, and sent in about 25,000. This is about what the trade is accustomed to expect on Mondays, but was fully 5,000 larger than condition of trade actually called for, and the market did not show any improvement whatever, although in a few instances sales were slightly higher.

In the hog trade receipts fell down to not more than 15,000, which is not a usual Saturday run, and indicates that the country has not as yet become panic stricken on the hog situation, and refuses to let go on such breaks as that of last week. Receipts of sheep were about 45,000, and the market steady to 15c lower.

The English markets are now favorable to liberal export operation in cattle, as indicated by the following cablegram to the Daily Live Stock World:

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 12.—After a bad week in the cattle market, with home supplies large, the market here opened steady at 11¼c for average cargoes, with poor to prime making 10@11⅜c. States sheep 1c higher, averaging 12c.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Prices for American cattle here today were ½c lower, cargoes averaging 11c.

A year ago American steers averaged 13c at Liverpool and 13½c at London, with states sheep averaging 11@12c.

The following is a statement of the movement of live stock at the Chicago stockyards for the period indicated, with comparative figures:

Cattle.

The receipts of 25,000 cattle included close to 25,000 western rangers. There was some demand displayed for a strictly choice class of native steers weighing 1,400 lbs and under, and a few of the kind sold strong to 10c higher than late last week, but for the general run of the market it was a slow deal from start to finish and a clearance could not be made of fresh and stale holdings on a basis of steady last week's closing prices. Some of the heavy cattle that were held over from last week are still in the pens without being able to get bids at anything that looked like a market figure. Native butcher stock ruled about steady, but there was no particular life to the trade. Western rangers met a slightly better reception than they have lately and were considered strong to 10c higher. The market for stockers and feeders was absolutely unchanged. Quotations:

Fancy steers	$5.35@5.75
Good to choice steers	5.00@5.25
Common to fair steers	3.80@4.75
Choice cows and heifers	3.75@4.00
Good to choice cows and heifers	3.00@3.50
Fair cows and heifers	2.75@3.00
Canners	1.75@2.25
Stags	3.75@4.65
Cutters	2.50@2.80
Good to choice bulls	3.75@4.50
Common to fair bologna bulls	2.75@3.40
Good to choice stockers and feeders	3.75@4.10
Medium stockers and feeders	3.00@3.50
Inferior stockers and feeders	2.50@3.00
Choice calves, 100@150 lbs	6.75@7.40
Common to choice calves, 175@400 lbs..	3.00@5.50

Hogs.

A few of the choice butcher and light hogs, also some of the best heavy butchers, sold strong to 10c to 15c higher during the first rounds of the market, and while the order buyers for these kinds were in operation the speculators picked up a few mixed droves at around 10c higher, but the local packing trade refused to get into the deal on any advance, and the result was that after the shippers had filled their orders the trade lost all show of advance, and closed practically in the same notch as Saturday.

A few loads of fancy selected light butchers sold as high as 6c a lb, but just as good sold at $5.90 and $5.75 was the limit for prime averages of 325 lbs, prices on heavy ranging from this down to $5.00, with the bulk of mixed and heavy packers going at $5.10@5.25.

The average weight of hogs last week was only 245 lbs, a decrease of 10 lbs from the previous week and 14 lbs less than two weeks ago. This is taken as a certain indication that the crop of old hogs in the country has been practically closed out, and fewer heavy hogs may be expected from now on. Quotations:

Good to choice, 240@400 lbs	$5.30@5.80
Common to good, 245@350 lbs	4.90@5.35
Good to prime, 190@235 lbs	5.40@6.00
Assorted light, 150@180 lbs	5.80@5.90
Mixed, 200@245 lbs	5.10@5.50
Pigs	5.00@5.75

Sheep.

With 45,000 sheep arriving the market ruled steady to 15c lower for the killing grades of lambs and about the same relative condition was noted in the feeder trade. There are still plenty of feeder buyers in sight, but they have begun to demand lower prices, and as the best of the western range stuff has already been marketed it seems probable that they may be able to buy feeders at lower prices than have recently prevailed. Quotations:

Good wethers	$3.40@4.25
Fair to choice ewes	3.00@3.40
Fair to good ewes	2.75@3.50
Good to choice lambs	5.25@5.65
Fair to good lambs	4.50@5.25
Common lambs	3.75@4.25
Good to choice bucks	2.00@2.50
Feeding sheep	3.00@3.60
Feeding lambs	4.20@4.75

STEEL LEADS IN SLUMP.

INDUSTRIALS GO OFF IN SYMPATHY, BUT RAILWAYS HOLD UP.

United States Corporation Continues to Establish New Low Records for Its Securities and Bonds—Equipment Concerns Feel Effect of the Declines—Rumors Current Concerning Two Pittsburg Institutions—Trading Feverish All Day.

[BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—[Special.]—New low records were established today in the stock market for both common and preferred stocks of the United States Steel corporation. The weakness of these securities and the industrial list generally were the prime characteristic of the day's trading. The comparative strength of railroad stocks in contrast to the declining tendency of industrials served to accentuate it. The break in steel issues had a bad influence on the entire industrial list, and was felt especially in the stocks of railroad equipment companies. American Car and Foundry notably was weak, while Pressed Steel Car, Republic Iron and Steel, and all minor steel and iron securities broke sharply. Few railroad stocks showed any material declines and the grangers and trunk line issues were well held. Traction stocks were not aggressively strong but did not exhibit any pronounced weakness.

Rumors of all sorts were current in the street during the day. Pittsburg advices were to the effect that some one of the smaller steel and iron companies was in difficulties. The names of two companies were mentioned, but nothing definite could be learned concerning them. One of them, at least, is regarded as being particularly strong. The selling of steel stocks puzzles the trading. No one seems to know where all of the stock is coming from, and the comparative ease with which the price of these securities broke induced semi-demoralization for a time. The common stock sold down to 12½, a loss of 1¾ points from Saturday's closing. Preferred sold at 57½. Steel bonds were sympathetically weak. Steel common closed at 12¾ and preferred rallied to 58¾.

Colorado Fuel and Iron broke sharply, selling down to 33. American Car and Foundry preferred caused a sensation by the rapidly with which it broke.

General Electric was among the specialties that declined sharply on relatively heavy selling in the early trading of these securities. Tennessee Coal and Iron held fairly firm. Amalgamated Copper exhibited a fairly good undertone.

So far as the railroad was concerned, the one stock that showed a weak tendency in the initial trading was Louisville and Nashville, which declined quickly. Such stocks as New York Central, Pennsylvania, Atchison, Rock Island, and Union Pacific were all well held. St. Paul was sold heavily in the first part of the session, but maintained a fairly good tone. Whatever comfort there was in the situation could only be found in the railroad list.

Trading was feverish and the sentiment exceedingly bearish.

Close: Money on call, steady, at 2@2½ per cent, closing bid, 2½ per cent; offered, 2½ per cent. Time money, easy; 60 days, 4½@4¾ per cent; 90 days, 5 per cent; 6 months, 5 per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 6@6½ per cent; sterling exchange, weak with actual business in bankers' bills at 485.40@485.45 for demand, and at 482.10@482.25 for 60 day bills. Posted rates, 483 and 486½. Commercial bills, 48¾; bar silver, 59⅝c; Mexican dollars, 45½c. Governments bonds, steady; railroad bonds irregular.

IN THE BOSTON MONEY MARKET.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—The Boston list followed the course of New York stocks. Amalgamated was the most active of local issue and varied about a point. Stories that the dividend will be reduced at the meeting of directors were in circulation, but they had no authority. Copper Range and Steels were fairly active. Dominion Coal lost a couple of points and Telephone reacted a point or so. United Fruit dropped to 93.

EMPLOYERS AID 'SHARKS'

USUAL METHODS IT IS HELD HELP COLLECTION AGENCIES.

Practice of Holding Back Wages and Suspending Worker Who Is Garnisheed Declared by Pliny B. Smith to Be Injustice—Believes Companies Should Assist Men in Fighting Extortion, and That in This Way Evils Could Be Checked.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—There has been much public discussion of the abuses and oppression practiced by certain attorneys and collection agencies in combination with certain justices (?), complacent or particeps criminis, of which the poor and the helpless have principally been the victims. It is, however, a fact that railroad companies and other corporations and large employers of labor, consciously or unconsciously, by a certain practice coöperate with these unconscionable instruments of wrong and are themselves the principal aids which enable these sharks to succeed in the infliction of cruel injustice upon many defenseless persons.

Among those who systematically so coöperate—in most cases it must be said unconsciously or unthinkingly—are many prominent citizens who are leaders in reform and who liberally contribute money and effort to suppress the abuses which they at the same time are unconsciously aiding.

The practice referred to is that of suspending from employment or discharging an employé whenever an attachment or garnishment writ in a suit against the employé is served upon the employer. With most concerns the practice is to suspend the employé with the statement that he can return to work when he has settled the suit and secured the release of his employer from the garnishment writ.

At Mercy of Collection Shark.

This at once places the employé at the mercy of the merciless collection shark, and is the condition which the latter knew would almost certainly result. Thus the victim is usually compelled to settle upon the terms dictated, which are frequently the payment of a sum much greater than is due, or even where nothing is due, with the costs of the suit, in themselves large even when not illegally swelled. Not infrequently an attorney's fee is added, for which there is no legal sanction.

It is not generally known that in order to secure an attachment the person suing, or some one for him, must make an affidavit that the person sued has committed or is about to commit some act specified in the statute which authorizes the issuing of a writ of attachment, such as certain acts of fraud, that he has or is about to depart from the state, etc. Among other things, if the plaintiff or some one for him will make affidavit that the defendant is about to conceal or otherwise dispose of his property so as to hinder and delay his creditors he can secure an attachment writ. This affidavit is vague and easy to make, and the attorney, or his affidavit clerk, makes it. The fact that in making the affidavit perjury is committed is no deterrent.

Course of Garnishee.

A bond must also be given, with sufficient security to indemnify the defendant if the attachment is wrongfully sued out. Such bond the attorney signs, and the complacent justice considers him "sufficient security." The attachment is then issued and at once served upon the employer of the person sued. This compels the employer to hold any money that may be due the employé until the result of the suit against the employé is determined. If determined against the employé, as is almost invariably the case, a garnishee writ is then issued against the employer, and he is compelled to pay the judgment and all the costs if the money in his hands belonging to the employé is sufficient; if not, all the money is paid to apply as far as it will go.

For a number of years I was attorney of a railroad company in this city and acquired considerable experience with the class of business in question. When attachment writs against an employé were served on the company the man was laid off until he should settle the case, his pay held back until he should present a release from the justice issuing the attachment, and the writ was sent to the legal department that the company's interests might be protected. Seeing that abuses were practiced, an investigation was made. It was found that in many, if not most, cases the employé sued was a common laborer, earning low wages, with a family to support. In many cases he claimed he owed the party nothing or less than was claimed. Sometimes he was in debt on account of sickness or injury and was willing to pay something out of his wages each month, but could not, without reducing his family to destitution, devote the wages of an entire month to the payment of the bill.

Usually Yield to Extortion.

Men of this class are ignorant and without knowledge to meet a legal difficulty. He would consequently go to the justice who issued the writ and express a desire to settle; the justice would send him to the attorney who brought the suit. The attorney would tell him he must pay the amount claimed, which frequently was not due, the fees of the justice, sometimes figured at $10 or more, and an attorney's fee, the latter demand being illegal and an extortion. The poor victim, having absolutely no means of protection, and knowing he could have no work until he complied, would submit to the extortion and give an order on the company for the amount, if so much was owing him, and thus secure the release which would restore his job. The collection shark, knowing the regular pay day of the company, would usually cause the writ to be served the day before, and thus tie up the wages of a month and ten days at a moment when the man and his family needed the money to pay the monthly bills, and thus secure another month's credit, or to pay for daily necessities if they had no credit. Frequently half, or even the whole, of the monthly wages would be thus absorbed. In some instances as high as $20, half the monthly wages of a laborer, would be extorted where the original demand was less than $5, and even this in some cases not owing.

Easy to Stop Abuse.

Believing that the company owed its employés some measure of protection I decided to stop the abuse. The paymaster was first directed to hold back only enough to cover the claim and legal costs, if the claim should be sustained. The balance was paid over to the employé, instead of holding an entire month's pay to cover a claim of a few dollars, and the man was continued at work. Some one was sent to the office of the justice at the time the case was set for trial, and as the affidavit for attachment was always false the attachment was dissolved, throwing the costs of the attachment, the greater part of the costs of the suit, upon the party suing. If the claim was unjust it was contested and frequently defeated. Under this method no employé of the company in Chicago was suffered to become the victim of extortion.

The extent to which the practice described worked to the success of the collection sharks was shown by the remark of one of them, that with any other railroad than this one whenever an attachment writ was served on the railroad company they considered it as good as having the money in their pockets. If employers would adopt the course of protecting their employés which I have outlined a large portion of the abuses complained of would be abolished.

Case of Additional Duty.

The employer would have an additional duty to perform where the employé is sued before a so-called country justice, many of whom have places of execution in the country while their nets are spread in the city. It is useless in such case to attempt to defend the case before the justice, as, if the defendant should appear, the case would be dismissed or continued until in his absence judgment could be rendered by default.

The only method to pursue in such case is to allow judgment to be taken and then appeal the case. This involves advancing costs and furnishing an appeal bond. The costs can in most cases be advanced out of the wages due, and as the employé is in nearly all cases unable to furnish a bond, a further fact which helps to fasten him in the talons of the vulture, let the employer furnish the bond under an arrangement with the employé to hold back wages sufficient in amount to cover the liability and the case can then be contested in the higher court, where justice can be secured. By pursuing this method the employé will of inevitable necessity be put to inconvenience for a time, but he will eventually receive his money, while by the existing course he loses it entirely. Frequently he will also recover his costs, as in many cases the party who brings the suit is responsible. The course suggested as one for employers to pursue is dictated on the grounds both of policy and humanity.

Duty to Employes.

I believe it to be the duty of the employer to protect his employés in the same spirit in which he protects his family. When the employé feels that his employer will back him in all cases where his cause is just, instead of becoming the ally of his enemy, a feeling is established which will produce both material and moral results. The course advocated will cause the employer no more trouble than the one now followed, as the cashier can be given instructions to cover all cases and the case can be turned over to the company's law department; or a bureau representing a number of employers can be established which will be self-sustaining. Employers who are contributing money and effort to organizations formed to eradicate the evils noticed, can eradicate a large proportion of them by ceasing to be first aid to the agencies of wrong they are working to extirpate.

NEWS OF THE INSURANCE WORLD.

INSURANCE NEWS OF CHICAGO.

J. F. Downing Appointed a Member of the Governing Committee of the Western Union.

President Blackwelder of the Western union yesterday announced the appointment of J. F. Downing, general agent of the Insurance Company of North America and the Philadelphia Underwriters, as a member of the governing committee, to fill the vacancy caused by the declination of P. D. McGregor, the retiring chairman, to accept reappointment. It is expected that the committee will organize at its meeting today. G. H. Lermit of the Northern, who has been vice chairman, probably will be made chairman. A number of important questions are before the committee, and organization will facilitate action.

Trouble is brewing at Des Moines. The local agents there have been unable to get several to join their organization and have been complaining that the outsiders were cutting rates. They had the power to protect their business, but were unwilling to do anything without laying the situation before their companies. A committee visited Chicago last week and was generally advised that the companies were ready to prevent the taking of their best risks by the outsiders, and were willing to make any rates necessary to hold the business. It is believed that this will probably bring the outsiders in.

D. M. Baker, the new stamping secretary at Champaign, began receiving daily reports yesterday. Secretary Persch of the Illinois state board will be in Urbana today to arrange to have the dailies from there sent through the same office.

Judge Nichols, president of the National of Hartford, is in the city.

Smythe & Meyer have been appointed St. Louis agents for the Concordia.

Adolph C. Norden has left the agency of A. Loeb & Son and becomes an independent broker with R. W. Hosmer & Co.

The national board of fire underwriters has issued a set of rules and requirements for the construction, installation, and use of acetylene gas machines and for the storage of calcium carbide. The use of liquid acetylene or gas generated therefrom is absolutely prohibited. Calcium carbide must be kept outside insured buildings, but small quantities, in metal cans of not over two pounds each, may be kept in insured buildings if in approved magazines.

Only one natural gas company is now supplying Indianapolis, and it has given notice that the service will not continue through the winter. This will reduce the number of fires due to overheated furnaces, caused by increased pressure as other consumption diminishes, but introduces another hazard due to the fact that most of the buildings erected in the natural gas belt in the last ten years have flues constructed for natural gas. These will not be large enough for the use of smoke producing fuel, and many insurance companies are insisting on the construction of new flues where the fuel is changed.

Prof. F. E. Rice has resigned from the faculty of Dixon college to become general agent for the Mutual Benefit Life for five counties, with headquarters at Dixon.

Eight fire insurance companies have begun suit at Jackson, Miss., against the Illinois Central railroad, having taken rights of subrogation from the Jackson cotton compress, on which they had paid claims. The compress was burned in January, and it is claimed that the fire was started by an Illinois Central switch engine. The Supreme court of Mississippi, in similar cases, has held that the railroad company was liable.

William H. Kingsley, financial agent of the Penn Mutual Life in the west, has been elected secretary and treasurer of the company, succeeding H. C. Brown, resigned.

The Illinois insurance department will appeal the decision against it in its suit to test the right of the Ætna Life to write liability as well as life and accident insurance. The time for filing a bill of exceptions has been extended.

The Sea and Lake Insurance company of this city has been admitted to Rhode Island.

The state officials of Iowa are drafting a new standard fire insurance policy form, consulting with representatives of the insurance interests. The New York standard policy form is taken as a basis, with such changes as are necessary to comply with the Iowa statutes.

The Richardson Paper company at Franklin, O., suffered a 10 per cent damage by fire on Sunday. A partial list of the insurance follows:

Niagara	$2,000	Citizens', Mo.	$1,500
Phenix, N. Y.	4,000	Cincinnati Und.	2,500
Connecticut	4,000	Spld. Und. Mut.	5,000
Phœnix, Hart	2,000

Montreal Wants Surtax Removed.

Montreal, Que., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—A deputation has visited this city from Ottawa for the purpose of securing the removal of the surtax imposed by the Fire Underwriters' association upon capital as regards the insurance rates on account of recent heavy fires there. Mayor Cook headed the delegation, which included Chairman Ellis of the finance committee, Messrs. May, Stroud, Journeaux, and President Reid of the board of trade, City Auditor Cluff, Messrs. A. Pratt, Newton Kerr, the city engineer; James Ballantyne, Cecil Bethune, W. G. Black, and Robert Stewart, representative of fire insurance companies doing business in Ottawa. They met the underwriters' association representatives at the Royal Insurance building and explained the reasons for requesting the abolition of the surtax. The arrangements of the limits of lumber yards has been altered since the last big fire to reduce the danger to a minmum. The board of works investigated the fire, and found that by the breaking of a main pipe the principal losses were occasioned. This was due to carelessness of the engineers. Considerable money also was spent in improving their fire department, and conditions were so improved that the surtax they claimed was an unjust infliction. The underwriters took the application under consideration.

Losses at Walla Walla, Wash.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—The insurance was light on the planing mill, door factory, and lumber yards of Whitehouse & Crimmins, burned yesterday at Walla Walla, Wash. The property loss will probably exceed $60,000, but the insurance is not more than a fourth of that amount. The insurance reported is: Hartford Fire, Citizens' of St. Louis, Springfield, Transatlantic, and Netherlands, $1,000 each; Fireman's Fund and Franklin, $1,500 each; Liverpool and London and Globe, $2,000; Niagara, $750; Fireman's of Baltimore, Germania, Norwich Union, Law Union, Phœnix of London, and Thuringia, $500 each.

Changes in Ohio Agencies.

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—The New York underwriters have made a change in their agency at Mount Vernon, O., by appointing Banner M. Allen and lifting its supplies from F. H. Peterman. H. M. Gibbs, special agent for the Western and British American Fire companies, has left Columbus, O., and will in future make Toledo his headquarters for the state.

NEWS NOTES FROM NEW YORK.

Complication Regarding Damage to Goods of Customers in Laundries Is Finally Adjusted.

New York, Oct. 12.—[Special.]—Fire recently in a Philadelphia laundry occasioned considerable loss of stock. The policies covered "on goods laundried and unlaundried, or in process, together with the value of the labor thereon, of the laundry or the property of others for which the laundry may be responsible." A claim was made for damage to goods belonging to the customers which was in process of being laundried. It developed no contract had been entered into between the laundrymen and customers as to the responsibility in case of fire, but with an eye to the future the assured insisted that such damage should be allowed. Some companies interested were disposed to allow the claim, possibly as a bait to assure future business. Other companies objected on the ground it was unwise to go outside the provision of the contract, and that even if this amount was allowed there was no guarantee the actual losers would receive the money.

It all finally resulted in an agreement to stand upon the actual loss sustained by the assured. A settlement finally was secured to the satisfaction of all concerned. Since this adjustment nearly all the laundry concerns in Philadelphia have notified their customers they must obtain insurance in their own name on goods when placed in laundries. The National Laundrymen's association also recognized the fact it was against public policy for laundrymen to insure goods in process belonging to other parties.

A prominent underwriter says the Ohio record for the year has been a bad one. It undoubtedly shows worse in 1903 than in 1902. Cincinnati he considers liable to suffer a conflagration at any time, and, in fact, he thinks it is one of the worst cities, insurancewise, in the United States. According to this authority, underwriters should force Cincinnati to adopt and enforce a first class building law, preventing the construction of high timber construction buildings.

John M. Picton of Nashville has been appointed state agent of the American Central Insurance company of Kentucky and Tennessee.

Thomas E. Ostrander, who died suddenly of heart disease on Saturday afternoon, was the cashier of the Merchants' Insurance company of New York for many years and a son of Cornelius V. Ostrander, the former president of the company.

Careful underwriters who keep their finger on the pulse of business recognize indications of coming trouble. They urge the exercise of prudence and cool headed judgment on the part of company managers lest recklessness begotten of brief prosperity produce disaster. One manager says:

"Experience has shown that the average rate of the country rises and falls in succeeding waves with substantial regularity. From the trough of these waves we rise to the apex, and then gradually descend. For a considerable period prior, say, to last June, the average rate of most companies showed an increase each month over the corresponding month of the previous year. About June 1 the average 'rate wave' was at its height, while since that date each month has shown a decline. The average rate has begun to fall, and the extent to which it may descend is a matter fraught with much interest, not to say hazard, to many in the insurance business.

"While the fact that business is now on the down grade may discourage the formation of new companies, company officials should remember it is not well for the crew of a train to keep steam on and brakes off at the commencement of a declivity. It is well to apply the brakes a little and keep the train under control, otherwise it may go faster and further than is safe for any of us."

Cyrus Hardy of E. M. Teall & Co. of Chicago is in New York.

TRADERS' LIFE IS ENJOINED.

State Superintendent of Illinois Secures Writ in Sangamon County Circuit Court on Plea of Insolvency.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—A temporary injunction was secured in the Circuit court of Sangamon county today by William R. Vredenburgh, the state superintendent of insurance, to restrain the Traders' Mutual Life Insurance company, with general offices in this city, from continuing in business.

The first allegation in the application for the injunction is that the company is insolvent. It is alleged that the officers of the company have misappropriated large sums of money and valuable assets of the company and have converted such sums to their own use.

It is asserted that an examination of the affairs of the company was conducted a few weeks ago by the insurance department, and disclosures of that inquiry lead to the conclusion that for the organization to continue business is to hazard the risks of those insured therein.

Of $51,623 in gross assets claimed by the company, it is alleged $24,684 are not proper assets and are not admitted as assets by the state insurance department. The company is indebted, it is asserted, to the amount of $58,900 on unpaid losses and $3,095 in unpaid salaries. A total shortage of $57,928 is alleged to exist in the company's assets.

Two Iowa Companies Consolidate.

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—Arrangements were made today for the consolidation of the Chicago Life Insurance company and the Des Moines Insurance company under the name of the latter organization. The consolidated company will have over $18,000,000 of insurance in force with $1,000,000 assets. Both were mutual companies and hold legal reserves. The new company will be one of the largest legal reserve companies in the state. All the old contracts of the Chicago Life are assumed by the new organization and will be carried out.

Noon Hour in Insurance Suit.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—Answers to the suit filed by the Louisville Lead and Color company against the Magdeburg Insurance company were filed in the federal court today. The suit is to collect a fire insurance policy on the plaintiffs' plant burned at noon of April 1, 1902. The policy expired at noon on the same day, along with a large batch of others. The defendant claims the policy expired at 12 o'clock sun time, while the lead company claims it expired at standard time, eighteen minutes later.

$70,000 Loss at Sioux Falls.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Oct. 12.—The large livery stable of L. Leavitt with contents, including twenty-two horses, was destroyed by fire. Loss, $70,000. Two firemen were badly injured, the chemical engine running into a ditch.

It is claimed the volume contains a list of 15,000 names of individuals and estates throughout the United States believed to be worth $300,000 or more. SHAKEUP IN ROCK ISLAND.

COMPLETE CHANGE OF OFFICIALS OF EXECUTIVE BRANCH.

B. L. Winchell, Who Is Coming to Chicago, Will Be Head of System Here in Place of C. A. Warren—Appointment a Recognition of the Passenger Branch of Service—Report of the Wisconsin Central Company—East Bound Shipments Drop Off.

The resignation of C. A. Goodnow, general manager of the Rock Island, announced in THE TRIBUNE Sunday, will be followed by a complete change in the executive branch of the system.

B. L. Winchell will not only be the third vice president of the system and have charge of the traffic and commercial affairs, but will also be the executive head at Chicago in place of First Vice President C. A. Warren, whose office will be moved to New York. Second Vice President and General Counsel Robert Mather will also make his headquarters in New York hereafter.

Official Circular Issued.

The official circular announcing these changes is as follows:

"B. L. Winchell is appointed third vice president of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific, Choctaw, Oklahoma and Gulf, and St. Louis, Kansas City and Colorado railroads, with headquarters at Chicago, effective on Oct. 15.

"The offices of the first and second vice presidents will be moved to New York City, and the third vice president will be chief executive officer of these companies in the west, having also special charge of the development of the commercial interests of the system."

No successor to General Manager Goodnow will be appointed for the present, and a circular issued by Fourth Vice President John F. Stevens asks that until further notice all correspondence and matters heretofore referred to General Manager Goodnow be addressed to him.

In addition to being third vice president and chief executive officer of the Rock Island Mr. Winchell will continue to hold the position of vice president and general manager of the St. Louis and San Francisco, which is part of the Rock Island system.

Mr. Winchell's appointment is a recognition of the passenger branch of the railway service, as this is the first time in many years that a man has been taken from the passenger branch by a western road and placed in an executive position of such magnitude. For years Mr. Winchell has been identified with the passenger departments of western roads. He was connected with the 'Frisco system when it was controlled by the Santa Fé. Later he assumed a similar position with the Colorado and Southern under President Frank Trumbull. He then returned to the 'Frisco as vice president and general manager, which position he still holds.

Wisconsin Central Report.

The annual report of the Wisconsin Central, to be submitted to the meeting of the stockholders in Milwaukee today, shows that during the fiscal year ended June 30 there was an increase in earnings on general freight of $564,295, while the earnings on iron ore decreased $48,694. Passenger earnings increased $92,210 and mail, express, and miscellaneous earnings increased $2,581. The increase in net earnings amounts to $287,772.

That the increase in ore earnings of $110,569 for the previous year was followed by a decrease of $48,694 this year is explained as due to the sluggishness of the iron market. The prospects for the new year are not considered bright. The increase in general freight earnings, however, is satisfactory, but the report says it cannot be expected that the increases of the last two years can be maintained. It is hoped that the results for the current fiscal year will be fully equal to those of last year. Crop prospects in the territory tributary to the company's lines are fair.

"The improvement work projected has been restricted by the scarcity of labor," says the report. "Among the important improvement works undertaken during the year was the rebuilding of the ore dock at Ashland. The new dock is much larger than the old one which was destroyed by fire in 1892. The estimated cost of the new dock is $350,000."

East Bound Shipments.

East bound shipments from Chicago last week did not meet expectations. Grain shipments made a fair increase over the week previous, but flour suffered quite a decrease. The movement of general freight is falling off and if there is no improvement soon car shortage will not trouble the railroads seriously in the coming winter. Last week's east bound shipments by the all rail lines were as follows:

	Flour, brls.	Grain, bu.	Provisions, tons.
Last week	51,146	1,367,000	33,758
Previous week	79,463	1,137,888	37,132
Last year	55,418	1,180,000	26,684

SECRET SESSION TO FIGHT TILROE.

Ministers of North Chicago District Plan Opposition to His Choice of Elder.

PLEA FROM WICKER PARK.

Rock River Conference Is Told Misrepresentation Secured Signatures to Petition.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Aurora, Ill., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—Because the Rev. Mr. Tilroe, presiding elder of the Chicago district, is said to be pushing the Rev. E. B. Crawford for presiding elder of the North Chicago district, the ministers of that district called a secret caucus this afternoon to oppose Mr. Tilroe's selection on the ground that the elder was interfering in matters extraneous to him.

The caucus was brief, and it was said that no action of any kind was taken, yet much comment was aroused by the fact that any body met for the purpose of influencing the bishop in his appointments. The episcopal authority in appointments is one of the distinctions of the Methodist church.

P. H. Swift of Wesley church is likely for North Chicago. James Rowe of Garfield Park has been given an option on the Joliet district.

D. M. Thompson of De Kalb was elected third reserve delegate to the general conference this morning.

Misrepresentation Is Charged.

Dr. Leach states that the committee from Wicker Park church misrepresented the board's petition to the bishop. Many signed the paper considering it merely a request for Dr. Mandeville, should Leach be removed. When a few, as Mr. Demoney, directly attacked Leach, the majority of the signers, the pastor states, sent another communication to the bishop to disregard their signatures in the former petition.

In tomorrow's report the capital and labor committee will treat only of the attitude of the church toward industrial strife. Some, desiring a wider scope, will present a substitute report.

For Education of Negroes.

A resolution requesting congress to "provide national education for descendants of freedmen, especially in agriculture, industry, and sanitation," was adopted unanimously by the conference this morning, and further a draft of the resolutions was placed in the hands of the committee on memorials to the general conference, which shall urge that body to promote the cause of negro education in the south. The resolution further embodied a request to the representatives to further the adoption of the educational measure in congress, and embodied also a request to the president of the United States to recommend the passing of the measure. Dr. C. J. Little, E. J. James, F. H. Sheets, F. W. Leaseman, D. M. Thompson, Percival Steel, and Dr. E. L. Parks were appointed as the committee to promote the presentation and adoption of the resolution in the houses of congress.

Talk of Supernumerary List.

As a consequence of the discussion last Saturday of the relations of ministers on the supernumerary list, who have gone into business and promoting, when the names on the superannuated list came up for continuance, a motion was made that A. H. Maxim, who is engaged in business, should be made effective or located. The discussion was partly a repetition of that of Saturday, and no action was taken when some of those present testified that Mr. Maxim, though comparatively a young man, was placed on the superannuated list because after having been upon the supernumerary list for five successive years he could not be continued again. When found that a nervous trouble interfered with his taking up the active duties of a minister, his name was placed again upon the supernumerary list.

The discussion, however, brought forward the condition that there are in the Rock river conference so many ministers that other conferences use it as a "feeder," as attested by the presence of Presiding Elders Benjamin and Haight from Wisconsin to obtain men for their districts.

When discussion of the individual names failed to bring results, the Rev. F. A. Hardin introduced a measure to require the presiding elder in every district to keep a close supervision over the men on both the supernumerary and the superannuated lists, and to report and cause the removal of all ministers "promoting enterprises either scandalously dishonest or of a questionable character and bringing disgrace upon the conference, while at the same time gulling and cheating their brethren in the ministry and their friends."

Upon motion the words "scandalously dishonest" and the other harsher phrases were stricken out, and the resolution was ordered to be brought up before the next session, as Bishop Andrews, with the presiding elders, previously had withdrawn for a consultation, leaving Dr. Little as chairman.

Important Memorial Introduced.

A memorial is now in the hands of the memorial committee, which, though similar to one introduced into the lay electoral conference last Friday, will, if its measures are adopted by the general conference, greatly alter the reciprocal attitude of the northern and southern branches of the Methodist church. The memorial recommends an annual meeting of the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church and the Methodist Episcopal church south for the purpose of arranging for a free transfer of ministers between the two churches, as now between the annual conferences of either or both churches, and for the purpose of removing the remaining obstacles to the organic union of the churches.

Dr. Elijah Stowe, now on the superannuated list, wrote a letter to the conference in which he urged the retention of D. D. Thompson as editor of the Northwestern Christian Advocate, and also asking that the present system of receiving probationers be discontinued in the Methodist Episcopal church, as was done some years ago by the church south. A motion to refer the measures for embodiment into a memorial to the general conference was passed unanimously.

Change of Posts Arranged.

The Rev. Frank D. Sheets, who has for eight years been pastor of Epworth church at Edgewater, has arranged to change posts with Dr. R. F. Pooley of Rockford, and it is believed that their plan will be allowed.

The bishop today stated that the appointments could not be made ready before late tomorrow and that possibly they would be held over until Wednesday. He keeps his own counsel as to every course of action and the ministers are still uncertain as to their future posts. It is understood, however, that the Rev. Mr. Flack of the First church here, who has been considered a prominent candidate for presiding elder of the Joliet district, has withdrawn. It is also rumored that A. T. Horn, the presiding elder of the Dixon district, may resign because of ill health. It is believed, however, that every effort will be made to retain him in office. As the bishop is almost certain to remove Dr. Leach from the Wicker Park church, it is said that Dr. Mandeville, the retiring elder of the North Chicago district, will be named in his place.

The Evanston avenue and Grace churches of Chicago are endeavoring to be chosen as the meeting place for the conference next year. The chances seem to favor the Evanston Avenue church.

STILL SELECTING HIS CHURCH.

John Farson's Letter to the First Methodist Doesn't Mean He's Decided, He Says.

John Farson, it developed yesterday, took a church letter addressed to the First Methodist church of Chicago when he became dissatisfied with his surroundings in the Oak Park church and resigned. He explained last night, however, that this action did not obligate him to become a member of Dr. J. P. Brushingham's congregation.

"To leave one Methodist church for another," Mr. Farson said, "it is necessary to take a letter addressed to some particular church. That letter, however, can be presented to any church of the denomination. I named the First Methodist church because it was convenient and I knew Dr. Brushingham well. The church is too far from my home, however, for me to attend. If I finally decide to join it, I will have to attend services at some church nearer my residence."

Mr. Farson said he would not positively decide before the appointments of the Rock river conference were announced. He has been invited to become a member of six or seven congregations.

YOUNG WOMAN SAVES RESCUER

MISS ELEANOR TRAYNOR.

After Policeman Richard O'Mara of Central station saved the life of Miss Eleanor Traynor, 16 years old, 2654 North Springfield avenue, who had fallen in front of a rapidly advancing car, the young woman reciprocated by dragging the policeman from under the hoofs of a team of horses. The two incidents occurred within a minute at noon yesterday on the crowded corner, State and Washington streets, and were witnessed by 200 persons.

Miss Traynor was crossing the street, when she slipped and fell in front of a cable car. The fender pushed her a distance of several feet. Policeman O'Mara, who had seen the accident from across the street, sprang on the fender and lifted the girl from the track.

As he placed the young woman on her feet the policeman stepped back just in time to be struck and knocked down by a team of horses. Miss Traynor saw him fall and dragged him out to the sidewalk. Then the policeman and the woman shook hands and decided they were "even." Neither was severely injured.

NO PAY FOR WEED CUTTING: VAN SLOOTEN UNDER FIRE.

County Board Refuses to Allow $31,000, and Citizens' Association Declares Commissioner Is "Tool."

The attempt of the weed commissioner, Van Slooten, to collect $31,000 from Chicago property owners yesterday received a severe setback. The finance committee of the county board was so inundated with complaints against the weed man that the members refused to consider the bill. It finally was decided to hold a public meeting of the committee next Friday morning at 10 o'clock in the county building. Property owners will be given a chance to voice their charges in person. Van Slooten will be present to defend his acts.

Another blow the commissioner received was a motion by Commissioner Walker in the board meeting that Van Slooten be required to procure a fidelity bond of $50,000 within ten days. The matter was referred to the finance committee.

The board also received the report of the Citizens' association on the alleged irregularities in Van Slooten's office. It is in part as follows:

Although in his report Commissioner Van Slooten makes affidavit that noxious weeds were removed from all lots and parcels of land therein specified, prior to Sept. 12, 1903, the date of the report, the noxious weeds on much of the territory have not yet been cut. Of 150 or 200 vacant tracts inspected only two or three showed any signs of cutting, and they were cut by owners. Most of the tracts showed stands of weeds from three to five feet high.

According to Commissioner Van Slooten, the new law, under cover of which the bill for more than $31,000 is presented, was framed by an attorney, who, as a contractor, would be one of the main beneficiaries if the bill was allowed.

In the light of all the circumstances it seems probable that Commissioner Van Slooten has been made the tool of a conspiracy which the board can lay bare by a thorough investigation.

The report is signed by Shelby M. Singleton, secretary of the association.

WILL ARREST 125 DOG OWNERS.

Many Complaints Are Filed Against Persons Charged with Violating the Muzzle Ordinance.

Persons who brought their pet dogs safely through the dangers of the city catchers and pound season are threatened with new woes in the enforcement of the muzzling ordinance. Complaints against 125 owners on the south side have been prepared, charging them with violating the law. Stephen G. Brabrook, 3592 Lake avenue, is the complainant in all cases. Most of the persons arrested have been discharged with a warning, due, it is said, to the feeling of the magistrates that the public generally is ignorant of the existence of the ordinance.

Fines yesterday were imposed as follows: Anthony Fisher, Douglas club, $10; John Halpin, Cottage Grove avenue and Thirty-fifth street, $2; and Mrs. Emma Wilcox, 3156 Forest avenue, $2. Mrs. Wilcox refused to pay, and Justice Hurley ordered her committed to the bridewell. In the station she repented and produced the money.

The ordinance, passed Nov. 24, 1903, stipulates that it shall be unlawful for "any dog to run at large between April 1 and Nov. 1 unless the dog is muzzled or led by a chain so as effectually to prevent it from biting any person." A fine of from $2 to $10 is authorized for each violation.

MONEY FOR A NEW GYMNASIUM.

Northwestern Alumni Have $30,000 in Sight and a Prospect of $80,000 Soon.

The efforts which have been made for some years to obtain for Northwestern university a new gymnasium will probably prove successful before another year has passed. The Alumni association, which has the matter in charge, has $30,000 in sight, and a promise of two donations of $15,000 each, which can be obtained provided $30,000 is raised before Nov. 1. This would make a total of $80,000. The following men are working on the project:

George P. Merrick.	Frank M. Elliot.
C. P. Wheeler.	P. R. Shumway.
William A. Dyche.	Gordon A. Ramsay.
A. B. Fleager.	J. P. Grier.
J. P. Brushingham.	Alton F. Johnson.
E. P. Clapp.	C. E. Dietz.

The gymnasium now in use at Northwestern is an old frame structure, and long has been unsuitable for use.

Three More Smallpox Cases.

Through lack of vaccination, the little smallpox colony at the isolation hospital was augmented yesterday by the arrival of three babies. Two of the infants—Charles and Flora Johnson, 5 and 3 years old—live at 10638 Green Bay avenue, South Chicago. The other—Jerry Fergie, 4 years old—lives at 437 West Eighteenth street. "The sources of the infection are unknown, and that fact disturbs us not a little," said Chief Medical Inspector Spalding.

HAS CURE FOR LYNCHING.

FRIEND OF NEGRO HOLDS CONVICT CAMPS TO BLAME.

Declares in Address Before Evangelical Alliance at Cincinnati That if Southern Schools of Crime Are Abolished Cause for Illegal Executions Will Cease—Tells Horrors of the Prison System as It Is Now Conducted There.

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—Dr. W. P. Thirkield of the Methodist Freedmen's Aid and Southern Educational society, in an address to the Evangelical alliance here today, said that lynching of negroes would be greatly reduced, if not entirely prevented, by a reform of the convict leasing system in the south.

To this single cause he laid the blame for the majority of crimes for which negroes are lynched.

In the course of his address Dr. Thirkield said:

"In estimating criminality among the black people, we should keep in mind that since Appomattox nearly every southern state has maintained a school of crime—an organized institution for the training of criminals.

"This I charge against the convict lease system of the south. This system with its thousands of victims has been the cause of much of the crime among black people through its brutalizing and dehumanizing influence on thousands of negroes.

"Under this system both prison and prisoners are farmed out under the control of private corporations—sold to the highest bidder. The motive of both state and lessee is not morals but money; not reformation but exploitation of criminals for gain.

"One warden of a state penitentiary protests in his report that 'under the present law and custom the penitentiary is the school of crime, instead of being a reformatory institution. Of the fifty boys under 18, nine-tenths of them leave prison much worse than when they came in.'

"There is in these convict camps no organized reformatory effort. Reform does not enter into the system. The aim of the state is not the moral reformation of her criminal classes, but the care of them without cost, and even the reduction of taxes through the sale of criminals.

"The outcome of the careful investigation of the convict lease system on the part of the governor of Georgia was a revelation of inhumanity, barbarity, and shameless immorality.

"In a period of two years over 1,100 of these convicts escaped from southern prisons. Think of 1,100 thieves, murderers, thugs at large—lawless men roaming about in defiance of all law and order. From such criminals what wonder if there have come forth hundreds of moral monsters. The south should reform its present system, and thus stop the education of criminals.

"Over against the outcome of these schools of crime is the fact that of all the thousands of graduates from the Christian schools maintained by the benevolence of the north and south, not one graduate has ever been even accused of the crime against the sacredness of womanhood."

ILLINOIS AFRO-AMERICANS HIT BOOKER WASHINGTON.

Colored Leader Is Denounced for Leaving Position as Educator to Aid "Turncoat Politicians" Get Office.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 12.—[Special.]—The Afro-American Equal Rights league met here today, elected officers, and adopted resolutions in which Booker T. Washington is criticised severely. The league claims to represent 150,000 colored persons of Illinois. In reference to Booker Washington the resolutions say:

"Above all things we regret that while Booker T. Washington has advised the negro to refrain from politics, he, himself, has left his high plane of educator to aid in the appointment to office of some of the most threadbare and discredited political turncoats in the negro race."

The resolutions indorse the administration of President Roosevelt and of Gov. Yates. Sheriff Whitlock of Vermilion county is thanked for the protection afforded the colored race in the riot at Danville.

DENIES THE TEMPLE IS LOST.

Mrs. Carse Contradicts Statement Made by the Rev. John M. Driver in a Sermon.

The statement made by the Rev. John M. Driver, in his sermon on Sunday, that the W. C. T. U. had lost the temple is answered by Mrs. Matilda Carse with a denial. In a statement made yesterday Mrs. Carse says:

"We assure Dr. Driver and all who hold like views that the Woman's temple is not lost. It is true that at the national W. C. T. U. convention after the death of Miss Willard, and following eight years of great financial disaster to the country, the national officers advised the delegates to vote to abandon the building, but the work has been continued by the temple trustees and a minority of the W. C. T. U., which is being largely augmented daily.

"Only last week the trustees held an all day convocation in Willard hall in the interest of the temple and $11,213 was raised toward paying off the temple trust bonds. It is the intention of the temple trustees, with the assistance of the minority of the W. C. T. U., to keep at work until they pay for the temple and make it a memorial to Frances E. Willard."

SHE MAY BEGIN LIFE ANEW.

Court Restores Property Taken from Mrs. Pollay, Alleged Victim of a Conspiracy.

Another victory was won yesterday by Mrs. Lizzie Pollay when Judge Cutting in the Probate court ordered that the woman's furniture and other property be restored to her. The court also entered an order giving the woman a part of the funds held by her aunt, Mrs. Ella Gear, guardian of the estate. The remainder of the money will be retained by the court.

Judge Cutting signified his intention of assisting Mrs. Pollay to reëstablish the home which, she asserts, was broken up as the result of an alleged conspiracy. Her four children are in a half orphan asylum.

Mrs. Pollay in seeking to gain control of her estate and children told of an alleged abduction and of confinement in an asylum for the insane, although she was in possession of all her faculties.

LIVE UPON 17 1-2 CENTS A DAY.

County Commissioners Decide to Reduce from 19 Cents the Cost of Dieting Prisoners.

County jail prisoners hereafter will be fed at a cost to the county of 17½ cents each a day. The jail and Criminal court committee yesterday decided to reduce the sheriff's rate of dieting.

Sheriff Barrett was not pleased with the action of the subcommittee. He thought he had been economical in feeding the county's prisoners for 19 cents a day.

"I can keep within that limit," the sheriff said. "I could feed the prisoners for less if necessary, but I think the prisoners easily could eat 19 cents' worth of food each day."

The daily fare, it is said, will be in accordance with the menu recently published in THE TRIBUNE, and will include bread, potatoes, boiled meat, baked beans, and "duffers."

Grand Opening of Another Great Store Today and Tomorrow

The first day of the grand opening of our new building justified, we believe, our promise of another great store. Our exceptionally wide aisles were thronged by thousands and tens of thousands—we might say hundreds of thousands. Our facilities and equipment had to be all that we claimed to accommodate such crowds. Our displays of the goods which a truly great store must carry had to be up to the most exacting standard to win the praise lavished on them. The great fabric floor, the French lingerie room, the art floor, the exposition of Oriental rugs—every section in fact—brought out continuous compliment and encomium.

"The handsomest store and the handsomest fixtures in the west," said a leader among our neighboring merchants.
"Finest store of the kind in the country," said another.
"The entire institution—building, equipment and stock—is complete," said a third.
Another remarked: "That restaurant, grill and tea room is beyond any I have ever seen."
"No store," said a woman who knows, "ever made a richer exhibit than those Paris hats and gowns."

We knew we had built well. We are gratified by the appreciation shown our efforts. We shall do better—today—tomorrow—the next day—every day.

Some society men think ready-to-wear clothes O. K. for business—but they're dubious about 'em for dressy occasions.

They've an erroneous notion that full-dress clothes must be tailored to order in order to be right.

When they're introduced to our full-dress suits—Tuxedos—Prince Alberts—and semi-dress cutaway frocks (many of which are richly silk-lined)—they're pleased—and convinced.

Our silk-lined fall and winter overcoats are fine examples of sartorial art and reliability.

Medium-weight underwear, winter-weight underwear, just as reliable as our reliable clothes.
